FOREST FIRES SPREAD TODAY

cording to Nelson F. Macduff, supervisor of the forest. There are no new fires reported.

FIRE NEAR WALLOWA

WALLOWA, Ore. July 14 (Special)—A large fire has been burning in the cut-over area in the woods north of here during the past several days. A large fire was also reported from the Powwatka Ridge section early in the week. Before being put under control this fire is said to have burned over 100 acres of fine timber.

The fire danger is becoming great here at this time as grass and other vegetation in the woods is rapidly drying up.

MANY BLAZES IN OREGON

PORTLAND Ore. July 14 (AP)—Forty fires were started by a dry electric storm in the Colville national forest in Northeastern Washington, and only four of the fires were under control today. Reports to this effect were received by the U. S. forestry office here. The forest supervisor reported he had drafted all available men, numbering about 200, and would send to Spokane for more. Fires were reported also burning on the Colville Indian reservation.

The fire which destroyed the Deer Island logging company camp on Carcass creek in Northwestern Oregon, bit into the timber of the Clark Wilson Lumber company, and the Henry Turrish company, before it was stopped. Fire fighters reporting today indicated the fire was under control.

Two fires in the vicinity of Mitchell Point, on the Columbia highway, in North Central Oregon were still burning. One of the fires, fanned by an east wind, escaped from the fire fighters after having been completely surrounded.

FIRE CONTROLLED.

MEDFORD, Ore., July 14 (AP).—One forest fire in Jackson county is out of control, according to a report of the state forestry office this noon. It is burning on Dudley mountain.

A fire that broke out in the Eagle point district late Tuesday afternoon was brought under control early this morning after it had covered 1200 acres, mostly scrub and jack pines. The causes are unknown.

15 FIRES BURNING.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 14, (AP).—On Vancouver Island, 275 miles long and reaching out into the Pacific ocean from off this city, 15 brush and forest fires burned today. Cooler weather and dying winds aided control of flames, but elsewhere in British Columbia little improvement was noted in a situation that became acute Friday.

Fire that Monday destroyed a logging camp at Lewis Lake, near Stillwater, 135 miles north of here, was reported the forst in the province today. It had spread over an area nine miles long and two miles wide. Augmented bands were fighting to save green timber.

More than 100 logging camps in the province had shut down and others were operating only early in the morning, so as to reduce fire hazard.

La Grande Sends Flag

Mrs. Rosemary Schenck, a defendant, continues to receive messages of comfort from relief corps chapters in the state. Monday an American flag and a bouquet came from La Grande and yesterday the women of Newport sent a bouquet and flag.

DECORATING OF HOME IS EXPLAINED

as with much. The only effect that entails a great deal of expense is one of elegance.

It would be quite impossible—and unfair to Mr. Jakway—to summarize the wealth of information that he gave in his "color" talk to homemakers. Every thought was presented from a number of different angles, and each new presentation was embellished with new and valuable hints.

Tones and Colors.

He dealt extensively with tones and color harmonies in relation to this type of architecture and that; worked out on the platform, with rugs and draperies and two or three pieces of furniture that chanced to be there, some decorative schemes after the three rules of color harmonies: analogous, complimentary and tri-chormatic.

Explains Terms.

"An analogous harmony," he explained, "is one where the colors employed are those of blood relation—they appear in the same arc of the spectrum. Usually they are chosen from the warm side. Invariably, they must be accented with a pure complimentary color for relief.

"Two opposite colors are employed for the livelier complimentary harmony, remembering always that one color must be more important than the other.

"To choose three colors for a tri-chromatic harmony, an equilateral triangle may be imposed on the color circle and the corners will indicate the proper hues. Again, it must be remembered that one color should predominate, and the others used in varied proportion."

Laying a foundation for his furniture talk this afternoon, Mr. Jakway gave a short discussion of balance in regard to furniture arrangement, and emphasized—with the amused approval of his audience—the need for hanging pictures flat against the wall and laying rugs parallel to doorways and major furniture pieces.

Lines Help Figure

Just as the decorator dwelt on the redemption of "sick" houses, so Miss Cooley, in her dressmaking demonstration, gave attention to the concealment of physical imperfections with clever arrangements of the lines of one's dress.

"Don't decry your lack of perfection," she cautioned her hearers. "Perhaps your very irregularities can be emphasized to make you more fascinating."

The secret, as she revealed it, rests in the adjustment of seams to hide the shelves.

Dresses these days, being designed for the masculine figure, present many difficulties for the woman who follows the feminine tendency toward narrow shoulders and broader hips. But if she makes a knowing use of seams, attracting the eyes from the bulges toward her more fortunate straightnesses, she can camophlage and at the same time perhaps make her appearance even more interesting.

Speaks Tomorrow

Miss Cooley will fit a dress and make such alterations as usually present the most difficulty when she speaks on "Edges and Shelves" at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

She gave some extra-program assistance yesterday to several women who brought discarded hats for her suggestions, and even helped with the cleaning and renovation in several instances.

Mrs. McClean, first on the program this afternoon, continued her demonstration of the table service and entertainment practices that found such a happy reception with her audience yesterday.

With handsome diningroom furniture lent for the occasion by the W. H. Bohnenkamp company from whom also came the decorative chair and small table used by Mr. Jakway yesterday, a diningroom was improvised on the stage. China pottery and glassware were furnished by Richardson's Art Store, while the silverware was from Peare & Son's. There were flowers for the table, through the kindness of Clarks Florists. The groceries that Mrs. McClean and her assistant, Miss Grace Bogue, used for the cooking, came from Pattison's store through the courtesy of the La Grande Grocery company.

Carr's store provided Mr. Jakway with pictures for his illustrations this morning, and some pieces of furniture for hi suse this afternoon.

Here is Mrs. McClean's family dinner menu for tomorrow:

Planked Steak, Potato Roses, Red Apples, Stuffed Onions, Green String Beans, Graham Rolls, Butter, Head Lettuce, Thousand Island Dressing, Ice Box Dessert, Coffee.

For the dessert, Mrs. McClean offers two recipes:

½ cup butter, 3 eggs, 1-2 cup powdered sugar, flavoring, sponge cake or lady fingers. Cream the butter. Add the sugar. Beat in the egg yolks one at a time. Add flavoring, that is, 1 square melted chocolate or 2 tablespoon grated pineapple, ½ dozen macaroons crumbled, or ¼ cup cocoanut or nuts or maraschino cherries. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Line a mold with lady fingers or sponge cake. Fill with dessert mixture. Place in cold ice box 24 hours or more. Turn onto plate. Garnish with whipped cream.

Ice Box Dessert No. II

½ pound sweet chocolate, 3 tablespoon powdered sugar, 3 tablespoon hot water. Cook to a smooth paste. Cool. Add yolks of eggs one at a time. Beat. When cold, fold in stiffly beaten whites and a pinch of salt. Marshmallows cut in pieces and nut meats make a pleasing addition. Let stand till thickened. Line a mold with lady fingers or macaroons. Pour in part of the filling. Cover with a layer of lady fingers. Add the rest of the filling. Set in the ice box for 24 hours. Serve with whipped cream. This may be cut in slices, topped with ice cream, then whipped cream.

Cummins Believes Coolidge Won't Run

Senator Cummins, who was defeated in the recent republican primary by Col. Smith W. Brookhart, also expressed an opinion on his arrival at Des Moines from Washington that the present "nomination" republican majority in the house might disappear with the November election. "One doesn't know that President Coolidge will be a candidate or that he wants to be a candidate," said Senator Cummins. "My own prediction is that he will not be a candidate. I think he will have had enough of it by that time. It is an immense task and few men last through it."

Mr. Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge, discussed some possible republican candidates during a visit to Cincinnati, the home city of Mr. Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives, in the event that the president does not run again. Mr. Slemp saw Langworth, Lowden, Dawes, Hoover and Watson loom as presidential timber.
