"The Heart of Humanity" To Be Shown at Isis

"The Heart of Humanity", to be seen next Monday and Tuesday, June 9 and 10, at the Isis theatre, limns on the gray background of the last days of the conflict, a tender and appealing romance of loyal and unswerving devotion. The whole production, from beginning to end, is fraught with the spirit of those great days when an anxious world hung breathlessly upon word from the seething battle front in Flanders. It reflects the hush that fell upon civilization when the forces of humanity came to final grip with the ruthless night of autocracy, and it echoes the great cry of joy that sounded round the world when the Hun line crumbled before the Allied attack and fled backward toward the sheltering frontiers of Germany to sue for peace.

Into the midst of these stirring scenes of immeasurable portent, there makes its way the gentle romance of Nanette, an American girl reared in the northwood of Canada, and of her Canadian lover, John Patricia. Joined as the war begun, as war progresses they are separated—to meet again when the giant guns thunder their challenge on the fields of France. Thither John goes as an officer in the Royal Flying Corps and there Nanette hearkening to the cries of the homeless and motherless children, follows in the garb of the Red Cross.

There comes the last great Hun attack—the last terrifying drive toward Paris—when Chateau Thierry became another Verdun and the might of America, thrown into the balance, stayed the enemy, halted him and finally drove him back, until his retreat became a rout and he cried aloud for peace. Graphically, all the hopes, the prayers, the fears, the faith that stirred the heart of humanity in those days of vast import are reflected in the Alan Holubar romance of the war.

In the confusion and chaos of attack and counter-attack, John and Nanette, servants of the great cause, drawn by their love, are once more brought together and the scenes shift from the fields of Flanders back to the Canadian lands of the whispering pines where the benediction of the world peace finds them reunited in their love.

The role of Nanette is played by Dorothy Phillips. William Stowell is seen as John Patricia and others in the large cast include such well-known players as Walt Whitman, Robert Anderson, Frank Braidwood, George Hackathorn, little Gloria Joy, Margaret Mann and Lloyd Hughes.

A HOBBY WITH ROAD CONTRACTORS.

There should be some limit placed upon road contractors when it comes to tarring up the highways upon which they have paving jobs. For instance, every foot of the Pacific Highway between Jefferson and Albany has been plowed up or dug up. It has been cut up by travel while soft from rain. Now it is baked and hard and so rough that it is unfit to travel—and there it lies with practically no work going on at any section of it, and no prospects of it being made fit for travel for months to come. It is characteristic of road contractors to tear up and plow up everything in sight but the officials of the highway commission should seek in some way to curb this disposition to disregard the rights and conveniences of the public. If such action is not taken there will not be a road fit to travel in any direction from Salem or any other town of importance in the state.—Salem Journal.

ANNOUNCING A COURT DECISION IN ADVANCE

The Oregonian forecasts the decision of the supreme court on Wednesday declaring Ben W. Olcott governor for four years, and insuring the appointment of Sam Koser secretary of state. This probably the first time on record where a decision of a high court was announced in advance, and a few years ago the publication of such a news story would have created a sensation. Now we presume the court thinks it eminently proper and fit that the decision should be tipped off in advance, which shows how old notions of right and propriety have passed away.—Salem Journal.

WAY AROUND WAS CHEAPER.

REV. J. CRONENBERGER HIKES DISAPPEARED ONCE BEFORE

(Benton County Courier.)
More news is coming to light on the disappearance of the late Christian Cronenberger, Rev. J. Cronenberger, and while the reason for his leaving is not known it is shown that there are a number of reasons why he might have left any of which could have been sufficient.

There is a little matter of about $1,000 worth of notes which come due this month and about which Mrs. Cronenberger claims to know nothing.

It is only recently divulged that this is not the first time the reverend gentleman had taken French leave of his family. According to a report current here he disappeared from a home in the east at one time and after going to Reno and securing a divorce from the present Mrs. Cronenberger he married another woman whom he had met in church work. It is said he lived with her for a period of seven years until she died and then he remarried the first Mrs. Cronenberger in Colorado.

This is the matter which did not come out when the half a hundred or more men were working night and day at the river in search for a body which Mrs. Cronenberger had every reason to believe was not in the river at all. Had she spoken at the time much work and labor might have been avoided. She told her story to members of the church board later and they immediately ordered further search of the river discontinued.

Whether this Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde was running away from some one or running to some one is not a matter made public yet but there is little doubt but that the entire history of the case will come out at some time. If there was a woman in the case years ago it is a safe guess that there is a woman in the case again. It is also safe guessing that the thousand dollars worth of notes were insufficient to cause him to leave home, family and friends as well as a good job paying him $150 a month. He could easily have borrowed the money here for the day before he left he was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him and anyone with the money would have been willing to slip him the change on his personal note.

The church will make a statement tomorrow.
