TURKEY TRADING SLACK

ROSEBURG, Ore.—The turkey market practically was closed here as there were no birds coming in. There were perhaps 300 birds sold in the county this morning, prices being 26 & 28 cents, showing a tendency to weaken. Nearly all birds for the Thanksgiving trade already have been delivered to the dealers and the Umpqua valley will ship between one-third and one-half of the usual amount.

The growers refused to kill anything except fully matured and prime birds, and as these were very few the greater part of the turkeys were kept for the Christmas holidays.

with poor material and has worked all season on the fundamentals of the game with the result that at the close of the season, meaning right now, his team will be in top shape for the battle of their lives.

Rest Helps Baker.

Then again La Grande had a hard battle at Pendleton just five days ago and the Baker team has had a two week layoff. All these factors will have a bearing in the final reckoning.

The Tigers will start the game in the Pendleton game with one exception and that is the substitution of Glass in the backfield for McKennon calling signals.

Sherwood and Kerr will start at half back positions, Hummelt at full, Webb, Johnson or Strand, ends, Kramer and Kludt tackles, Cullen center and Hughes and Bauman guards. Sherwood, Webb, Hummelt and Kramer will be playing their last game for the blue and white. Among the probable substitutions might be mentioned, Price for Kerr, Gwilliams for Cullen, Larson and Barbeau for Kramer and Kludt, Spautz for Bauman and McKennon for Sherwood.

The game will start at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the high school athletic field.

Tide of Emigrants From Japan Turns To South America

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The economic future of Peru being largely dependent on immigration, because the native population is small, the country today takes an especial interest in the foreigners who journey from their own lands to settle within the boundaries of the Peruvian republic.

The question of the coming of Japanese has attracted attention, particularly as the Japanese colonies have lately increased. Also it is reported here that a company has been formed in Japan to encourage emigration to both Peru and Brazil. There is a feeling locally that the government has sought to regulate immigration from Japan; that within Peruvian borders Peru should safeguard her own interests. The ability of the Japanese successfully to engage in various enterprises, and in some cases to undersell native merchants, coupled with the fact that they are clannish and slow in assimilating the customs of the country, has not made them popular here. Nevertheless a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation between Peru and Japan, signed in Washington in 1875 and subsequently revoked, recently has been renewed.

Peru has in the past tried to stimulate immigration from Italy and Germany, whose people have been found especially adaptable to the needs of the country and who make good Peruvian citizens. A continuation of these efforts would, it is believed, find popular support.

There are today no restrictions upon the entry of Japanese into Peru, yet remarkably few have so far come here. Reliable estimates place the present number at 10,000. Peru has a total population of 4,500,000. Lima counts about 6,000 Japanese residents, the others living in the provinces.

Unlike the Chinese, whose entrance into the country is restricted, and who, in many cases, are employed on the various ranches as coolie laborers, the Japanese are both progressive and enterprising. Many of them are engaged in lucrative business ventures, principally grocery and wine stores, furniture and wood working establishments, coffee shops, restaurants, barber shops, shirt makers, bakery establishments and general trade merchants. In very rare instances do the Japanese in Peru engage in menial forms of labor. In the city of Lima grocery sotres especially are controlled by them, and they also control the only rubber manufacturing plant in the republic.

Regarding recent reports that the recall of the Peruvian minister at Tokio was connected with the immigration of Japanese to Peru, information obtained in reliable quarters indicates such was not the case. The minister asked for leave of absence and transfer to another post.

evolutionary origin of the human race.

And in this attempt he claims, thereby directly challenging William Jennings Bryan, that the theory of evolution not only does not contradict or undermine religious teachings, but places them on a firmer, surer foundation.

"If Bryan would drop over to the museum and talk things over with us for half an hour without passion, we would present him with the evidence," Hrdlicka says. "If he has any evidence tending to disprove ours he will be conferring a great benefit on us by letting us know about it.

"Broadminded clergymen receive tolerantly the evidence of the descent of man. Unfortunately, they are not the militant ones, who preach against us without knowing what we have to say."

President Coolidge's first visit of the Alleghenies as president will be a trip to Chicago, early in December, when he will make two addresses. The keynotes of these speeches are expected to be farm legislation and tax reduction, both of prime interest in the country's agricultural metropolis.

Charley Dawes, doubtless, will be at the head of the committee to make the president welcome.

FARMERS IN COUNTY ARE DECREASING

gation system for the valley and a plan for more people.

Less Farmers Now.

"It is a matter we do not like to think of," he said, "but it is nevertheless true that we have fewer farmers in Union county than we had ten years ago."

During the dinner hour the Imbler high school orchestra furnished excellent jazz music. When the program was announced the ever-popular Chamber of Commerce quartet composed of George S. Barnie, G. L. Dutton, Sherwood Williams and Elmer I. Stoddard gave the opening number only to find a half dozen encores laid away for them. They responded generously and when the time came to close the meeting the quartet once more was asked to sing, greatly to the pleasure of all.

than we should have if the livestock and dairy interests are to be assured of feed at living prices. Although the crop was good in 1923 and a large amount of grain hay was harvested, not much hay was carried over. The drouth during the past year and the resulting light crop seems to point to very high hay prices and probably some thin livestock before spring.

In connection with seeding it should be remembered that little grass seed is grown in the county. Our local alfalfa seed crop is much less than usual this year. Most of our Grimm seed will have to be imported from other states and probably a large per cent of the common or American type of alfalfa. Common alfalfa gives good yields until it begins to die out. In most sections of the valley Grimm alfalfa maintains a good stand long after common alfalfa has killed out. Where it does not kill out it is poor economy to buy cheap seed as the longer life of the meadow will repay the slight increase in cost several times over. Timothy seed, alsike clover seed and yellow sweet clover seed can be purchased from farmers in the county. Other grass seeds will have to be imported.

Business in England Only 5 Percent Under 1913 Figures

LONDON (AP)—Great Britain is today earning much more money than of late years, and in 1923 its income from productive power, and services rendered to the outside world, totalled around $17,350,000,000 or $400 per annum for every man, woman and child in the country. This represents an increase of $1,650,000,000 on the 1922 figures, says the Economist.

It is calculated that British business in 1923 was working at 95 per cent of its 1913 capacity, against 88 per cent in 1922, and only 80 per cent in 1921.

Stray Bullet Hits Motorist.

PAISLEY, Ore.—A stray bullet, thought to have come from a rifle of a hunter, pierced the windshield of an automobile and struck Geo. Bence, a road contractor and ex-county roadmaster of Lake county, as he was driving on the highway. The bullet apparently had spent its force and the injury inflicted was slight.

PRUNE PRICES FIRMER

SALEM, Ore.—The influx of outside buyers has caused the price of prune 50s to advance fully a cent a pound. Growers who a week ago were receiving four cents a pound for 50-60s are now demanding five cents. The price on 50-50s has advanced a half cent. This information was today sent to San Francisco by the Robert C. Paulus companw, with headquarters in Salem.

Mr. Paulus said practically all of the prunes left unsold are 40s and 50s and that these probably will be cleaned up within the next few weeks.
