Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Correspondent

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Cadillacs and mink are old fads around movietown by now, so filmsters have taken up housekeeping by remote control.

Aline Mosby

A young electronics genius named Mac Brainard specilizes in making fantastic gadgets for movie stars and other gadget-minded citizens.

In one Brentwood mansion, for example, the lady of the house doesn't have to worry about the sun fading her furniture.

When the sun hits a huge picture window, the drapes automatically close. After the sun moves on, the drapes grandly open again, all by themselves. Brainard installed an electric eye that does the work.

Method Demonstrated

"She always takes her friends outside at night and shines a flashlight on the eye to show how the drapes work," he grins.

Brainard has installed buttons in automobiles by which you can turn on the yard lights, open the garage gate and start the phonograph when you're 20 miles from home.

One businessman can push a button in his home and open the garage door. Another button pushed, and his car starts, backs out of the garage and stops in front of the walk!

"It's done by a little motor that starts the car and drops the fluid drive shift into reverse. A timing device turns it all off after the car has gone 150 feet," explains Brainard.

Music Under Water

One producer ordered music under water. The electronics wizard installed a special metal loudspeaker in the swimming pool so music can be heard clearly under water, but not outside the pool.

Brainard whose customers include Clark Gable and Donald O'Connor, made one movie executive's car steal-proof. If the car is driven a half block without first turning off a "burglar alarm," the brakes lock, lights flash on and the horn sounds.

Dial in Bedroom

Mac's "master electronics" shop in Hollywood — which he claims is the only one in the world — also sells electronic controls operated by a dial in your bedroom. Dial different numbers and you can start the coffee maker, open the front door for the dog and turn on the radio.

In one Brainard-serviced industrial plant, you can't enter the electronically-controlled door to a restricted room without first whistling a certain tune. He has several customers who can turn on a light in their living rooms by waving a hand in front of a wall.

Comedian Lou Costello had Mac design a secret room for his home. "There's a photograph of Lou on the wall," says Brainard. "You put your finger on the nose in the picture and the secret door behind a bookcase swings open."

Your Health and Its Care

MILD ARSENIC POISONING

Everybody gets a little arsenic in one way or another and can excrete or eliminate it without any disturbance of health.

Dr. Brady

It is only when the arsenic intake happens to be a little more than one can handle that symptoms or signs of chronic arsenic poisoning may occur.

I believe I have had three or four bouts of it in the past ten years, from the arsenical spray residues I have eaten on celery, lettuce and other leaves and perhaps some fruits that have been sprayed with lead arsenate or perhaps paris green especially in a dry season.

Loss of appetite, nausea, bellyache (and I mean belly) and perhaps some diarrhea are the usual manifestations of mild arsenic poisoning, when one gets a little more than one can handle. A sure cure I have fund, is simple enough: eschew green salads and fruits or berries for a week or so.

Some poor geeks, unaware that such symptms warrant the suspicion of arsenic poisoning, keep right on eating arsenic and among the symptoms they develop eventually are recurring eczema; a peculiar waxy pallor; red infected eyelid linings and in some cases swollen or puffy eyelids; onion or garlic odor of the breath, skin or sweat; puzzling tingling or numbness in legs or arms; sometimes actual neuritis.

In some instances chronic arsenic poisoning has been responsible for such peculiar conditions as erythromelalgia — keep your shirt on, we'll interpret it presently—and idiopathis peripheral vasoconstriction. I'm sorry about these ten dollar words, folks, but there they are — or perhaps I should say there are the mangled remains of them laid out in the style to which the typographer is accustomed.

Eyrythro (red) mel (?) algia (ache or pain) was invented before this column, so you can't blame me for it. I merely notice it as we amble along and kick it around just for the fun of it. At that, I'm letting you off easy—the correct word is erythromegalalgia—one up on Webster, although Webster does mention that megalo—is a combination form meaning big, large or great. For instance, megalomania is unreasonable conviction of one's own importance or greatness; and acromegalic pertains to extremely large limbs or feet.

The other sesquipedalism — well, it would take too long to go over it again, but a medical term for it is Raynaud's disease, which was first described by Maurice Raynaud, a French physician, about 80 years ago, as local asphyxia and symmetrical gangrene. A more familiar term for it, in mild cases, is "dead fingers" or "dead toes."

If you happen to have either big red ache or dead fingers or dead toes, do not infer that the trouble is necessarily a manifestation of chronic arsenic poisoning—in most instances of either condition the cause is unknown and I mention the fact that arsenic seems to be responsible in some instances only to show how obscure and mystifying mild arsenic poisoning may be.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Don't Marry Unfit

Please give me the name of a state or any place where I can get a marriage license without a health certificate. (M. W.)

Answer—Uh-uh.

Evasion

Please explain "nervous heart condition" and "mental heart condition." C. T. M.)

Answer—Meangless terms used perhaps to tell you it is none of your business what ails the patient or to conceal from you the fact that the doctor doesn't know what, if anything, is the matter.

Floor Mopping by Student Nurses

It would be interesting to know what school you have in mind when you give the impression that student nurses must do floor mopping. (——— R. N.)

Answer—It is much more interesting to know that pupil nurses are never required to do any such work in the hospital where you are director. I congratulate you upon your record. You and I seem to have different ideas—you refer to the pupils in the first six months of the three year training periods as "student nurses." I call them pupils throughout the period of their training.

Gastric Acidity

Do I understand you to say that hyperacidity of the stomach is always ulcer? (C. L. T.)

Answer—I don't know. I never said so. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet Yankee Stomach.
