Pipe Connections Made Leak-Proof

Waterloo, Ia.—(U.P.)—A strange looking device invented here 46 years ago was the first to make possible the machine production of cement pipe — from four inches to three feet in diameter.

Now, the firm which makes this apparatus has come up with a process to make cement pipe connections leak-proof, particularly important when a sewer line goes near water supplies of the ol' swimmin' hole and provides danger of pollution.

Also, the new type of pipe, which can be made up to six to eight inches in diameter, reduces the amount of pumping at the treatment plant which usually is required to remove water that has seeped into such pipe.

J. N. Schenck and J. W. Stewart, the partner founders of the Zeidler Concrete Machinery Products Co. here, first exhibited their new idea in the old industry of concrete pipe-making back in 1908.

The huge machine principally is a big arm that whirls around and packs cement inside a cylindrical mold. Prior to the invention, all pipe had to be cast in molds, just as sizes larger than three feet are now.

The company's newest process calls for one end of a piece of pipe to be pressed into the bell of another where a rubber gasket seals the joint and prevents leaks, the bugaboo of the pipe industry.

Your Health and Its Care

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Readers should address inquiries to: William Brady, 263 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

HOLD ON THERE! DON'T MOVE!

A New England reader says her sister has been trying to persuade her to move to California.

Dr. Brady

Yet the sister, her husband and children hardly recover from one round of 'colds' when another starts. They don't have that back east. (E. W. R.)

Maybe E. W. R.'s family doesn't, but if so, it would be foolish to imagine geography, climate or weather has anything to do with it.

Anyway you'd think, wouldn't you poor souls, that we've got our geography and climate mixed up here. The California sister should be concerned about the rounds of so-called "colds" the family of her New England sister has, presumably just because she won't move to another climate.

Here knee deep in winter I'm watching the clock to be sure to get to the bowling green in time for the draw. Thousands of other people are heading for the golf links, tennis courts, parks, playgrounds, to play their game, and other thousands are puttering around lawn or garden—as in any other time of the year. Besides, I served time at hard practice in upstate New York, so I know what exposure to cold, wet and all that means.

The question of a change of climate for health's sake reminds me of one of my first patients in Penn Yan when Topsy the Beautiful Sorrel—I mean the head nurse of the surgical ward—and Lalla Rookh, our first born, whom we had named the year before we married, a staggering load of debts and, something I still can't understand, unlimited credit with Penn Yan's merchants—were the assets of our happiness.

The patient was a youth of nineteen, a blond, with pulmonary tuberculosis. Two or three other members of his family had succumbed to tuberculosis. I don't remember just why the boy had come to me, the newest and youngest doctor in the community. Perhaps in the hope that I'd go along with his belief that it was just an obstinate 'cold.' Although I told him frankly that he had tuberculosis and must immediately give up his job as clerk in a store and follow the open air rest regimen, I could see he didn't accept my opinion or advice. So I sought out an older member of his family and made sure my diagnosis and advice was not misunderstood.

But my advice was not followed. Soon afterward the older member of the family casually informed me that they were sending the boy to Denver.

The boy spent several weeks in a Denver boarding house and then was brought home to . . .

Another of my first patients, also a blond (I had and still have a notion that blonds with tuberculosis do better than brunets) was about 25 years of age. He had to come to Keuka Lake from New York City, to pick grapes. When I told him he had tuberculosis and that his best bet was an open air rest regimen, he took it in good earnest and lived like Thoreau there on a hillside by the lake, making a good recovery.

The point I want to make is that change of climaate for health's sake seldom proves a happy venture.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
How to Breathe

I feel sure, and my physician agrees, that what I learned about breathing and how it helps the circulation, by studying your remarkable brochure HOW TO BREATHE has been of the greatest benefit to me. I have coronary . . . (J. F.)

Answer—Anyway, it is well to know that in any circumstance the way you breathe, habitually or as a regular therapeutic exercise, determines to a considerable degree the efficiency of your circulation, whether your chief complaint be dysmenorrhea, insomnia, heart trouble with broken compensation, hemorrhoids, varicose veins or cold feet. Send twenty-five cents, and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet HOW TO BREATHE. Please do not use a clipping.

Sleep My Pretty One, Sleep

How many hours of sleep does a young adult doing office work need? (Dorothy M.)

Answer—Eight in summer, nine in winter. Less than that and you'll look less beautiful, lady.

Acid

If one has acid urine should one go on a diet and will it cause one to have a backache? (B. T. H.)

Answer—The urine is acid normally. It is foolish if not foolhardy to attempt to diagnose and treat your own ailments, as your question well illustrates. Why in tarnation are you Yankee Wiseacres so stingy about having medical advice and so stupid about quackery and self-doctoring?

Protected 1955 by John F. Dille Co.

NO LOAFING

Flat Rock, N. C. — (U.P.) — Carl Sandburg, now 77, scoffs at talk of his retirement. The celebrated poet, author and biographer says he has plans for more years of work and travel. For relaxation he herds goats at his picturesque mountain farm here.

MOO-O-OS AND MUSINGS

A local miser (oh yes, there is one) has accepted the fact that he can't take it with him so he's going to do the next best thing.

He's going to take Traveller's checks.

Liberace Denies Sonja Henie Romance

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Pianist Liberace has denied Hollywood rumors a romance may be developing between him and his recent dating companion, ice skating star Sonja Henie.

The mild-mannered musician, who last week dated Miss Henie three nights in a row, including her big party at Ciro's nightclub, shyly brushed aside reports of a romance.

"I don't know anyone that I would rather be with," Liberace said, "but it's not serious. We just like to be with each other."

Postal Representatives Request Pay Increase

Washington — (U.P.) — Representatives of postal workers asked the Senate yesterday for a pay increase.

George F. Warfel, president of Special Delivery Messengers, told the Senate Post Office and Civil Service committee his group favors an administration bill for a five per cent pay hike because it also provides for job reclassification.
