You may be interested to learn that since coming here Mrs. Leitch has improved in health quite a bit, the climate here seems to agree with her. Her improvement is such that for the past week she has been able to walk across the room with the aid of a crutch, something she has not been able to do before. Of course, she is greatly delighted with the result and we all do hope that she will continue to improve. I have not lost my love for Oregon, and as far as I am concerned I would much rather be in Oregon than here, but so long as it agrees with Mrs. Leitch I will only be too glad to stay for her comfort."

WETS JOYOUS DRYS SAD.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Prohibition and anti-prohibition organizations of the country, respectively, are disappointed and jubilant over the prospect of referenda in Ohio and Illinois on the issue of light wine and beer.

Wet leaders believe that the opportunities afforded for an expression of popular sentiment will show that the people are opposed to the rigid prohibition restrictions established by the Volstead act. The drys are deprecating the referenda as a useless effort to get an expression of sentiment on a question that already is settled by the existing law and the amended constitution.

The association against the prohibition amendment in a statement issued Thursday said:

The advocates of modification of the existing prohibition laws have just won an important victory in Ohio, which will result in having a vote on the question of legalizing the sale of beer and light wines in the state at the coming elections in the Buckeye state.

Under the instigation of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which is the foremost organization of its character in the country, the required number of signatures was obtained in Ohio for the submittal to the voters of an amendment to section 9-1 of the state constitution, providing no beverage containing 2.75 per cent or less of alcohol, shall be deemed intoxicating, together with other provisions for liberalizing the present laws regarding manufacture and sale of beverages.

A similar triumph also has been secured by the association against the prohibition amendment in Illinois. Agitation carried on by the association and its members in that state resulted in arrangement for submitting a referendum to the Illinois voters, calling for a modification of the state and federal laws to permit the manufacture of beer and light wines for home consumption. Practically no opposition was encountered in Illinois by the association in its efforts.

American Queen?

The former Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the American tinplate king, now the wife of Prince Christopher of Greece, may become queen of Greece. King Constantine, unpopular because of the Greek defeat by the Turks, may be forced to abdicate in favor of Prince Christopher, his brother.

GRANGE FAIR, OCTOBER 2.

It does not make much difference to the people of Wolf Creek whether the 1925 fair is held or not, at the present time, says the North Powder News. These people are busy preparing for a fair of their own, which, we are told by J. A. Nice, is going to be a real nifty affair. In fact he thinks it is going to be rather dangerous for the town fellows to come out and look over the exhibits, because it is certain if the town people see the wonderful possibilities in this section, they will all want to go farming. However, everybody is asked to come out and enjoy the fair and hospitality of the Wolf Creek grange on Monday, October 2.

Many things of interest will be shown to the visitors in the way of grains, grasses, fruits and vegetables. A poultry culling demonstration will also be staged.

Refreshments will be served on the grounds at a reasonable price, and all people who are interested in the welfare of the agricultural districts are asked to attend the fair and partake of the eats prepared by the good cooks of the Wolf Creek Grange.

Exhibits are wanted and should be in before 10:00 a. m., Monday. Prizes and ribbons are to be awarded in all classes. The fair will be held at the Wolf Creek hall and the school grounds.

There are 2,000,000 people in America who can't speak English, but they doubtless have some other way of saying, "I'll tell the world."
