CLUBWORKERS WIN TRIP TO OREGON FAIR

ond; Marell Waite, Mt. Glen, third.

Second division: August McCoy, Mt. Glen, only exhibitor.

Third division: Lena Gorham, Wolf Creek, first; Ruby Nice, Wolf Creek, second, and Edna Nice, her sister, third.

The boys and girls had no negligible part in making the hog and sheep departments of this year's show what Judge C. W. Daigh, county agent at The Dalles, pronounces the equal of any county fair he has ever attended.

In the dairy cattle division, all registered stock except two or three bulls belong to club members. They entered nine head of registered Holsteins, three registered Jerseys and three registered Guernseys.

Eighty per cent of the registered hogs at the show are owned by club boys and girls.

Bobbie Hurano, of Imbler, took second prize on his ewe lamb and third prize on his young ram.

Allen Mills Wins First

In the beef calf club, Allen Mills was winner with an Aberdeen Angus. Virgil Conley made second place.

Carmen Daniels, one of the girl exhibitors in the livestock division who regularly gets in the money, won first in both open and club classes with her Holstein calves.

In the rivalry for the special prize offered for the best Hereford bull, A. H. Parsons and Sons won over Clyde McKennon, of Summerville.

W. R. Ledbetter, of Alicel, garnered the majority of the horse ribbons.

Hill Wins Bull Calf

Dr. W. T. Phy's offer of a Holstein bull calf for the best grade dairy cow was won by William Hill.

Additional entries in the beef and dairy cattle classes and exhibition of more good horses would improve the show and enhance its attractions for most farmers, it was observed by Daigh, of The Dalles, as he finished judging the livestock.

Praise Grain Exhibit

The grain exhibit was the pride of the show this year, in the opinion of County Agent Avery, who declares it fully justified the $87.50 donation fund raised by La Grande and Elgin firms to stimulate competition there.

Two bushels of hybrid 128 entered by H. H. Huron, of Imbler, took first in that variety, first in soft wheat class and sweepstakes as the best bushel of wheat on exhibit. The grain weighed out 63 pounds to the bushel, and according to wheat growers who examined it, ought to have no trouble finding a high place at Wallowa county fair and the Pacific International.

Leonard Billings, of Imbler, was runner-up in the hybrid 128 class, with wheat that weighed a fraction more than that which won first prize.

Gaskill Takes Blue Ribbon

Close competition of almost uniformly fine grain marked the hard federation class. J. A. Gaskill, of Imbler, got first, and Luther Hindman, of Elgin, second money.

Lee Reynolds, of La Grande, was awarded first place in the federation class.

Gaskill took another first with his showing of forty-fold wheat, Cecil Galloway, of Elgin, placing second.

Barley prizes went to C. C. Conrad, of Imbler, first, and J. D. Dobbin, of La Grande, second.

Luther Hindman entered the winning oats exhibit, and Huron, of Imbler, next highest.

To Show at P-I

Twelve to 15 samples of grain are to be selected today and preserved for entry at the Pacific International exposition at Portland, which opens Nov. 1.

Thursday night's freeze resulted in watery potatoes, icy carrots and wilted leaf vegetables so that Judge Shovell had a trying time hanging ribbons on garden produce yesterday.

Mrs. George M. Gray's individual farm exhibit mounted to first place over that of J. E. Mills.

Cove Exhibit Wins

The Cove exhibit, provided and arranged by the boys' and girls' clubs, ranked first among the community entries. Pumpkin Ridge was judged second, and Cricket Flat, third.

Of the commercial exhibits which this year outnumber those of former fairs, the showings of furs and moccasins by Chris Miller and the home electrical appliances offered by the Eastern Oregon Light and Power company, with Mrs. C. H. Scranton as one of the demonstrators, attracted continual attention. New models of Overland cars and of Ford cars, trucks and a Fordson tractor were displayed.
