HEALTH

WINTER DISEASES
By James H. Tudor, M. D.,
Philadelphia, Pa.
(Member Georgian Memorial)

It is a noticeable fact that many of the leading diseases characteristic of the winter season, particularly pneumonia, flu, grippe, and influenza, are those which attack people, up at longest the evening, have been brought under control, for a considerable time. There has been a steady decline in the death rate from pneumonia in the South since the past decade and a half. This decline has been the slowest in proportion to the death rate of diseases that have prevailed epidemically during the summer and autumn months, i. e., typhoid fever, malaria, and the diarrheal diseases of childhood, which, among infants under one year of age, is marked, but in the death rate as related after the introduction of the pasteurization of milk.

While the foregoing facts are encouraging, there is a group of infectious diseases which have become a real menace to humanity. I refer to the so-call respiratory infections, such as tonsilitis, influenza, and the pneumonias. The latter are usually in winter and spring. We are apt to regard colds and sore throats as harmless, but they are often following by pneumonia which, as we all know, is a very serious disease.

It is generally admitted that the best method of preventing the chance of infection is to maintain the health of the individual at the highest possible level. If other words, physical fitness is good health resistance to the invading germs of these conditions is the strongest, so to speak. Although investigations are constantly being carried on with the hope of discovering a reliable preventive agent, in the meantime, as stated before, our attention must be focused upon the question of creating about greater vitality as a means for improving the health of the society.

Here, rest and sane relaxation must be carried forward as other measures.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agents for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion containing in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and accompanying by the severest after colds or flu. Money refunded if cough or cold is not relieved after using according to directions. Get your druggist to-day.

OFFICE CAT

The management health bureau has issued warnings, and the practice should include the dental inspection of children of primary school age, as the seat of the leading cause of this common malady is the mouth. The school inspection of instructions and treatment. The school dentist can get in touch with the parents either in the home, just outside the school, or in the school, and personal contact is made more of the parents. The necessity for health habits, the importance of the dentist, and the dangers of the "Ship of the Sea" are other topics of the Health Bureau.

Courses in nurses in hygiene and general education are being formulated for use in our schools with great success of a general health examination and demonstration of health principles is urged and believed that such a program would bring results and was conducted during recent years and advertising with other the school and of community health in a more effective school period. The very future, as all parents will, is in the hands of health bureau. Let those more health bureaus, the Red Cross and the Parent Teachers Association, be formed, the Council of such bureaus will be greatly commended.
