Oregon Women Plan Buying Air Armada for Navy

Following up their successful "Buy-a-Bomber" campaign conducted last fall to "buy", with war bonds, heavy bombing planes for the army, Oregon clubwomen will stage another bond-selling drive this fall to help pay for an air armada for the navy. Drive dates will be September 15 to December 1.

Plans for the new campaign, to be conducted in cooperation with the women's division of the Oregon war finance committee, were announced during the week-end by Mrs. George Moorhead, Salem, president of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs and Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, Portland, women's division director.

The Oregon bond sale will be part of a national effort in the General Federation of Women's clubs to "purchase" navy aircraft; to outfit task force carriers with planes for offense and to provide inshore patrol planes to defend the United States and reconquered islands and lands.

This time, Mrs. Moorhead says, individual clubs will be asked to decide which type of navy plane they wish to have carry their name and then to sell war bonds to buy it! Groups of small clubs may work together or as parts of city, county or district federation units. Each plane will have a decalcomania placed inside bearing the name of its sponsor.

Types of planes which may be sponsored and the approximate cost of each include these: PB4Y Liberator bomber, F6F Hellcat fighter, $88,500; SB2C Helldiver scout bomber, $108,000; TBF Avenger torpedo bomber, $132,000; PMB Mariner patrol bomber, $413,000; PV Ventura, $196,000; PBY Catalina patrol bomber, $172,000; F4U Corsair fighter, $108,000.

Chairman of the Oregon campaign will be Mrs. Charles W. Robinson, Portland, war bond chairman for the state federation, who directed its "buy-a-bomber" drive last fall when war bonds totaling more than $667,000 were sold in a month—enough to "buy" a heavy bomber, a medium bomber, and a pursuit plane.

The Coffee club last year assisted in the "buy-a-bomber" campaign by selling about $2500 in bonds, and no doubt will assist in this campaign.
