BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile on and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to women sent free. Address

MOTHER'S FRIEND

ATLANTA, GA.

East Oregonian

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1903.

"We need not constantly appeal to patriotism to keep the American people bravely patriotic," says General Nelson A. Miles in an interview in the New York World. "I have had experience in wars and I have never found Americans lacking in prompt patriotism or in fighting qualities in any worthy cause. There is no necessity to stir the passions of Americans in order to be sure that they will be patriotic. They love and appreciate their liberties and will maintain and defend them against all enemies."

Not all the Floods are in Kansas. The record of destruction made by the Delaware during the past three days will make the Kaw and the Missouri green with envy.

Russia's announcement last Saturday that war would be declared against Japan on Monday, was premature. It requires two to make a bargain and in the case of the division of China, it will require all of Europe and America.

The Baker City Democrat truthfully says, in regard to the irrigation spirit in Umatilla county: "There is a substantial push behind irrigation in Umatilla county and there is great interest being shown in the coming convention to be held in Pendleton. The Democrat admires the energy displayed and is only sorry that Baker county people are sleeping on their opportunities in an irrigation way. No community can hope to be favored unless proper spirit is shown in presenting its advantages and right to be recognized. Umatilla county people are a unit, and if we mistake not will accomplish substantial results."

The City and State, one of the leading Philadelphia dailies, expresses the following ringing sentiment in praise of Tom L. Johnson: "Tom Johnson has become one of the best known men of the day. There are newspapers that extract much evident gratification from the practice of denouncing Mr. Johnson as a demagogue, Bryanite, populist and selfish irrigationist or protectionist or anything else that happens to come handy. Judging the man from his public record—and this is all that City and State has to estimate him by—he has been exceptionally blunt, straightforward and honest in his political methods, and his aims have not apparently been unworthy. It would be more convincing, where such abuse is dealt out, if the grounds for it were specified."

The rebuke which Dr. Vincent justly delivered to the citizens and voters of Pendleton in saying that there could be no satisfaction to a man of a pronounced policy in serving a town which was so unmindful of the duties of citizenship that only one-fourth of the voters registered for a municipal election, should wake up the taxpayers and voters of the city to a sense of their duty. Elections are expressions of the people, and every man should vote. It seems to disregard the importance of the ballot to such an extent that they stay at home, refuse to vote and decline to take a hand in making laws under which they must live, it is no wonder laws are wrong and abuses creep into governments. The proud manhood of every citizen should spur him to exercise his rights, have a voice in making laws and to be a spoke in the wheel of society.

President Roosevelt has called a special session of congress to meet on Monday, November 9. The failure of the Panama canal treaty to find acceptance at the hands of the Colombian government has stimulated the necessity for this action. The Panama route was thrust upon the people as a means of delaying the construction of a canal. Its adoption by congress as the more feasible of the two routes was a nice bit of railroad diplomacy, which had in view the delay and possibly the defeat of any certain means of reducing transportation rates across the continent, or of transferring the traffic to the cheaper water route. If the people could see through this thin scheme to keep them in bondage to the existing monopolies, they would not be long in electing men who would build the Nicaragua canal. Had the same time, money and energy been expended on the Nicaragua route as has been spent in scheming about the Panama route the canal would be half done. There are no complications, no costly concessions to buy, no enormous debts to assume, no exortionate annual rentals to pay, no international provisos and handicaps on the Nicaragua route, as on the Panama scheme. The government of Nicaragua stands waiting to deliver the canal privileges to the United States, but there is nothing in it for the grafters. That's why the route is not feasible.

ARRAIGNS HIS PARTY.

Governor La Follette, of Wisconsin, delivered a speech at Colfax, Ia., recently. The Wisconsin governor is a republican, but he made bold to warn his hearers against corporate greed which he declared is drawing tighter the fetters of commercial slavery about the neck of the people.

Governor La Follette disclaimed any intention to excite the prejudice or invoke unfair judgment on the part of his auditors, but he said that "a deep conviction impels me to appeal to your patriotism, your love of liberty of the country, to meet the impending crisis. We owe it to the living as well as the dead to make honest answer to this question: Is our government of city, state and nation thoroughly representative of the will of the people?"

Governor La Follette's address on this occasion should be read by every American citizen. Pointing to the fact that one of the causes of the revolution proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence was the imposition of taxes without consent, Governor La Follette said:

"Today great aggregations of corporate wealth buy immunity from taxation in our legislatures, and throw the burden which they should bear on to the individual taxpayers of every municipality and state. Betrayed by this representative, the individual taxpayer is overtaxed for the benefit of the corporation.

"Taxation without representation is as much a crime against just and equal government in 1903 as it was in 1776. Government by corporations is as destructive of the liberties of the people of this country as the exercise of the same power by a foreign monarch. The arbitrary control of the price of coal and iron and corn and wheat and beef—whether by an exortionate transportation rate or by a monster combination, is a more absolute tyranny of the American people than chartering the army of King George upon the American colonists without their consent.

"There can be no such thing as commercial slavery and individual freedom. We may have the form of the ballot, we may have the semblance of democracy, but industrial servitude means political servitude. Monopoly in transportation of coal and iron and the food products makes a pretense and a mockery of political freedom."

Governor La Follette declared that the time is ripe for a new declaration of American independence. He said:

"We are building up colossal forms, granting unlimited power to corporate organization, and consolidating and massing together business interests as never before in the commercial history of the world—but the people are losing control of their own government. Its foundations are being sapped and its integrity destroyed.

"What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? What shall it profit a nation if it gain unfold wealth and its people lose their liberty?"

One of the most emphatic arguments in favor of the repeal of the timber and stone act and the desert land act is seen in the action of Great Britain in now buying back the priceless domain of Ireland for the impoverished people, through the Wyndam land bill. The land was sold to lords, corporations, companies, and inherited in vast estates in early days, until now the people are virtual serfs and the land is owned by non-residents. In order to furnish homes and enable the people of Ireland to become and remain self-supporting, the British parliament now seeks to purchase from these landholders the priceless areas, belonging by right to the people, in order that the government may sell it to the residents of Ireland on much the same plan that the United States government sells the reclaimed lands to the people through the national irrigation fund. If the absorption of the public domain in this country is not checked, the same condition that now prevails in Ireland, will threaten this country in less than fifty years. Fearing that these laws will be repealed in the near future, the great railroad and colonization companies are now sending hundreds of men into the great timber belts of Northern Idaho and Montana to locate as much as possible of the remaining public domain before the repeal comes. The lieu land base should be abolished, and the holders of lands within reservations paid a reasonable price for their claims and the remaining public land held for the people.

The city of Pendleton should consider the proposition of installing a paid fireman, add new equipment to the fire apparatus, and make preparations to meet the growth of the city with adequate protection. Money would be saved to the taxpayer in lower insurance rates if the efficiency of the fire company were increased. It is idle talk to say that Pendleton, a city of 7,000 people, to which was added this season a half million dollars in improvements, cannot keep one paid fireman in service, a team and chemical engine. Does she expect to protect 10,000 people with the same expense that was required in a burg of 2,000? What is progress, anyway? This same argument has been used to defeat the enlargement of the public school facilities and it will be heard on every occasion when it demands an advance step. It cannot meet with the approval of the taxpayer who expects to see taxes decreased by increased fire protection, and by the addition of wealth, invited to the city by the excellent conditions found here.

The O. R. & N. is gathering data for another edition of "Oregon, Washington and Idaho," under the able supervision of A. L. Craig, general passenger agent, and Rinaldo M. Hall, advertising manager. This hand book of Oregon resources has done more to bring a permanent class of homeseekers into the state than all other books, pamphlets and circulars on that subject, combined, and every citizen should make a special effort to furnish all the information possible or any subject relating to the outlook of Oregon, in any of her varied industries. The citizens of Umatilla county are especially requested to favor the editors of this book with all the farm, livestock and fruit figures and facts at hand. The story means more homes and more wealth.

Governor Bailey, of Kansas, is gaining the name of the "non-pardoning governor," and the title is one which any governor should be willing to wear. Where a jury of his peers finds a man guilty of crime, and a just judge sentences him, in accordance with that verdict, it seems that the ends of justice have been met, and the governor should decline to set aside the punishment thus fixed. It is highly commendable in a man to possess the virtue of sympathy, but it should not be a means of defeating justice, no matter how much it may be.

The editors of Oregon should attend the coming meeting of the Press Association at Salem, on October 22, 23, 24, and meet each other face to face. If there are any duels to be fought, there is the place to fight them and not in the editorial columns, which belong to the patrons of papers, and must be used in pushing the interests of the country. Instead of holding the next meeting in a small country village, it should come to Eastern Oregon, where the greatest development of the state in future is to take place.

The decision of the state land board to sell the magnificent tract of range country in Southern Malheur county, to the highest bidder, will meet with approval of the people of Oregon. The ridiculously low price of $2.50 per acre for this well-watered, well-located body of range, should not be accepted by the state. It is worth more to the people than this. If the foundation of a dozen princely fortunes, it paid for at the rate of $10 per acre and the state should have something near its true worth in parting with it.

Since the advent of the Mormons into Union county, "baby day" at the county fair eclipses all other events.

LOVE, HONOR AND OBEY.

A few days ago a famous and stunning beauty abruptly terminated her own wedding ceremony by refusing to repeat the word "Obey" after the officiating clergyman. In consequence she is still unmarried and her action has set the East by the ears. In the discussion pro and con (and it is truly remarkable what stand the women have taken) Father John Talbot Smith of the Catholic church was appealed to. He has given his dictum in no uncertain words.

To tell the truth, he said, he did not think it is a practical question at all, this one of eliminating the word obey. It is in the nature of things that the man should command and woman should obey, no matter how many statutory provisions you make, simply because a man likes to command and a woman likes to obey.

"What is the use of statutes against a natural proclivity or condition? You can see the wisdom of the church in omitting this word from its ritual.

"A woman who refuses to obey might please her fancy by the mere declination to follow a custom, yet she might be the quickest to obey her husband.

"That is where nature is stronger than ideas. Ideas may become fads, existing for a short while, but nature goes right on.

"I notice that men are glad to get the women they want to marry and the women are equally glad to marry, obey or not, regardless of all fads and fancies."—S. F. Call.

MAKING BEET SUGAR.

The beets fried from the tons of dirt, are delivered at the factory in cars and wagons. Here they are weighed and samples tested to ascertain the percentage of sugar in them. From the beet sheds where they are stored, they are passed by means of water flumes into a washing machine in the factory and thoroughly cleaned before being sliced. The slices are placed in a series of tanks where diffusion takes place by means of hot water being passed through them for a certain length of time. This sweet water is then treated with lime and carbonic acid gas for the purpose of purification. It is then put through filter presses, and the water evaporated in large wrought iron vessels made especially for the purpose.

It is then filtered again and boiled in huge vacuum pans, where crystallization takes place. These are adhering to these crystals small quantities of syrup or molasses which are detached by means of centrifugals and a process by which the crystals are washed in pure clean water. They are then delivered to the granulator or dryer, where they become hardened and dry, ready to be packed in sacks and shipped to market.

There is no difference between beet and cane sugar when it has reached the fine granulated state. The fact of the matter is that two-thirds of all the sugar of the world is made from beets, and only about one-third from cane.

John King, Charles Rain and Geo. Iversa, the men in jail at Beatrice, Neb., have been identified as the alleged robbers of the Burlington train near St. Joseph, Mo., about two weeks ago.

MAY NOW EXPLAIN.

During the Boer war Lord Roberts wrote to Mr. Steyn of the Orange Free State, under date of March 11, 1900, complaining that expansive bullets had been found in Cronje's laager. In that communication Lord Roberts said:

"Such breaches of the recognized usages of war and of the Geneva convention are a disgrace to any civilized power. A copy of this telegram has been sent to my government with the request that it may communicate to the neutral powers."

Regarding the incident, a writer in the New York World says: "Mr. Steyn explained that the bullets in question had been taken from British kopjes. Now it turns out that this ammunition with expanding bullets had been manufactured in England before the war to the extent of 60,000,000 rounds. That there was every intention of using the standard cartridge in Africa all over the world, but that its production was stopped because it was found that the dum-dums for the Lee-Metford had been made."

It was condemned by the Hague convention on grounds of humanity, but it had to be supplied to the British troops in South African because at one time there were only two or three boxes of any other kind on hand. All that is needed now to make the story complete is an apology from Lord Roberts to Mr. Steyn, but the wire seems to be busy in that direction."—The Commoner.

SKIN DISEASES

THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is relaxing and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance. Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. Then will follow the general run of blood troubles, such as Boils and Eruptions, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. Our skin is to us what our face is to our friends. If you have a bad skin it makes us think you have a bad face. If you have a good skin it makes us think you have a good face. Our skin remains smooth and soft and healthy if we keep our blood free from impurities. Write us if you desire medical advice or any special information. This will cost you nothing.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salves and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cure performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.
