Senior Lockers

Locker doors hung open with coats hanging on the doors; hats and galoshes on the floor under the lockers. These are some of the things that greet the eyes of a visitor who enters the hall at Ashland High School.

For many years the lockers in the hall directly back of the assembly room have been reserved for the seniors, but each year a few lower classmen desiring all the rights and privileges of a senior, insist upon hanging their coats in these lockers. Their coats in addition to those of the seniors make the lockers crowded, and since there is not room for all of the wraps inside, some must hang outside. There would probably be plenty of room for the seniors and the doors would be easily closed, but there certainly is not enough room for the coats, hats, and galoshes of every person in the school.

When we become seniors we like to have the privileges that have been granted to us, unmentioned by the lower classmen. All lower classmen will be seniors some time, if the proper amount of work is done, and they too will resent the intrusion of their younger classmates.

Popular Sayings

"Don't be like that."

How often this is heard when there is some misunderstanding. It just fits the situation when one is at a loss as to what next is to be said.

Like other phrases such as "act your age," "stop me if you've heard this," and numerous others, this one has a place where it often is very handy and many places where it is over-worked.

One goes to class with the idea that he is being abused in some way. He does not take kindly to good advice nor does he enter willingly into the discussion. He is very disagreeable to everyone, instructor included. Finally in exasperation the teacher gives way to his disgust with words to this effect: "Mr., why in the world did you get up wrong this morning? Your attitude has been entirely wrong today. Snap out of it. Don't be like that."

After several classes one begins to realize that the world isn't such a bad place after all. He discovers that a teacher is just as human as anyone and has just as much patience which sometimes gives out.

Sometimes a person says a thing which is misunderstood. He cannot see how it could be taken so heart in anyway except the way in which he meant it, but somehow it has been misinterpreted. Someone's feelings have been deeply hurt. One is bewildered as to how the hurt can be healed. He gropes anxiously for the right thing to say to straighten things out. Then in desperation he blurts out, "Oh, don't be like that! Can't you see what I mean? You must understand."

Often it helps a great deal, other times it makes things worse. One must think some before he says a thing, in order that he might not have to revert to slang by way of making things all right with the world.

Future Forecast Of Ashland High

Yes! Upon looking into the future I see many strange things. The Ashland High School of today will be no more and in its place will be found the best school in the state. No longer will the athletic teams have to finance the sports themselves, but when they go to play for the state championships, they will be able to command, not a bus which is their ambition now, but a large, roomy aeroplane. And when they return, with the captain carrying the State cup, they will be treated (not treat themselves as is now the case) to a banquet in the best hotel in town. When they need shoes or other equipment they will not have to help pay for them but will receive them from the school.

Just back of the school will be a landing field where the children of the students who are going here now will leave their aeroplanes during the school hours.

In the basement will be a gymnasium as large as those at Eugene and Corvallis, containing tennis courts, swimming pools, basketball courts, etc. Upstairs you will find a large auditorium which the students can use at any time they wish for dances, parties or plays. There will be large rooms for the boys to pass their spare time in containing pool and billiard tables, card tables, and other forms of amusement.

But what is the use of dwelling in the future when we are only concerned in the present? We won't benefit by the future and advantages of this school so perhaps I had better keep still or the students will become dissatisfied.
