Richland Garden Tracts

5 and 10 acre fruit and berry land, in the famous Richland tract in the Columbia River and Yakima valleys, will make you independent in a few years. No other spot in the N. W. has such rich soil and the product comes weeks ahead of Yakima, Walla Walla, bringing the highest market price. Richland markets its strawberries and early vegetables at the time when the Spokane country is still covered with snow, and when the Puget sound cities (and Portland, too) are enjoying (?) the raw rain, fog and drizzle of a late spring. That is the reason why Richland strawberries bring $15 a crate and asparagus 30c a pound. The stuff picked here in the afternoon the railroads will put on the table of the consumer next morning 300 miles or more away.
