Music For Hunters

Waterfowl Sounds Intrigue Writer

By BILL JENKINS

Along about the time of year when the geese start their southward flight I am always amazed at how far one can hear them.

You stand out in the open on a clear, bright day and hear the big bands as they go over. They sound as if they were right on top of you. But yet you stare into that vacant sky for a long time sometimes before you see them. And then they may be nothing but tiny spots in the sky, so high you can scarcely make out their form.

I was moving some equipment into a duck marsh not long ago on a hot, sunny day when quite a flight of geese started in. The big birds flew for two or three hours, coming down from the north at tremendous altitudes, heading straight for the resting grounds on the reserve. You could see them alter course as they caught sight of their favorite ground and then start to drop down on the approach.

Out Of Sight

But frequently I could hear the geese for some minutes before I could spot them. They were flying mostly in large bands, the v's stretching back for 40 or 50 birds sometimes. As I stood out there in the semi-silence of the marsh I couldn't help wondering where the idea got started that geese honk. Because to me they don't. I would rather describe the usual cry of the goose as a bark. Or a low, cackling laugh. Not that I think this belief of mine is going to change the time-honored practice of having geese honk.

That would be too much to expect in the face of all the opposition. Opposition from such experts as Francis H. Kortright, for example, who wrote the textbook that is still considered tops, The Ducks, Geese and Swans of North America.

A Resonant Honk

In speaking of the Common Canada Goose, commonly called the honker, he describes the call as being a "resonant honk, honk." Sometimes, he says, this changes to ong-ong. And sometimes a drawn out h-o-n-k, h-o-n-k. The voice of the Lesser Canada Goose is the same, he says, except that it is higher pitched, sharper, and noticeably less sonorous.

I gain some headway where Kortright is concerned on a couple of other types. The Richardson's Goose is described as having a call that sounds like a mother hen calling her chicks. Sort of a k-r-r-r, a trill.

Cacklers Disdained

The Cackling Goose, a bird which most hunters in this area disdain, has a voice that goes luk-luk-luk, and is even more high pitched than the Lesser Canada. The American Brant, which never comes over to this side of the continent, calls something like car-r-rup. According to Kortright this bird is pretty doggone talkative and has a lot of other calls, too. He (or she, as the case may be) sometimes sounds a note like r-r-r-rouk and r-r-rup and ruk-ruk. There is, too, a metallic chronk, chronk and a double note of torock. The alarm cry sounds like wouk.

Low Gutteral Tone

The Black Brant, a bird that hangs out along the Pacific beaches and doesn't fly east of the mountains, has a low, gutteral gr-r-r-r-r, gr-r-r-r-r while in flight or at rest. There is also a mellow chronk, chronk and a gutteral wah-ook.

The Emperor Goose, very rare over here, has a call that sounds like kla-ha, kla-ha, kla-ha. When startled it rises from the ground uttering a deep, ringing u-lugh, u-lugh. I have seen only one Emperor Goose. It was a stray staying with a band of specks up at Aspen Lake several years ago. It just sat on the ice and didn't say anything.

Resembles Laughter

I come closest to agreeing when it comes to the White Fronted Goose, or speck as he is called around here. Kortright says his voice is a long, clanging, oft-repeated wah-wah-wah-wah and resembles laughter.

But then we come back to the Lesser Snow Goose, another bird that ranks pretty low on the sportsman's list, and get into this honking business again. The cry is described by Kortright as being shrill and falsetto, followed by a shrill honk.

I can't win, the experts are agin me. They all agree that geese honk. And I still disagree. I maintain that to me the cry of a honker sounds a lot more like a dog barking than it does a honk. Any kind of a honk. And I have my own substantiation.

Goose Call Misses

I have a goose call. One of Mr. Olt's Perfect Goose Calls as registered in the patent office under number 348205. This call will, under some circumstances, give off with a sort of a honk. A screeching honk. I am sure that the geese don't find anything akin to their native tongue in that anguished bleat, or honk. They can be coming right for me when I tootle on the call but when the sounds issue the geese prick up their ears (I guess), agree that it can't be the voice of Cousin Sam down there, and promptly take off at high port for parts unknown.

Filled With Mud

I have found that the call works best (in fact the only time works at all) when it is filled with good old tule muck and I can blow it only by sort of gagging into it. This produces a sound unlike any honk on earth, but it sometimes brings geese in closer.

This proves one of two things. Either that geese don't honk or that they have a curiosity bump about the size of Mount Shasta.

This strangled blowing into a mud-filled call is also pretty effective at calling nearby hunters over to my blind. Their arrival is invariably followed by harsh words and their stomping away in a rage before I have a chance to propound my theories about geese not honking.

But I still don't think they do. At best they sound like geese. At worst like barking dogs. But auto horns? Never.

WHITE PHEASANT — Albert Crapo compares a couple of pheasants he bagged in the Spring Lake area. In the foreground is a bird with a white head, neck and legs. The remainder of the bird is marked the same as a ringneck with the exception of the missing topknot.

American Leaguers To Stake LA Claim

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Baseball League today was expected to stake its claim in Los Angeles at a meeting designed to expand the circuit to 10 clubs in time for the 1962 season.

Los Angeles together with Dallas-Fort Worth and Minneapolis-St. Paul are regarded as the only cities among a dozen applicants being considered seriously for the ninth and tenth franchises.

The National League nine days ago beat its junior rival to the gun by swiftly grabbing Houston and New York in the first expansion move in the majors in 62 years. The American League voted last month to expand to 10 teams, too.

While the National League had a comparatively easy time coming to unanimous agreement, the American was expected to be engaged in a long, drawn-out debate regarding Los Angeles. It was highly possible no decision would be reached at this meeting, which may be held over for a second day.

"We're hopeful of coming out of the meeting with two new cities," said league president Joe Cronin, "but I don't want to make a prediction as to what will happen. I know there will be lots of discussion. In any event, it will be one of the most important meetings in American League history."

The AL clubowners first must solve internal problems concerning possible realignment before they can tackle the expansion movement. They are pretty much in agreement regarding Los Angeles. They feel an AL franchise in the rich Los Angeles territory would somewhat offset the advantage gained by the NL in grabbing off such plums as Houston and New York.

The rub, however, is in the manner of acquisition. One group, headed by Bill Veeck of the Chicago White Sox, wants the league to grant an open franchise to LA, along with Dallas-Fort Worth.

Another faction, headed by Dan Topping of the New York Yankees, would like to see the Kansas City franchise moved to Los Angeles, thus opening the way for the league to approve franchises to Minneapolis-St. Paul and Dallas-Fort Worth.

Hank Greenberg, vice-president of the White Sox, reportedly has been supporting a move on the part of owner Calvin Griffith to shift his Washington Senators to Minneapolis-St. Paul. Greenberg is anxious to take over the Washington franchise.

It takes a three-fourths vote to approve a franchise shift or the granting of a new franchise.

Apparently the bids of Toronto and Buffalo, along with those of Denver, Oakland, San Diego and Seattle, among others, are doomed, at least for the time being.

HONOR UMPIRE'S SON

DUNELLEN, N.J. (AP)—Frank Umont Jr., son of the American League umpire, received the Joe Tarpy Trophy for all around sportsmanship at Dunellen High School graduation exercises.

Ernie Broglio Soph Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Ernie Broglio, unimpressive as a rookie with the St. Louis Cardinals a year ago, today was named the National League Sophomore of the Year.

The big right-hander, a 21-game winner, was an overwhelming choice in the annual Associated Press poll of baseball writers. He received 165 of the 189 votes cast.

Shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles was second with 20 votes. Outfielder-first baseman George Altman of Chicago, and pitchers Jim O'Toole and Jay Hook of Cincinnati and Larry Sherry of Los Angeles each collected one vote.

Broglio really arrived after last year's 7-12 won-lost record and 4.72 earned run average as a rookie. The 25-year-old hurler lost only nine games and posted a 2.75 ERA this season while working as a starter and in relief.

Broglio's .700 won-lost percentage was the second highest in the league, and he ranked fourth in strikeouts with 187. Appearing in 52 games, Broglio started 24 times. Three of his nine complete games were shutouts.

ALWAYS FIRST OR SECOND

NEW YORK (AP)—When the 4-year-old bay colt Yes You Will tied the seven-furlong Aqueduct record by taking the Carter Handicap, it marked the fourth win in seven 1960 starts for Mrs. E. L. Price's thoroughbred. The horse was second in his other two starts, both stakes. In the Carter he was clocked in 1:22.2 with Jockey Larry Adams.

Humboldt St. Grid Dynasty Rates Widespread Attention

By HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A football dynasty, the likes of which haven't been seen since the days of Centre College, is under construction at little Humboldt State — far up in the redwood big tree country of Northern California.

It was just 10 years ago that the Lumberjacks decided they should do something about their team. They not only didn't win a game the year before, but they didn't even score a touchdown.

Ex-Cougar Mentor

So they got hold of a fellow named Phil Sarboe, former head coach (and a good one) at Washington State. Sarboe came down and took over.

Today the Lumberjacks have won 15 games in a row—the longest winning streak of any four-year school in the West.

"Sarboe has good contacts among the high schools of the area and they send us most of their best players," says Don O'Kane, chief tub-thumper for the school. O'Kane happens also to be publisher of the only two daily newspapers in Humboldt County.

"We get very few players from out of the immediate vicinity. But most of our lads are strong and used to hard work. They all age working their way through school."

The most colorful performer on the team is a man named Manual (Pappy) Simas, aged 27. Pappy also has seven children. He recently quit his job in a sawmill to take a job as a bartender because it was closer to his home. He comes out to practice only two nights a week—one hour per night. It happens that Pappy weighs 260 pounds on a 5-11 frame. And nobody has moved him around in the line yet.

While the other athletes are younger (and lighter), they all hold jobs. Practice at the school is only one hour per night—starting at 8:45—and held in the big field house.

Most of the athletes look forward to an outdoor life. The majority are graduates of Humboldt State, which has an enrollment of only 2100, are in forestry and wildlife.

David Beat Goliath

This little school recently knocked off San Francisco State, which had won 13 in a row at the time. The big city school has an enrollment of about 12,000. Up in Eureka they consider this quite a feat.

Sarboe, unlike most coaches, does all the work himself. And in addition, he teaches physical education classes all day.

In his 10 years on the scene at Humboldt State, his clubs have won 64 games, lost only 25 and had 3 ties. His lifetime college coaching record is 99-41-3.

In addition to coaching and teaching at the school, the Sarboe family makes another contribution. Phil's wife, a nurse, is on the college medical staff.

Sarboe's son, Joe, is a star high school quarterback. And the big guessing game around the area right now is whether young Joe will go to his old man's school—or seek brighter lights.

UCLA Nails Stats Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —UCLA, which whipped Stanford 28-6 Saturday night, has vaulted into the lead in four of six statistical departments among the Big Five conference.

Coach Bill Barnes' gridders have averaged 329 yards per game in total offense while holding the foe to 235 yards to lead in defense. The Bruins have also passed 159 yards per contest and have only yielded 92 yards per game through the airlanes.

Washington leads in both rushing offense and defense. The Huskies have averaged 228 yards per game rushing while surrendering 103.

The Huskies also have the best record among conference teams, 5-1. UCLA is 2-1-1; USC is 2-3; Cal 0-5-1, and Stanford 0-6.
