HYMNS ARE CRITICIZED

LONDON, (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Hymns used by Nonconformist churches in this country were severely criticized at a recent meeting here of the Congregational Union by Sir John McClure, an authority on music. Few of the tunes of the "Sankey type" imported from America, he asserted, even reached the standard of "respectable mediocrity," and some of them were "hopelessly vulgar."

He described as "notable degeneration" the hymn called "Fight the good fight with all thy might."

A plea was made by Sir John McClure for "a revision of hymnody" throughout the country, and hymns "worthy of a living up of the highest white soldiers, cult of the deliverance," he said their assemblies who were wont to too often a football game as more public meetings and their churches as the lecture rooms of eminent speakers.

PUT VIM WITH THRILLS IN NEW NORMAND PICTURE

Mabel Normand is back at her old tricks in her newest Goldwyn picture, "Jinx," a Bad Girl," at Sherry's today and tomorrow.

For years the staid old village of Vamank has been duly amused and shocked by the pranks of Mabel Pingdom (Miss Normand). There are but few of the villagers who haven't at some time or other been the victims of the irrepressible Mabel's high jinks. Cyrus Gordon feels the sting of her nettle when his tooth is being extracted at the dentist's. Adam Hume, Vamank's village cutter, is talking to the Mayor. The village belle, when endeavoring to do the aforesaid, Mabel having tied her dog's chain to cutter's coat and then whistled for the dog.

But when the artist of Richard Hayes, Mabel decides to change her mode of living and obtains a job in the millinery shop for Richard soon takes a fancy to Mabel and she to him. Hayes, posts as a jewelry salesman, but is really a private detective to whom word has come of a plot to rob the Vamank Bank. While sketching Jinx one day Mabel's curiosity is aroused when she finds some mantle screens, near a free door of the chest. Mabel investigates and her discoveries and subsequent action straight the plot to a successful conclusion.

Also shown the comedy "My Lady Nicotine."

There are few men in public life who are better known than Herbert Hoover, Food Administrator, who is now in Europe in charge of the distribution of food to starving neutral and suffering belligerent nations. Mr. Hoover's office in Washington may be seen in Marguerite Clark's new photoplay, "Little Miss Hoover," which will be shown at the Arcade theatre, Friday and Saturday.

The set used in "Little Miss Hoover" is a replica of Mr. Hoover's office where Miss Clark discussed the purchase of food conservation with the celebrated administrator. On the walls are the national colors, a map of the United States and a picture of President Woodrow Wilson.

"Jinx" deals with the fortunes of Nancy Craddock, a beautiful society girl of Washington who is an enthusiastic fan on Alexander's affairs has heard a speech by President Wilson. She becomes a fervent one and after adopting the cause, it is claimed, but a smiling motto at "easy will win the war." She goes on a fair to raise chickens, identified the improvement of her impoverished family, meets a gentleman farmer employed on her farm and interesting love story develops. Then she gets rid of one suitor and accepts another, the signature clause, which add attractiveness to the entire story.

Miss Clark is ably supported by a picked cast of players. Her leading man is Eugene O'Brien, while among the cast include Alfred Hickman, Forrest Baldwin, Hal Reed, Frances Raye, John Fang, J. M. Mason and J. J. Williams.

Many Masters

We who serve the nation by providing its meat have many masters.

There are hundreds of thousands of stock raisers, asking for a quick market and a high price for their stock.

There are the millions of consumers looking to us, through tens of thousands of retail dealers, for a constant supply of meat at as low a price as possible per pound.

There are the thousands of wage earners properly eager to earn more.

There are the 25,000 holders of Swift & Company shares—8,000 of them women—who have a right to expect reasonable returns on their investments.

There are also hundreds of competitors, big and little, alert to discover, for their own advantage, any momentary breakdown or lapse in our service.

In all our activities we try to deal on a basis of equity, so that all may benefit and none be injured by the advantages that go with organization, wide scope, and efficient management.

And this service of Swift & Company is performed at a profit of a fraction of a cent per pound.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.
