Melon and Tomato Agreement Made

The Oregon and Washington Melon and Tomato agreement is now in effect. This agreement is the first of its kind in the entire United States, wherein the growers in two states have attempted to control the marketing of their products. It controls the distribution of 1,000,000 crates of tomatoes and 300,000 crates of melons.

The agreement as now in effect guarantees the grower a minimum price on tomatoes and melons. At present the minimum price that tomatoes can be sold to retailers is 50c for each 20 pound lug. The cost of picking, packing, furnishing of containers, freight, selling and stamps is 36½c per crate. This nets the grower 13½c for growing 20 pounds of tomatoes.

The minimum price to the retailer on melons is $1.25 per crate which nets the grower an average of 42½c to pay the cost of rent, taxes, water, labor and supervision.

Administration of the agreement is invested in a control board which also sets the minimum prices. The board consists of five members, two from Oregon, two from Washington, and one member at large, representing the general public. Office of the board is at 516 Oregon building, Portland, Oregon.

Members of the board consist of Morton Tompkins, chairman, Dayton, Oregon; C. Wesley Williams, Roseburg, Oregon; S. H. Dills, Wapato, Washington; H. N. Hampton, Hover, Washington; and Roy Hewett of Salem, Oregon, who is a member at large. H. G. Hawkins of Yakima, Washington is manager of the agreement. He is an experienced fruit and vegetable man of 20 years experience.

"This agreement will assure the consumer of high grade melons and tomatoes at no increase in prices, yet the producer will get a decent income from his crop. Most of the evils of the old speculative, cut throat method of competition that existed up until this time have been eliminated," according to Morton Tompkins, chairman of the board. "We have received the fullest cooperation from retailers, produce men and growers," he said.

Each crate of tomatoes grown in the two states will bear a 3c stamp, each crate of melons a 7c stamp. The income from these stamps will go to defray the expense of enforcing the agreement.

You Wouldn't Go to Business With a Dirty Face

IT'S odd, but a lot of "go-getters" who would not think of starting the day unshaven or without clean linen go to business in badly worn, wrinkled clothes. Just take a note of this yourself. New suits, made to order from fine, stout fabrics, in fashionable weaves, are a real investment. Older suits, carefully cleaned and pressed by us, look practically as good as new.
