Looking Ahead

We laugh at the staid ways of a bygone day. But the other day there crept into the news a little story about an old wooden sailing-rigged ship which in spite of dynamite could not demolish. The heavy planking shook off the blows. In the 19th century at least they did build things to last.

Our radio announcer puts out 4,500,000 words in a baseball season, a statistician has estimated. That's almost enough language to carry a man 18 holes.

AT THE THEATERS

"Sensations" At The Arcade Tomorrow Night

The sparkling and gay musical revue, "Sensations of 1927," is the only offering of its kind touring America that has caught the spirit and atmosphere of the Follies Bergere and the Moulin Rouge, the mecca of all Parisian amusement seekers. It is smart, frequently saucy and occasionally naughty, brimful of jingling melodies, quick step syncopation, bizarre costumes, bewildering electrical effects and rich scenic settings. It has been termed "a spicy salad with tasty dressing" and that phrase describes it aptly.

It is a masterpiece of its kind—gay, frolicsome, artistic, scantily clad but never suggestive. Presented in seventeen chapters it piles one big surprise upon another until the "Land of Gold," which is the last word in lavishness.

The cast includes a score of entertainers with Barbara Bronell, America's dainty little dancing star, in the foreground. The chorus, a score of bewitching beauties, a famous "pony" ballet of smiling, youthful girls, have proven a great asset toward the success of this delightful revue, which comes to the Arcade theater tomorrow night.

Yakima Canutt Winner of Many Rodeo Prizes

Yakima Canutt, world-famous horseman, many times winner of national and international cowboy tournaments on the rodeo fields, who is the star of "Hellhounds of the Plains" at the Colonial theaterm Wednesday only, cannot remember when he first started to ride.

All he can remember is that at the age of five he was riding ponies regularly for hours every day on his father's ranch. He was born in Whitman County, Washington. At the age of eleven he broke a vicious bronco against his father's commands, and a forceful reprimand from parental quarters which left him more black and blue spots than the battle with the wild horse. He won the world's all-round championship and the title of the best "bronc-buster" in Pendleton, Oregon, at the age of seventeen. For a year he was in the navy, as gunner's mate during the war, but he prefers the hurricane deck of a bronco to a battleship for riding purposes. He again won the American all-round championship and the "bronco-buster" title in his nineteenth year. The title was his at Pendleton again next year, in 1921 he won again with special honors. He won the saddle championship of the Southwest at Fort Texas in 1921, 1922, and in the later year he won the bulldogging contest, and topped the list for all-round riding in the Yankee stadium rodeo in New York. He has been too busy in pictures since then to win any other contest of importance.

Arthur And Dane in "Rookies" At The Arcade

A rip roaring farce comedy. A laugh in every foot of celluloid, and a chuckle, every inch!

That's an apt description of "Rookies" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest comedy, which is showing at the Arcade theater tonight for the last time.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, two inimitable comedians, are introduced as a team in this farce, and between them they manage to keep the audience in an uproar from beginning to fade-out.

The story, which was filmed with the cooperation of the United States government, has a background of the citizens' military training camps, held annually in many of the states, a background affording ample opportunity for thrills and laughs.

Byron Morgan, who wrote the original story, and Sam Wood, who directed the picture, must have spent many days figuring out the laugh-producing situations and gags. Don't miss it!

"Nevada" Is Gripping Tale Of Old Frontier

A gripping story of the western frontier written by a descendent of real frontiersman—that "Nevada" Zane Grey's latest, which has been pictured in stirring fashion by Paramount. It is scheduled to open at the Star theater Thursday.

"Nevada" from all reports, holds the strength, heroism and romance of the Zane Grey standard and also contains many novel twists and dramatic situations of which Director John Waters has taken full advantage.

Followers of red-blooded western stories, which includes ninety-nine per cent of all picturegoers, will be pleased to know that Gary Cooper, rangy young star, plays the hero role. Cooper is the daring horseman, under contract to Paramount, who has been gaining tremendous popularity in the last few months.

Opposite him in the play is Thelma Todd, blonde heroine of exceptional beauty who is looked upon as one of the most promising young actresses on the screen. The menace of the story is supplied largely by that admirable villain, William Powell. The comedy element rests in the hands of Ernie S. Adams. Philip Strange, a capable young actor, has an important role.

The story transpires in the Southwest cattle country at the time when the citizenry was solidly rising up to put an end to the reign of terror spread by two-gun men and cattle rustlers. It is replete with fast riding, quick gun play moments of dramatic suspense and broad humor. A splendid love story winds through the action.

An inmate of a prison at Birmingham, England, committed suicide by swallowing two hair combs, a toothbrush handle, two spoon handles and twenty metal disks from a spring mattress.
