A VICTORY FOR THE PEOPLE

What is known as the Administration Railroad Bill passed the United States Senate last Friday, all Republican Senators and a number of Democrats including Chamberlain of Oregon, voting for it. Only twelve votes were cast against it. When first introduced all of the "insurgent" Senators opposed the bill, but in its final passage all voted for it. According to the Associated Press dispatch in the Oregonian, the practical unaminity was due to radical changes made in the measure from the form in which it was drafted by Attorney-General Wickersham. The dispatch further states "By reason of the adoption of many amendments in the interest of shippers the progressive Republicans claim a signal victory and most of the Democrats express themselves as favorable to a large portion of the measure." An Insurgent Republican, then is one who is so irregular as to introduce into an administration measure many "amendments in the interest of shippers." Had there been no Insurgents the bill would have passed the Senate as it came from the hands of Attorney-General Wickersham, and without those "amendments in the interest of shippers," would doubtless have been more acceptable to the corporation. Doubtless it was a victory for the Insurgents, but it seems to have also been a victory for the people. Do the Insurgents represents the people, and if so whom do the regular or administration Republicans represent?
