Many of those who were unable to crowd into the vast auditorium camped at home around the radio to hear his words wafted to them through the ether.

More than an hour before the doors were thrown open for the meeting held under the auspices of the committee of New York citizens, crowds were massed on Broadway in front of the main doors.

If You Want to Know Whose Clothes Are Best—Ask the Postman.

This adv. is for all malemen and mailmen.

It's for the man who hands you your bill the first of the month and for the man who is going to pay a suit or overcoat bill this week.

Mailmen get around—they know what's going on sometimes before it gets into the papers.

They can read handwriting on a letter or on a wall and they can sense values in a package or a suit of clothes.

Judging from the number of mailmen we serve we can say to you with ease, if you want to know clothes are best ask the man with U. S. on his cap—and you'll get US in his reply.

BAGS II-POINT DEER UP RIVER

J. H. Mulholland and Waldo Crowley Return From Hunting Trip With Two Bucks.

J. H. Mulholland and Waldo Crowley, of La Grande, have returned from a three weeks hunting trip up the Grande Ronde River, bringing with them as mute testimony as to their skill as Nimrods, two splendid bucks.

One of the animals, an 11-pointer, weighing over 250 pounds, is believed to be the largest deer shot in this section during the 1923 open season. The other is a 3-pointer, weighing about 200 pounds. The two men report that they sighted many deer and a few elk on their journey up the river.

SENTIMENT IS CHANGING FOR INCOME TAX

measure was the business element of Eastern Oregon when this fight started. The Portland Oregonian being a business man's newspaper and bitterly opposing any sort of an income tax, had its effect on its readers in the beginning.

But the fight being waged by the Oregonian is so unreasonable and so full of statements which do not hold water that it has overdone its work and caused many business men to look deeply into the income tax law deciding in it's favor.

One La Grande merchant said today, "I don't want any more taxes, of course not, but I will take a little more tax in the present income tax law rather than have to pay a lot more taxes for these fellows who receive big incomes and dodge the taxes under our present system. Taxes are going to go higher and there is no way to prevent that, then why should we not stand by the income tax law and make those not paying now help in the advance in taxes. We may pay more than we are now paying, but we will pay a lot more unless we hook in these boys who are paying nothing now and yet who have fine incomes."

Legislators Want It to Carry

In speaking of the income tax law today Representative Albery Hunter of Union county said, "I am sure that the fight being waged against this measure is an unjust fight and that the wisdom of writing an income tax law on the statute books of Oregon will be seen sooner or later. The fate of this election is uncertain, to be sure, but the principle of the income tax is here and it will not stay down for long. I sincerely hope the voters will support this measure Tuesday."

The Evening Observer was not able to get in touch with Representative Charles A. Hunter of Union and Wallowa counties, but according to all reports he is supporting the income tax law just as strong now as he did in the legislative session when the bill passed.

State Senator Henry J. Taylor of Umatilla-Union-Morrow counties has taken a strong stand for the law along with Senator Roy Ritner and all other members of the Umatilla county delegation.

Bruce Dennis, state senator from Union-Wallowa counties, said regarding the law today: "Unfortunately the people who are for this measure cannot well raise a fund to carry on a campaign, while those opposing it have done this very thing, and together with the Portland Oregonian, they are making a lot of noise. It is to be regretted that the bill has been grossly misrepresented; that people have been mislead as to what they will have to pay under the law; that wage earners have been cajoled into thinking the organization to fight the friends when as a matter of fact such is not true; that in this campaign high salaried people in some instances have openly asserted that the fellow who is foolish enough to own a home and other real property should pay the expense of government.

"This income tax law is a fair and just law. It is the starting of a principle in taxation which must come else the property interests of Oregon are doomed. There will be no cut in public expenses. The people are demanding more and more service each year and that must be paid for. The whole question is, shall the farm lands, homes and timber lands pay all the governmental expenses as they continue to pile up, or shall the men and women drawing fine salaries help with the burden. If proper consideration is given this law and a full vote of the people is recorded next Tuesday there is no doubt but what the law will stand. The special election is a dangerous institution for only those who are organized attend and others do not, hence it very much in the interests of the opposition to the law to have a special election."

Those who are troubled with dandruff or falling of the hair will certainly welcome the news that Silverthorn-Wright's Family Drug Store are affirming a really efficient eradicator for these troubles. It is called the Germicide and Dandruff Eradicator. If you are troubled with dandruff or falling of the hair, better try it.

FUTURE KING TAKES BRIDE

a typical aristocrat Englishwoman, gracious, generous, alert, fond of dancing and outdoor sport, and gifted with genuine charm. She will captivate Sweden as she did the officers and sailors of the Swedish squadron visiting British waters when she came abroad the flagship escorted by the crown prince.

The Swedish Crown Prince, whose full name is Oscar Fredrick Wilhelm Olaf Gustaf Adolf, has been married before, his first wife having died some three years ago. Crown Princess Margaret, daughter of the Duke of Connaught and princess of Great Britain and Ireland, had borne Gustaf Adolph five children, and her death was a great bereavement to the Swedish people.

Gustaf Adolf is now 41 years of age, more than six feet tall, as are all the men of the Swedish royal family, and vigorous as an athlete. Indeed he is the possessor of the "athletic medal" awarded only for high proficiency in at least five different branches of sport in Sweden. This is perhaps not strange, nor is it strange that he is a military leader, and that he should have commanded one of his country's armies in the field maneuvers which ended only two weeks before the wedding. But it may surprise many to learn that the Swedish crown prince is also a serious archaeologist, with several expeditions to his credit. Last year he spent nearly two months personally directing the excavation of the buried Greek town of Asine, and unearthed many precious relics that shed light on the civilization of 3,000 years ago. He is, moreover, a collector of paintings, especially of the work of modern artists, such as Anders Zorn and Carl Larsson. Gustaf Adolf is very democratic and, consequently, popular with the masses in Sweden. His political aims and principles, like those of his father, are sound and constructive. The wedding in London will be attended by both King George of England and King Gustaf of Sweden. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Italy.
