Gov. Smylie Announces Candidacy For Re-election

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Robert E. Smylie announced his candidacy Wednesday for reelection as governor of Idaho.

He is the first Republican in the race and is expected to win the GOP nomination in the Aug. 12 primary without opposition. Four Democrats are seeking their party's nomination.

Smylie, who was elected chief executive in 1954 after two terms as state attorney general, will be the first Idaho governor ever to run for a second four-year term.

State officials served two-year terms since 1946 and have been barred from succeeding themselves under a constitutional provision which has since been repealed.
