COMPLETE PLANS FOR PARIS TRIP

Twenty-Eight Ocean Liners to Take Legionnaires to France

PORTLAND, Ore., Apr. 8.—The series of the Second A. E. F. of the American Legion are rapidly taking shape, it was announced today by Earl F. Mower, of Portland, department finance commission officer for the state upon information received from Howard P. Savage, national commander. The dates are late September for the ninth annual Legion convention will afford many comforts unknown to the soldiers who made the trip in 1918.

After two years intensive preparation for the great transportation movement the legion is able to announce complete plans for the convention. It will be held in Paris, France, beginning Monday, Sept. 19 and ending Friday, Sept. 23, 1927. The business sessions of the convention will be held in the famous Palais Trocadero, government exhibition building. The headquarters of "A" and "B", the working and power society of the legion will be in the Hotel Palais d'Orsay. The legion auxiliary will have headquarters in the Continental hotel. On the first day of the convention a great legion parade will pass in line before Marshal Ferdinand Foch, supreme allied commander, General John J. Pershing, wartime commander of the A. E. F., and prominent officials of several nations.

Half Fare

The legion has obtained one-half fare for round trip from the seaboard home towns to the ports of embarkation on this side. A fleet of 28 of the largest ocean liners, of which the giant SS. Leviathan is flagship, will carry the Legionnaires to France. Round trip steamship fares on the official legion ships range from $145.50 to $170 on most of the ships while on the SS. Leviathan the rates are from $151.50 up. Legionnaires will have full run of the ships and a program of entertainment will make the overseas journey enjoyable. The landing ports already are those of Boulogne, Havre, Cherbourg and Antwerp, Belgium.

Fifty special trains will rush the Legionnaires from the ports to Paris. Thirty thousand rooms of all classes have been placed under contract in the French capital for the exclusive use of the Legionnaires. Battlefield and cemetery tours to all sectors of France and Belgium, where American troops were engaged, have been worked out and will run daily throughout convention week. Eleven great tourist companies are competing in arranging tours of the Legionnaires to all corners of Europe. Railroad fares have been substantially reduced, not only in France, but in practically all European countries. Landing charges have been reduced at the ports and all of the European countries except Russia will accept official legion identification certificates in lieu of passport and visa.

North Adams, Ok., population 8, court of conciliation from which lawyers are barred. Because they frequently clutter up the "courts of justice," and where the litigants talk over their disputes with the judge, A. B. Liddy, who is also mayor of the town. This plan has proved a success.

Men should be made to take vacations so they won't get the idea that they're indispensable.

Idaho Butterfat Production For 1926 Sets Mark

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, MOSCOW, Apr. 8.—Between $22,500,000 and $[illegible] worth of butterfat, exclusive of by-products, was produced in Idaho during 1926, Prof. F. W. Adams, university dairy husbandman, estimates.

This figure is based on a price of 32 cents per pound and upon the assumption that 50 per cent of all milk produced was for manufacturing purposes. The assumption, Prof. Adams believes, is conservative since in 1924—the last authentic statistics—37.7 per cent went to manufacturers, and the two-year increase in production with a relatively small increase in population, he believes accounts for a 12 per cent difference.

Total value of animal production in Idaho has increased approximately 50 per cent in two years, according to the figures. In 1924 the output of butterfat was valued at nine million dollars.

Progress by the dairy industry in recent years is reflected in figures compiled by the state department of agriculture for 1919 and 1926. Since 1919, butter production has increased almost five times. A total of 29,224,[illegible] pounds of butter—the equivalent of [illegible] pounds of milk—was produced in 1926. The figure in 1919 was 6,614,[illegible] pounds. Cheese production is still more apparent, the 1926 total being 4,161,[illegible] pounds compared to 2,562,[illegible] pounds in 1919.

A total of 22,633,341 pounds of butterfat was sold for manufacturing purposes last year, an increase of 17.7 per cent of the 1925 figure. Approximately 30 per cent of this was used for butter, 15 per cent for cheese, 4.5 per cent for condensed milk and 1 per cent for ice cream.

Frost Injures Cherry Trees

WALLA WALLA, Apr. 8.—Cherry trees in the state line and Milton-Freewater section have been hurt by freezing weather of winter. Black tartarian and black republican varieties will yield a light crop. Bings and lambertts were less damaged, though the freeze of last September did some injury. Fruit in this section is ahead of that around Walla Walla because of weather conditions. Prune trees have shown no signs of blooming. Few apricot trees are in bloom.

The lamb crop is about 125 per cent or better this year, according to sheepmen. The number of twin lambs accounts for the heavy increase. Bambing is nearly ended.

Czar's Tents For Sale

LENINGRAD, Russia.—Some of the tents which formerly belonged to Emperor Nicholas, at least one possessing as many as 17 rooms, are offered for sale at the government auction mart. The finest is a 15-room tent of silk.

A women's reform organization calls upon Chicago social matrons to make drinking at parties bad taste. We thought the bootleggers had attended to that detail.

A man's protective alimony club has been formed. Brigham Young had some valuable ideas on this subject.

Eastern Self-Governments Are on Trial Now in Central Asia

BOKHARA, Uzbekistan Soviet Republic, Apr. 8 (AP)—One of the most interesting experiments in self-government in backward countries is going on in Central Asia.

In this vast region, known before the Bolsheviki revolution as Turkestan, which formed an integral part of the Russian Empire, the Soviet government has set up numerous autonomous soviet republics.

All the scattered tribes of Turcomens, Kalmucks, Bashkirs, Kirghiss, Tadjiks and other Mohammedan racial elements inhabiting Turkestan's 1,500,000 square miles now have their own governments, which, while they are obviously directly controlled by the Central government at Moscow, give the untutored millions of Moslem peasants a surprising degree of independence. This is particularly true in matters of purely local or sectional importance, where the natives enjoy wide latitude of action.

Like a Quilt

The whole area resembles a great patch-quilt, with Pedjoratsk, Samarkand and Tashkent as the center. The principal republics are Uzbekistan, Kirghistan, Turkmenistan and Tadjikistan, which include the former Emirate of Bokhara, the Khanate of Khiva, and the Transcaspian government.

The citizens of the Turkmenistan republic are largely Turcomens and Yomouds, the majority of whom are nomads who live in small felt tents of semi-circular construction. Although Mohammedans, they give great freedom to their women. The natives speak only a smattering of Russian.

Further to the east, is Samarkand the capital of the new Uzbekistan soviet republic. Until the Czarist occupation, the Uzbeks were for centuries the dominant tribe in the Transcaspian region. The Uzbeks, who are a reserved proud and unsophisticated race, number about 2,000,000 and are noted for their honesty and diligence.

To the south lies the Tadjikistan Republic, inhabited largely by Tadjiks, who are believed to be lineal descendants of the Iranians. The capital at Dushambe, has no railroad connection with any other part of Turkestan. Camels, horses, and oxen are the usual means of transportation.

Within 12 hours of Samarkand lies Tashkent, the former administrative center of Turkestan. From Tashkent the railway turns north, running into the endless steppes and desert that form the new Kazakstan republic. Its capital is Kzyl Orda, formerly Petrofsk. The inhabitants consist largely of Kirghiz who are of Mongolian origin. Engaged almost entirely in cattle-breeding and sheep-raising, wool constitutes their sole wealth.

Senator Jim Reed at Detroit the other day said he was out of politics. Then son is Walter Johnson out of baseball, so's Suzanne Lenglen out of tennis, so's a duck out of water and so's his old man.
