East Oregonian

FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1903.

Congress adjourned with the usual sad finale, attending all present day performances. The democrats talked the session to death.

The Mormons rounded off a successful conference of two days duration at La Grande, with the best dance of the season.

Umatilla county needs brick. Building in Pendleton is at a standstill now on account of the shortage. Nature has put the dirt here, all that is lacking is a little money and nerve. These articles are abundant in Pendleton.

The Union Republican, which has been conducted for the past twelve years by L. J. and M. F. Davis, has been sold to George A. Scibird and John C. Glover, of Del Norte, Col., and will be enlarged and improved in many ways.

American newspapers certainly make Pope Leo tired. Whenever that hearty old man gives utterance to a rousing sneeze, the Associated Press goes into mourning. There is no indication that he is going to take any part of the world away with him.

Pilot Rock could do no more worthy thing than to invite Dr. Cole to lecture on health and cleanliness in that city, as proposed by the Record. This is an age of science, and health, first of all, underlies municipal beauty and prosperity. Name the date.

Roosevelt can live without the presidency. He don't need it. He wears it just as if it were an ornament, and not a real garment. He can hang it up and forget, or wear it, just as fortune decrees. He is a multiplex man. To work, no matter where, seems to be his creed.

State Senator George C. Brownell is now receiving a just reward that should always swiftly follow political treachery. He has aroused the opposition of the Oregonian and the labor unions and between the two he is very busy making explanations. Crookedness always convicts itself in time.

Ninety young Americans are to go to Oxford, England ,on free scholarships bequeathed by Cecil Rhodes. The old diamond king should have made another alphabet to attach to their names, on graduation. The present one is awfully commonplace, these days. Anybody with cash can buy a bunch of titles.

An electionh as been ordered by the governor in the first congressional district, for June 1 to select a successor to Mr. Tongue. This is one election in Oregon in which Portland's candidate cannot participate. Just at this particular time it would be most pleasing to Multnomah county to have the congressional districts formed as they should be. But "sweet are the uses of adversity."

"The Orderly," the official journal of Hill's Military Academy, of Portland, contains as a leading article for the February number, just issued, a paper by Robert Alexander, of Pendleton. It is an ably written article, full of genuine literary merit and reflects credit upon the young man. His subject is "An Indian Celebration on the Fourth of July," and the scene is laid in Umatilla county.

There are repulsive evidences of depravity in all classes of society. An organized band of grave robbers, including college students and professors, has been exposed in Indiana. Yesterday the supreme court of New York granted a decree to a tottering old reprobate of 75, giving him permission to abandon a woman who testified that she had been his wife for thirty-six years. There is need of missionary work in many places, where the poor, blind heathen of Africa and India form fruitful themes of discussion.

The Oregon legislature failed to pass one highly important measure, one which the people will sorely need before the full fruition of irrigation can come to the state. This was the bill amending the present irrigation law of Oregon, regulating the irrigation of land, by contract, under the provisions of the Carey act. At present the contractor prevents settlement, by holding the entire tract set aside, for irrigation purposes. He holds the land and uses it until the entire cost of irrigating it shall have been paid to him and in many ways has arbitrary control of the tract and can use it to his own profit, indefinitely, to the exclusion of bona fide settlers.

THE PIONEERS ARE PASSING.

"A Pioneer of 1851." This little legend contains a volume of history, when added to the death notice in the columns of Oregon newspapers. People who speed across the continent today and complain at two hours delay on account of a broken down engine or a blizzard, know so little of Western pioneer hardship that it is not worth listening to.

Those who started West from Omaha on a May morning in 1850, or even 1865, and pointed their lead yoke of oxen toward a dim trail marking the desert, have taken the supreme degree in the freemasonry of civilization.

What it meant to those hardy argonauts, to close the door of the past behind them, to leave the travelled roads in their childhood land and take a course toward the western mountain peaks, none but themselves can say. Imagination can not picture the mingled emotions that must have moistened that path with tears.

From Omaha to The Dalles there was but one or two lont houses in 1851. Nothing but mountain peak and tantelizing plain greeted the emigrant.

What heroism it required, what self-sacrifice, what purpose, to rescue and beautify the commonwealth of Oregon!

One by one these old pioneers of the state are passing to another frontier. The heritage they leave is Oregon. How great a gift it is, those who love her institutions and her surroundings are best prepared to say.

Every day the short legend, "A pioneer" is found wreathed about the obituary in the columns of the press. It is the grand seal of citizenship. It is a fitting history to write upon the headstone. No other words are needed. This epitaph is brief, but yet how splendid it becomes, when the scroll of that magic half century just p... is unrolled for the world's admiration.

BUILD COUNTY ROADS.

The commendable action of Milton citizens in subscribing a $1,200 fund to assist the county court in building five miles of crushed rock road in the vicinity of Milton, is worthy of the court's earnest consideration.

While this is only one of the numerous pieces of bad road in Umatilla county, it is deserving of special attention, on account of the activity and large contribution of Milton's citizens.

If other communities in the county would offer such assistance to the court, in practical road making, it would result in untold good to the county. The means of the county for road making purposes are limited. The hands of the county court are tied by a lack of sufficient funds to repair and construct all the road that is needed.

The people, recognizing this situation, must do as Milton has done—come half way. Where this disposition is shown, and this sort of effort is made, the county court will do everything in its power to meet the citizens, in the construction and repair of roads.

It will be justified in making sacrifices in other ways, to further the interests of the farming communities. Too long Oregon has delayed her road building. All experts who have looked over the state, are unanimous in declaring that the essentials for perfect country roads are found everywhere in this state.

Umatilla county, whose 4,000,000 bushel wheat crop is the pride of the state, can, and must take the lead in good roads construction. There is a special inducement to begin this movement, now before the court, in that Milton petition.

The Pendleton public school has been royally treated by the club women of this city, who brought the art exhibit here, conducted it, worked night and day for it's success, arranged the attractive programs, rendered them, in a large part, themselves, and turned the proceeds over to the schools. As a result of this self-sacrificing labor on the part of the women and the teachers, Pendleton has enjoyed a week of beneficial entertainment, the citizens have been brought in contact with the best specimens of art in existence, and the walls of the public school will long bear testimony to the worthy labors of Pendleton women.

Judge Hamilton, of Lane county, in sentencing Lyons, the murderer of Sheriff Withers to hang, gave him a wholesome lecture on morals. As the condemned man has only a month in which to live, the judge can't expect much of a return on his advice.

Give Roosevelt fair warning and a good gun and he will be more than equal to any of the cranks that ever visit the White house.

The socialists are going to nominate a candidate for congress in the first district.

SPECIAL BARGAIN OFFER

We wish to double our weekly and semi-weekly lists. To do so we make the following special bargain offers:

These offers are good if accepted before May 1st, 1903. So order at once.

Enclose the money and state by number, which offer you desire to accept.

OFFER NO. 1.

To every subscriber who sends a year's renewal for his own subscription, and gets a friend or neighbor who is not taking the EAST OREGONIAN to subscribe for one year, we will send two sets of the beautiful Tonneson Art pictures; one set for the old subscriber, and one set for the new subscriber. Each set consist of 12 different pictures.

These pictures are the genuine Tonneson Art photos. They are artistic and beautiful pictures, suitable for framing or they can be pinned up unframed. They are an ornament to any home. They would cost you, if bought at retail, from 50 cents to $1.00 a set. The pictures are 7x9 inches, and are mounted on gray mounts 12x14 inches.

Send the money for both subscriptions and your own name and the name of the new subscriber in the same envelope. If you do not wish to ask a friend or neighbor to subscribe, send a copy of the Weekly EAST OREGONIAN to some relative in the East, who has the Western fever and would appreciate a readable and reliable paper printed in the heart of the Inland Empire.

OFFER NO. 2.

For $2.00 we will send the Weekly EAST OREGONIAN and the Weekly New York Tribune Farmer one year each, and one set of 12 of the Tonneson Art pictures. The Tribune Farmer costs $1.00 a year. This is a good chance to get two excellent papers and a set of the beautiful art pictures at a very low price.

OFFER NO. 3.

For $2.00 we will send the Weekly EAST OREGONIAN and the Northwest Livestock & Farm Journal, each one year, and a set of 12 of the artistic art pictures. The Northwest Livestock Journal is an illustrated Monthly, published at Pendleton, Oregon, and devoted to the upbuilding of the Livestock Industry in the Inland Empire.

OFFER NO. 4.

For $2.25 we will send the Weekly EAST OREGONIAN and the Oregon Weekly Journal, published at Portland, Ore., an outspoken, fearles, newsy paper, for one year each, and one set of 12 of the art pictures.

OFFER NO. 5.

Special Trial Offer.

For those who have never taken the EAST OREGONIAN and wish to try it we will give the Weekly EAST OREGONIAN for four months and six art pictures for 50 cents; or the Semi-Weekly EAST OREGONIAN for three months and six of the art pictures for 50 cents. or, the Weekly EAST OREGONIAN four months and the Livestock Journal six months and six of the art pictures for 75 cents.

Subscribers to the Semi-Weekly EAST OREGONIAN who accept any of the above offers, add 50 cents to any of the above offers.

We pay the postage on these pictures and wrap them securely.

We can assure you these pictures are artistic and we feel sure you will be much pleased with them.

Send your orders at once as we only have 1000 sets on hand at present.

DRIFTWOOD.

A traveler gives this description of the harbor at Sydney, Australia. Some idea of the harbor's size can be gathered from the lenrth of its water-line. In actual length and breadth the harbor is not large. The heads are less than a mile apart, and in no place is the harbor five miles wide. From the ocean without, to the quaint little town of Parametta at the very head of tide water is something less than 20 miles. So far the figures are modest, if, however, you were to start at the north head to walk around the harbor to the south head, a short mile away, keeping close to the water's edge and following every curve of the shore in Middle Harbor and Port Jackson, around all all their innumerable bays, you would cover in your journey more than 1200 miles.

An imaginary interview with a twenty-first century journalist recently appeared in Punch, says a writer in the Toronto Globe, which will make authors and reviewers alike, regret their previous appearance on this earthly stage. For although the newspaper of that enterprising period appeared three days ahead of time, the form of the book review was one of the stable things of existence. The journalist said: "We keep them permanently set, only changing the author's name and the title of his work. We declare that each book is indubitably the masterpiece of the century and you can't think how much innocent pleasure we give."

A question over which a great war has been fought, was recently reviewed in the columns of an Eastern Oregon newspaper and the paragraph closes with a doubt if England can give to South Africa any equivalent for the civilization which has been swept away. The student of history will probably reach the conclusion that the civilization, which from a race of boar hunting savages, living in mud huts in the valley of the Thames, has evolved one of the leading nations of the world, and planted a string of other civilizations, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, around the earth will be able to give some account of itself in the future as well as in the past.

A somewhat close observer gives the following account in the Brooklyn Eagle, of a happening at the Brooklyn bridge: "I saw a woman in a street car open a satchel and take out a purse, close the satchel and open the purse, take out a dime and close the purse; open the satchel and put in the purse; close the satchel and lock both ends. Then she gave the dime to the conductor and took a nickle in exchange. Then she opened the satchel and took out the purse; closed the satchel and opened the purse; put in the nickle and closed the purse; opened the satchel and put in the purse; closed the satchel and locked both ends. Then she felt to see if her back hair was all right, and it was all right, and she was all right, and just as sweet! That was a woman." That is one picture; here is another by an equally close observer along a different line:

"They were married in the autumn,
when the leaves were turning gold,
And the mornings bore a menace of
the winter's coming cold;
Side by side they stood and promised
hand in hand to walk through life,
And the parson said: "God bless you"
as he named them man and wife.
They had little wealth to aid them;
little of the world they knew;
But he whispered "Oh, my darling, I have riches—I have you."
Then they vowed that walking ever
side by side and hand in hand,
They would gain the distant summits
of their far-off, happy land.
Side by side they walked together,
lingering sometimes for a kiss,
Dreaming of those far-off summits, of
the future's perfect bliss;
But the battle-stress was on them,
and the foeman bade them yield
And their onward steps were hidden
by the smoke upon the field;
And his heart grew faint within him
as he murmured "I must fail,"
For the foeman presses ever, and his cohorts conquer all."
But the woman, loyal ever, only whispered "You shall win;
You shall snatch the victor's laurel
from the battle strife and din."
Then again he struggled onward,
though his wounds were gaping wide,
Listening ever for a whisper ,"I am
battl'ing by your side."
Struggling onward, struggling ever,
though the mists were thick about;
Beaten downward by the foeman,
lost in mists of gloom and doubt.
Still he heard that gentle whisper that
his spirit must obey
Til he reached the golden summits
past the borderland of gray.
Then the world, as wise as ever, said
"Behold a conquering knight,"
For it never heard the whisper that had urged him to the height.
Call it fable, fable only; lo, the world
is full of these,
Men who struggle onward, upward,
till the splendid prize they seize;
Men who stumble, stumble often,
dazed or stricken in the din,
But to rise and falter onward at the whisper "You shall win."
And we name them knights and heroes of the battle and the fray,
Knowing not that there behind each
is the one who showed the way;
Just some little, loyal woman, forcing
back the tears that blur—
You may honor your brave hero; I will sing a song to her.

The Start

In married life is generally made on an equal footing of health in man and wife. But how soon, in many cases, the wife loses the start and fades in face and fails in flesh, while her husband grows even more rugged and robust.

There is one chief cause for this wifely failure and that is, the failure of the womanly health. When there is irregularity or an unhealthy drain, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness, the general health is soon impaired.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"A little over a year ago I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Elizabeth J. Fisher, of Diana, W. Va. "You advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I did and with the most happy result. I was troubled with female weakness and bearing-down pains. Had a very bad pain nearly all the time in my left side, nervousness and headache. Was so weak I could hardly walk across my room. Could not sit up only just a little while at a time. My husband got me some of Dr. Pierce's medicine and I began its use. Before I had taken two bottles I was able to help do my work. I used three bottles in all and it cured me. Now I do all my housework. It is the best medicine I ever used."

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
