The Dogwood tree on Nehalem avenue in this city, is now in full bloom. This tree has put forth blossoms three different times this season.

We noticed a few days ago that Mrs. W. H. Conyers, who lives near this city, has in her garden two fine peach trees well loaded with fine luscious peaches, and a bush of evergreen blackberries that is perfectly black with the berries. Who can beat it, and who says that Columbia county can be beat for raising small fruit.

Several gentlemen living in this part of the county are missing, but the last but not least, is a gentleman who went to Portland to attend the exposition, who either got left, or did'nt come home on the train he should have come on. His friends are all somewhat anxious over his absence from his post of business but will bet a button that he will come home when he sobers up.

The Siwashes of this city had a gay time at their wigwam this week. On Wednesday the Hi You chiefs assembled at their Council Fire at Conyer's hall, bringing with them a few pale faces. After roasting the said pale faces to a beautiful brown, and giving them a bath in the Skookum river, they were eaten alive. After the big chiefs had partaken of corn, wine, venison and a heavy plate of rattle snake soup, the big chiefs, it is said, adorned themselves with paint and moccasins, and wore rattle snake rattles in their noses, and porcupine quills in their ears, and in due time went to their tepees duly sober.

VERNONIA ITEMS.

I. P. Spencer made a flying trip to Washington county Sunday to meet an old friend, James Bonnefield, of Idaho, who is visiting his brother, Chaney Bonnefield.

Our hoppickers have all come home. It was the usual story. A few made a little money, but none good wages, the most barely covering expenses. But all had an outing, and some a rattling good time.

We are glad to announce that Judson Weed, a former resident of the Nehalem, but for eight years past living at Philomath, is again to become a citizen of our community. The family will follow at the end of the present school year.

The annual pilgrimage of our people to Banks, Forest Grove, Portland and other points to buy flour, sugar, coffee and other supplies for the winter has begun.

S. B. Richards and wife have gone to Ridgefield, Wash., where they will make their future home, having bought a small ranch near by, it being their intention to engage in the poultry business.

As will be seen by consulting the maps of the proposed new railroad into the Nehhalem it does not pass through Vernonia since it crosses the river a few miles up and West of this place. Of course it is not what our people want, and for their comfort we wish to state that we have it from pretty good authority, that while some of the high officials desire, for the present at least, to show the road as nearly on an air line as possible, it is the increasing opinion of the engineering corps that because of the great expense in the construction of two tunnels through the divides the feasable route, because almost a water level route, is down Beaver creek to the Nehalem, down the Nehalem to Rock creek and up Rock through a low pass and down a small stream to the river again as shown on the maps. This route while four miles longer, puts the road through a farming section and also tops the timber region better than the mapped out route. But we, of course are not building the road.

Many Nehalem people are attending the great exposition at Portland. Last weeks attendance from here was as follows: O B Malmsten and wife, Rev. Coleman and daughter, S B Richards and wife, Bert Hosford, P Bergerson and three children, A Emmons and family, John Dallas and family, Tell Soule, J E Dow and family, J G Pringle, Mrs. M. J Powell, Frank and Nels Peterson, John Adams, P Glaun, Adolph Bergerson, and family, John Cheldelin and Mat Johnson. And there were others no doubt, whose names we did not get. This weeks record so far is C B Armstrong and family, C L Parker and wife, A L Parker and family, G W Parker and family, Mrs. D B Berlstein, Mrs. F Tracey, E G Shannahan and family, C A Malmsten and wife, Hazel and Vivian Bonnick and Margaret Spencer. We are glad so many are availing themselves of this opportunity of a life time, to see a truly wonderful exhibit of the world's people and products. The fair is indeed most excellent in all its departments, and we would urge all who have not been, to go this coming week, which is the last, and perhaps the best.

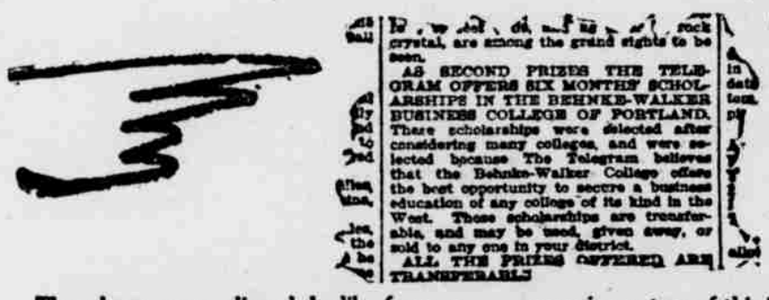
3 TRAINS TO THE EAST DAILY

Read what Portland Telegram says about the Behnke-Walker Business College "Best in the West"



The above was clipped bodily from a two-column announcement by The Evening Telegram of a $5000 prize contest it has just instituted to obtain new subscribers.

This sweeping tribute was absolutely unsolicited. As ALL the business colleges of Portland use the advertising columns of The Telegram—the Behnke-Walker College being by no means the largest advertisers—the sweeping nature of this indorsement came as a great surprise.

It was in no sense a paid advertisement, but was the verdict of that great evening daily—its fair and impartial judgment after having investigated best business colleges in the west.

Come to Portland— take advantage of this "best opportunity to secure a business education of any college of its kind in the West."
