OUTLOOK O. K. FOR BUSINESS

NEW YORK, (AP)—Interest in financial and business circles during the past week naturally centered in President Coolidge's message, and, judging by the behavior of the securities markets, the document was well received. Business men were reassured by the definite stand taken in favor of tax reduction and most observers were pleased with the position taken in regard to railroads.

Final returns on the net earnings of class I railroads in October showed a total of $102,700,000 or 4.75 per cent on the interstate commerce commission's valuation, as compared with $88,200,000, or 4.46 per cent in September. Car loadings meanwhile continued to hold up well, the total for the week ended November 24, being 930,609, a figure larger than ever was reached in any preceding November.

Reports from the steel industry showed that the wave of buying in pig iron had subsided but that prices were holding firm. Plant operations were reduced but the sentiment of the trade was cheerful.

Cotton Breaks Sharply.

Upward revision of private crop estimates brought a sharp break in cotton. The May future, which had risen to 27¼c, was nearly 2c lower at the week closed. One private estimate placed the new crop at 9,900,000 bales, which contrasted with recent talk of a yield as low as 9,250,000 bales. That the later figure was too low, was shown by Saturday's government ginning report which reported 9,243,000 bales ginned to December 1.

Wheat, on the other hand, rallied moderately. Publication of the index numbers of Dun's and Bradstreet meanwhile revealed the fact that the general level of commodity prices held steady during November. One of the indices advanced slightly while the other moved into slightly higher ground. In both cases advances occurred in textiles and metal products which were offset by reactions in farm products.

As a result of the British election there was a moderate reaction in the foreign exchanges, sterling losing about 2½c. Everything considered, however, the market held well.

Money continued to be in plentiful supply, rediscounts with the federal reserve banks showed another decline and large additional gold shipments from Europe were reported.

To Springfield Policyholders, La Grande, Oregon

For the past seventeen years the SPRINGFIELD has been represented in La Grande by our good friend and agent, Arthur Williams and with his untimely passing comes the necessity of selecting a successor who will continue to serve you with the same high ideals and cleanest service.

We believe that both of these factors are most fortunately combined in the man we have selected, Mr. Charles H. Reynolds, Manager of the Security Insurance Agency, and I feel that he is most excellently equipped to continue the good work.

Mr. Reynolds is authorized to make all necessary transfers, endorsements, and other necessary changes on your present policies and, in these matters, as well as in any new business with which you may favor him, you will be certain to receive genuine "Springfield Service."

With full appreciation of the most pleasant business relations that have existed these many years. We remain. Sincerely, Springfield F. & M. Ins. Co., W. L. HARNAN, Supt. of Agencies.

Annual "Clam Feed" Very Well Attended

duff, explaining why he and the commission could not be present and sending best wishes to the organization.

Rogers Speaks.

George Rogers, Wallowa county game warden, who was among invited guests, was then introduced by President Andrews and told of the work in Wallowa county, stating that the county is now well stocked, both with game birds and fish. He recommended Steamboat and Long lakes for opening next year stating that trout in the lakes were doing nicely and were "I won't tell how long—you fellows wouldn't believe me." He also asserted that the forest service trails to the two lakes were in good condition making them easily accessible.

Secretary O'Brien then reported regarding the liberation of fish in Union and Wallowa counties this year by the Union Fish Hatchery. A complete report of this was published in the columns of the Evening Observer some time ago.

Petitions Signed.

Coinciding with the "Bird Refuge law" resolutions adopted, President Andrews then submitted petitions to congress asking that the measure be adopted to the members, who affixed their names to the documents almost unanimously. He stated that it was to be expected that the present congress would limit the number of ducks hunters may shoot in season and also that steps for the eradication of pump and automatic shotguns were underway.

Waldon Speaks.

John Waldon, Union county game warden, then made a short talk, opening with the remarks that the "deer season is now closed." He recommended that laws should provide that only one deer be killed each year by each hunter, irrespective of sex, stating that the present "buck" law was resulting in the extermination of the buck deers which would eventually make deers in Union county exceedingly scarce, and also provide for a shorter deer season. He is also opposed to leasing land and ponds by hunters who then bar other hunters from hunting on said land. Mr. Waldon announced that the China pheasants in Union county were plentiful and complimented the "Pierce reserve" for aiding in saving game life in this county. That better fishing existed this year was also announced.

Floyd Kendall, district forest ranger, announced that about 12 sections of land near Summerville in the Dry Creek and Phillips Creek districts was available to be made into a federal game reserve and asked the opinion of the club on this matter. He asserted that the location was ideal and that such a reserve would prove beneficial especially to game birds and deer. The matter was left to the officials and executive board of the Wing, Fin and Fleetfoot club.

Secretary O'Brien then read a communication from R. L. Williams, of Starkey, relative to poisoning predatory animals. Mr. Williams is willing to do such work free of charge providing the sportsmen will provide the bait for such work, preferably horse meat.

Reports showing that the Hungarian pheasants in Union county were thriving were made by several members and, following this, President Andrews adjourned one of the most successful clam feeds ever held by the local club, with the announcement that the annual fish feed would be held on June 21.
