Ray Lynch Shoots Big White Goose

The thrill that comes but rarely to nimrods of Eastern Oregon was experienced Thursday morning by Ray Lynch, local hunter, when he bagged a Canadian Snow goose while hunting ducks a few miles east of La Grande. Local hunters declare that the birds are seldom seen and little known in this part of the country. The bird, which weighed 13 pounds evoked the admiration of a number of local sportsmen who were interested in the appearance of the bird in this section and in the beauty of the species. When seen by Mr. Lynch the goose was flying with two of the Canadian Snow species.

Mr. Lynch shot first at a range of about 35 yards.

Incidentally it is thought that this is one of the first geese to be brought in from the valley by La Grande hunters.

YALE RALLY ENDS IN 14-6 VICTORY

blue stands roared for a touchdown.

Garvey twisted his way through for seven yards. Here were two downs to make the three remaining yards but again the Eli's lacked the scoring punch. Garvey was thrown on an end run for a two-yard loss and Princeton took the ball on its own five-yard line.

Garvey Replaced

Garvey, badly battered, was replaced near the end of the period by Hammersley as the Eli's tried a desperate attempt to score by passing. Hoben ran back a Tiger punt 30 yards to Princeton's 30-yard mark but two successive passes went wild just before the whistle blew.

Receiving the kickoff from Yale, Princeton launched a quick offensive with Wittmer in the vanguard. It got to midfield when a pass from Baruch was intercepted by Charles Worth, Eli center, who raced to the Tiger 40-yard line. The Tigers returned the compliment when Miles leaped up to grab a pass to Shed by Hoben on Princeton's 34-yard mark. The Elusive Wittmer, on a double pass worked his way clear and gained 26 yards, putting the ball on Yale's 40-yard line.

The blue line braced to check Princeton's advance but Baruch cleverly placed a punt that went out of bounds on the Eli seven-yard line. Baruch took Yale's punt and raced 10 yards to the Eli 40-yard line but a 15-yard penalty for holding upset the Tigers and Baruch's pass was intercepted by Charles Worth. Starting to run the Eli center fumbled, but his team mate Decker recovered the ball on Yales 42-yard line.

Starting the period from their own 25-yard line, the Tigers registered a first down in short order with Red Owen, substitute for Miles, and Wittmer carrying the ball.

After several short thrusts Wittmer got to midfield where it took a "huddle" by the officials to decide that the Tigers had made another first down. Owen made nine yards in two smashes but a 15-yard penalty put the Tigers back to their own 45-yard line, breaking up the advance and forcing Owen to punt.

Yale began a drive from its 20-yard line and brought the crowd to its feet when a 17-yard pass, Hoben to Scott, put the ball on Princeton's 45-yard line after a nine-yard sprint through the center by Decker.

Yale was hard hit by a 15-yard penalty for holding but came right back with a long pass, Hoben to Quarrier that recovered this distance exactly.

Another penalty for delaying the game put Eli back five yards but on the fourth down, with seven yards to go, Hoben stepped back to Midfield and threw a pass to Fishwick, who got clear and raced for a touchdown while the blue stands went wild.

It was a 47-yard play. Cox kicked the extra point from placement and Yale went into the lead, 7-6.

Princeton received the kickoff and Lowry, attempting a pass, was tackled and thrown as he fumbled the ball. The pigskin was recovered behind the goal line by Charles Worth, Yale center, but the ball remained in Princeton's possession. A pass, Lowry, to Wittmer, gained 13 yards but Wittmer fumbled on the next play and Charles Worth again was on the spot, recovering for Yale on Princeton's 20-yard line. From there Hammersley shot of tackle for 11 yards and a first down.

Hammersley knifed his way three yards to the Tiger six-yard mark and the Tigers sent in a flock of line subs. Lawler, Tiger end, jumped through to drag down Hammersley without gain. On the next play, Hammersley fought and twisted his way six yards for a touchdown. Cox again booted goal and the score was Yale 14 Princeton 6.

LORENA HELD NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

he could not have ignored her more completely. Anticipated dramatics were lacking. He addressed the jury in low tones.

Charges Jealousy

"Jealousy, that inconsiderate monster, was the impelling force behind that knife," he told the jury.

It was not fear of Slim that sent the knife into his heart. It was a remark Slim had made as he sat on the fence near the bank building, talking with companions, Combes declared.

Lorena, her suspicions already aroused, was searching for Slim in her car. As her machine slowly passed a group of men, she heard the remark:

"Gee Slim I'm jealous of you."

"Then," Combes went on, "she jumped out and walked over to where Slim was sitting on the fence. 'Who's the jane'? was the first thing she asked.

"Gentlemen of the jury if that is not sufficient proof of what motive guided that dagger into Slim Harris' heart, just go back with me once more to that fateful day, Sept. 2.

"After Lorena had asked about the jane, Slim grabbed her and hustled her over to where her car was standing. The witness Pat McCarty told you how Slim had taken her to task for making such a remark in public, how he had threatened to knock her block off, how she had said it would be the last time he would hit her or any other woman, and lastly how Slim announced that he was going to leave her.

Tells of Threats

"That, mind you, was but an hour or so before the killing. What was her reply? It was: 'If you do, Slim, I'll kill you.'

"A short time later a knife rose and fell out on a lonely road and the life blood of Slim Harris was dripping through his shirt front."

Time and again Combs brought in the jealousy feature of it.

"Does it not seem peculiarly significant to you gentlemen, that the first 30 seconds they were together alone, the killing took place? All that morning and afternoon they were not alone once together. Finally in the evening they left the barn for Lakeview, alone together for the first time.

"Thirty seconds after they had left the barn—keep the time in mind, just a half minute—Slim Harris had met his end.

"The day after the killing, Lorena told conflicting stories. She told of a mysterious slayer, of how he had plunged a knife into her lover's heart. There was one true statement she made. She said that Slim had chased the killer up the road. That was true, Slim did chase the killer; he chased Lorena after she had delivered the fatal blow."

Combs reviewed the defense's case, pointing out weak points here and there. He contended that instead of Lorena being followed by Slim, that the converse was true.

"She was following him around the country," he argued.

ARMY TURNS BACK NOTRE DAME 18 TO 0

pleted. Another pass grounded and army took the ball on its seven-yard line.

Nave, Army's quarterback intercepted a Notre Dame forward pass on his own 45-yard line and ran 54 yards for a touchdown early in the third period. No one was close enough to interfere with his triumphant sprint. Cagles drop kick went wide for the extra point and the score was: Army 12, Notre Dame 0.

The third period ended with Notre Dame fighting desperately but futilely to solve the stonewall defense of the army line. The civilians could do nothing with the soldiers and as the period closed, were getting ready to kick from inside their own 20-yard line.

Meehan intercepted a Notre Dame pass just as the fourth period started and ran 37 yards to Notre Dame's seven-yard line. Hutchinson plunged three yards in two tries and Cagle went two. Cagle, on an end run went to within inches of the goal line. Niemie kicked out to his 37-yard line.

Cagle took a pass on his 15-yard line and ran for a touchdown. The ball was on the 31-yard line when the Louisiana flash, running wide, picked the pass out of the air and scored without a struggle. The goal was missed and the score was, Army 18, Notre Dame 0.
