The New Northwest.

THURSDAY.....FEBRUARY 5, 1880.

MY LITTLE WIFE.

She isn't very pretty
(So say my lady friends);
She's neither wise nor witty,
With verbal odds and ends.

No fleeting freaks of Fashion
Affront her fancy run;
She's never in a passion—
Except a tender one.

Her voice is low and cooing;
She listens more than speaks;
While others talk of doing,
The duty near she seeks.

It may be but to furnish
The sideboard's scanty plate,
Or but with bread to furnish
The beggar at the gate.

So I who see what graces
She sheds on lowly life,
To Fashion's fairest faces
Prefer my little wife.

And though at her with pity
The city dames may mutter,
Who deem her hardly pretty,—
And sadly out of style,

To me she seems a creature
So musically sweet,
I would not change one feature—
One curve from crown to feet.

And if I could be never
Her lover and her mate,
I think I'd be forever
The beggar at the gate.

THE RETURN OF THE DEAD.

BY EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

Low hung the moon, the wind was still,
As slow I climbed the midnight hill,
And passed the ruined garden over,
And gained the barred and silent door,
Sad welcomed by the lingering rose
That, startled, shed its waning snows.

The bolt flew back with sudden clang,
I entered, wall and rafter rang;
Down dropped the moon, and clear and high
September's wind went wailing by;
"Alas!" I sighed, "the love and glow
That lit this mansion long ago!"

And groping up the threshold stair,
And past the chambers cold and bare,
I sought the room where, cold of yore,
We sat the blazing fire before,
And heard the tales a father told,
Till glow was gone and evening old.

Where were those rosy children three?
The boy beneath the moaning sea,
Sweet Margaret, does where violets hide,
Slept tranquil by that father's side,
And I, alone, a pilgrim still,
Was left to climb the midnight hill.

My hand was on the latch, when lo!
'Twas lifted from within! I know
I was not wild, and could I dream?
Within, I saw the wood-fire gleam,
And smiling, waiting, beckoning there,
My father in his ancient chair!

Oh, the long rapture, perfect first,
As close he clasped me to his breast!
Put back the braids the winds had blown,
Said I had like my mother grown,
And bade me tell him, frank as she,
All the long years had brought to me.

Then, by his side, his hand in mine,
I tasted joy serene, divine,
And saw my griefs unfolding fair
As flowers, in June's enchanted air,
So warm his words, so soft his sighs,
Such tender lovelight in his eyes.

"O Death!" I cried, "if these be thine,
For me the asphodels entwine,
Fold me within thy perfect calm;
Leave on my lips the bliss of balm,
And let me slumber, pillowed low,
With Margaret, where the violets blow."

And still we talked. O'er cloudy bars
Orion bore his pomp of stars;
Within, the wood-fire fainter glowed,
Weird on the wall the shadows showed,
Till, in the east, a pallor born,
Told midnight melting into morn.

Then, nearer to his side I drew,
When lo! the cock, remorseless, crew!
A glance—a sigh—we did not speak—
Fond kisses on my brow and cheek,
A sudden sense of rapture flown,
And in the dawn I sat, alone!

* * * * * * *

'Tis true, his rest this many a year
Has made the village church-yard dear;
'Tis true, his stone is graven fair,
"Here lies, remote from mortal care."
I cannot tell how this may be,
But well I know he talked with me.

And oft, when other fires are low,
I sat within the midnight glow,
My head upon his shoulder leant,
His tender glances downward bent,
And win the dream to sweet delay,
Till stars and shadows yield to day.

The Land of Short Memories.

Georgie meant to be a good boy, but he very seldom did anything that he was told to do. He nearly always forgot it. Once, when his sister May was very sick, he was sent after some medicine for her. So he started in a great hurry; but he met Fred Smith with his dog, and Fred coaxed him to go and coast "just once" down the long Red Hill. Then he forgot all about May and the medicine, until it was quite dark, and he felt so sorry and ashamed that he ran home, and crept up the back stair-way to bed, hungry and lonely and cold.

By and by he fell asleep, and when he awoke he was in a new and strange place. He found himself in a house which was only partially covered by a roof, and the rain came in through the uncovered part and dropped upon his bed. Georgie sat up and looked around him. There was a fire-place in the room, besides some wood and kindlings, which the poor, shivering little fellow eyed very wistfully, thinking that some one might perhaps light a fire. It was very chilly, and his teeth chattered. There was a wee old woman sitting in the chimney corner, and Georgie spoke to her.

"What is it you want, Jimmie?" she said.

"Will you please tell me what your name is, and where I am?" he asked.

"My name—well, really, I forget it just now," she replied, "but you are in the Land of Short Memories—that, I am aware of!"

"But what shall I call you?" asked Georgie.

"Oh, call me Mite! That will do as well as any other name till you forget it, Henry."

"My name is Georgie."

"Is it? Well, I will try and recollect it. 'Tom,' you said it was, didn't you?"

"No, I didn't!" retorted Georgie, getting cross with the old lady, for he thought she meant to tease him.

"There, there!" cried Mite, "the doctors said you must not get excited, or else that you must, I forget which. Do you want anything to eat?"

"Yes, I should like to have some gruel."

"I will make you some," said she. "I have a nice fire here, or I should have, only that I seem to have forgotten to light the kindlings."

While she was beating around, busy with the gruel, Georgie lay quite still, looking out where there was no roof at the blue sky, which he could now see, for it had ceased raining.

"Why don't you have the roof cover the whole of your house?" asked Georgie of the old lady.

"The rest of the roof is somewhere around," said she. "I guess the workchiks forgot to put it on. Now, here is your nice gruel all ready for you."

"Why, it is cold!" exclaimed the disappointed Georgie, who was quite hungry.

"Sure enough; I forgot to boil it!" said the old lady.

"And I don't see anything in the bowl but water!"

"Dear me! Dear me!" said Mite. "I must have forgotten to put any meal in it!"

Georgie now began to cry.

"Don't cry, don't cry, Johnnie," said Mite, "I will boil a chicken for you, by and by, if I don't forget it. Here are the doctors coming to see you now, and you must sit up and talk with them."

Pretty soon two doctors came in, and one of them asked Mite if she felt better to-day.

"Yes, I think I do," said she.

"Did you take the medicine I ordered for you?" asked the other doctor.

"I suppose I did, but I don't remember," answered Mite.

Then the doctors felt her pulse, looked at her tongue, and said she must take some salts, and went away. When they had gone, Georgie began to cry more loudly than before.

"What is the matter, Fred?" demanded Mite.

"My name is not Fred, I tell you!" screamed Georgie.

"Never mind; I always forget your name, so I call you by anything I can think of. But tell me what makes you cry."

"Why, I am sick, and I thought the doctors were coming to see me!"

"Bless my stars!" exclaimed the old lady, "sure enough, I was not the one that was sick! I meant to have remembered and told the doctors that they came to see you; but I forgot when they looked at my tongue. I'll run after them and call them back!"

So, away went Mite, and was gone over so long. When she came back, she said she could not find the doctors anywhere, and everybody had forgotten where they lived, so that no one could go after them. "I'm sorry," said Mite, "but it can't be helped, for you know we live in the Land of Short Memories."

Then Georgie cried still more bitterly. "I wish I could go home," he said. "I am sure I shall die here! I wish I could go home! I would never forget to mind mother again!"

As soon as he had said this, he heard a familiar voice pleading, "Ma, mayn't I go for Georgie's medicine? I won't forget to bring it!"

Georgie turned slowly in his little bed and saw his sister May. Next, his eyes rested on his mother, who looked very pale and thin, but sweet and smiling.

"Oh, ma, have I come back to you?" he cried, with a sigh.

"We hope so, Geoegie," replied his mother. "You have had a bad fever, just like May's, and been very sick, but you soon will get well now."

"Did May die, because I forgot her medicine?"

"No. Father came home and got it for her; she is well now, and has helped take care of you."

"Mother," said Georgie, very earnestly, "I am going to try not to forget things any more!"

And Georgie did try. When he became well, and was sent upon errands, he always thought of Mite, and the gruel, and the doctors, and the Land of Short Memories, where he went in his fever-dreams, and he was cured of the very bad habit of forgetting his duty.—St. Nicholas for January.

BEFORE AND AFTER.—"Save me, doctor, and I'll give you a check for a thousand dollars." The doctor gave him a remedy that soon eased him, and he called out, "Keep at it, doctor, and I'll give you a check for five hundred dollars." In an hour more he was able to sit up, and he calmly remarked, "Doctor, I feel like giving you a fifty dollar bill." When the doctor was ready to go, the sick man was up and dressed, and he followed the physician to the door and said, "Say, doctor, send in your bill the first of the month." When just six months had been added to Time's bosom, the doctor sent in a bill amounting to five dollars. He was pressed to cut it down to three, and, after so doing, he sued to get it, got judgment, and the patient put in a stay of execution.

Man is the only animal on the earth that has used his capacity for loving to degrade, and brutalize himself and his offspring. And he has been enabled to do this through his possession of superior powers of reasoning. Hence the great importance of instruction and guidance, for, though we must admit that man has done this in ignorance for ages, and is therefore entitled to all charity, nature knows no charity and avenges herself upon ignorant and wise alike when they violate her laws.—Charles Ellis.

Animal and vegetable life keep pace with the human, as can be seen in the fineness of texture; the neatly-turned limbs of the horse, the pointed ear, the glistening eye, all speak of finer development; and we see in the vegetable kingdom corresponding improvements, but in every case the change is from the coarser to the finer, from the unsightly to the beautiful. The mind of man is affected in a similar manner.

What could be more intensely American than the act of the Yankee who, on visiting an Italian convent and being shown a lamp which had not been permitted to go out for more than five centuries, quickly stepped up to it and blew it out, with the remark, "Well, I rather guess it's out now."

A meddlesome old woman was sneering at a young mother's awkwardness with her infant, and said: "I declare, a woman never ought to have a baby unless she knows how to hold it." "Nor a tongue, either," quietly responded the young mother.

A petrified woman has been discovered near Halifax. It is suspected that her husband gave her $10 without her asking, to get a new bonnet, and she was petrified with astonishment.

One of the ancient English nobility had these words inscribed over his gate. They are worth copying for our own use: "They say. What do they say? Let them say."

"Did Christ revenge himself upon his enemies?" was asked at a Sunday school. "No, but he is going to!" was answered by one of the promising young pupils.

No one need get discouraged if he only remembers that he will always be worth $25 anyway—to medical students.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN,

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES,

HAS RETURNED AFTER AN EXTENSIVE tour of the Eastern States for the past four months. The Doctor visited all the principal medical institutions in the large cities of the United States, and comes back with all the modern methods, instruments and appliances known to the most scientific men in the profession. The Doctor has also brought charts and manikins to illustrate his lectures.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN has been 13 years lecturing on the Laws of Life and Health. In his private and public lectures he has taught men and women the true system of life, how to be healthy and happy, if they would only be guided by his wise counsel. But all cannot hear his delightful and instructive lectures, nor can he tell everything necessary for suffering humanity to know from the public rostrum before a promiscuous audience. There remains much to be learned from him, as his experience extends over broad fields of active professional life. This knowledge so necessary to the welfare of sufferers can only be gleaned by private Professional Consultation at his office. His experience in the various parts of Europe and America gives him such opportunities of learning the delicate diseases which the human family are prone to, their mode of treatment and permanent cure, as no other physician on the Pacific Coast can claim. He has not only treated these diseases most successfully, but has made them a life study, as a few moments' consultation will prove.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHŒA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the medical profession.

IT IS TRUE

That persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty, and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Those who call in time upon DR. PAUL M. BRENAN need have no fear but what he will restore them to perfect health and vigor, make their bodies pure and their minds content, if they will only follow his advice and treatment.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail. No Quack Nostrums used; no slop treatment; no false promises. Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally.

All Surgical Operations performed.

AYER'S AGUE CURE,

For the Speedy Relief of Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, etc., and, indeed, all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons,

℞ Has been widely used during the last twenty-five years in the treatment of these distressing diseases, and with such unvarying success that it has gained the reputation of being infallible. The shakes, or chills, once broken by it, do not return until the disease is contracted again. This has made it an accepted remedy, and trusted specific, for the Fever and Ague of the West and the Chills and Fever of the South. Ayer's Ague Cure eradicates the noxious poison from the system, and leaves the patient as well as before the attack. It thoroughly expels the disease, so that no Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dysentery or Debility follows the cure. Indeed, where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels have occurred from Miasmatic Poison, it removes the cause of them and they disappear. Not only is it an effectual cure, but, if taken occasionally by patients exposed to malaria, it will expel the poison and protect them from attack. Travelers and temporary residents in Fever and Ague localities are thus enabled to defy the disease. The General Debility which is so apt to ensue from continued exposure to Malaria and Miasma has no speedier remedy. For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy. Prepared by
