FOLLOWED THE FUNERAL

Little Henrietta, age three, waxed facetious. "Tell me," she whispered, coyly, "why is a policeman like a piece of music?" We puzzled for hours. Nobody could answer. Finally Henrietta confessed. "They both have beats." Tea and cakes will be served immediately after the interment.

'Twas eleven o'clock. He started to go.
And his hat he nervously fingered.
And they stood in the hall—Mary Jane and her beau,
And he lingered, and lingered, and lingered.
And he lingered, and lingered, and lingered, and lingered,
And lingered, and lingered, and lingered,
And lingered, and lingered, and lingered, and lingered,
And lingered, and lingered, and lingered, and lingered.

A young wife went into a grocer's and said: "I bought three or four hams here a month or so ago, and they were fine; have you any more of them?"

"Well, if they're off the same pig I'll take three of them," said the customer.

Dolores Scores In "Old San Francisco"

Kipling's "Take me somewhere East of Suez, where the best is like the worst, where there ain't no Ten Commandments, and a man can raise a thirst", might well have been sung of old San Francisco's Chinatown and Barbary coast, and it is these regions that Warner Bros. recreate for us in the thrilling and uncannily realistic "Old San Francisco," starring Dolores Costello and featuring Warner Oland and which is playing at the Star theater today and Thursday.

Alan Crosland, who won such high acclaim for his direction of "Don Juan" and "When A Man Loves" has added materially to his reputation in "Old San Francisco."

The story is that of a half-caste boss of the underworld, who, coveting the lands and the fair granddaughter of a Spanish grandee, hounds the old man to his death. The girl on the ancient sword of her family, pledges vengeance and having discovered the fact that the boss is a yellow man, hawks the news about the underworld, aided and abetted by a young man, who, with herself, is kidnapped and secreted in a Chinese den. The boss tries to make the girl retract her statement, by threatening to torture her lover. A crowd of Chinamen who hate their "white boss" force their way into the place and capture him while the girl is spirited away to a secret chamber by a Chinese girl.

The boss, escaping from his captors, recaptures the girl, and drags her to a deeper cell where she is dressed in gorgeous array and offered for sale, to wealthy Chinamen.

Just then, comes the terrific upheaval which is known as "The Great Fire." Lightning flashes through rents in the walls, the boss is crushed under a falling beam, the girl is rescued by her lover and out of the ruins of the Old San Francisco, they flee to happiness in the new.

This is a bare outline of a story which flames with passionate reality, and with terror and beauty. The photography is marvelous and the impression one takes away from the theater, is that of having really been an eye witness to the last days of San Francisco's vanished underworld.

Dolores Costello is exquisitely beautiful, as she always is, and interprets the great emotional role with consummate art. Warner Oland as the boss gives splendid support. Take a trip to "Old San Francisco."

Comedy Team Enters Crime World at Arcade

"Knife" Reagan, terror of the underworld, scourge of all law abiding citizens in a crime-torn community!

"Knife" Reagan is at large, while police are frantic and the rival underworld gang trembles in apprehension because it has broken an agreement and invaded the terror's district!

Into such a situation Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton make their bow to the world as Sherlock Holmes' greatest rivals in "Partners in Crime," Paramount's thrilling new type of melodramatic comedy, opening at the Arcade theater Thursday for a three-day run.

For the first time since they furnished the comedy in such pictures as "Adventure" and "The Devil's Cargo," Beery and Hatton forsake burlesque and ludicrous costumes in "Partners in Crime." They are real characters in a story that furnishes the maximum in comedy through legitimate situations.

Beery has the part of a detective with a good heart but a thick head. Hatton plays a dual role. He is a hard boiled newspaper reporter who loves to ridicule the police, especially Beery, and he also takes the part of "Knife" Reagan, the mysterious outlaw who brands his victims with his merciless knife.

An ambitious young assistant district attorney seeking advancement so he can marry the girl he loves, declares war on the underworld. He is kidnapped and Beery and Hatton start on the trail.

Jack Luden takes the part of the attorney and Mary Brian is the girl. William Powell has a strong part as an underworld gang leader.

A compelling plot holds feverish interest throughout this excellent melodrama while a substantial laugh structure runs through it from beginning to end. It differs from all other previous team comedies in that it is not in any sense just a loosely connected series of laugh producing "gags." "Partners in Crime" would stand on its merits as a melodrama without comedy. With Beery and Hatton it is said to be a truly great picture furnishing the maximum in well rounded entertainment.

ASP'S VENOM REMEDY FOR MAD DOG'S BITE

PARIS (AP) — The asp, which provided Cleopatra with a solution of her love problems, is also, it appears, death to rabies.

The discovery was made by a well known French woman physician, Dr. Marie Phisalix. In a paper read to the Academy of Sciences, she told of having established that the venom of the asp when mixed with the virus of rabies makes the latter harmless and non-infectious.

MENUS REACH LIMIT

PARIS—So hard are Paris hostesses straining to be original in their dinner menus, says M. Henri de Forge, that one may expect soon to see such items as Violet omelet, licorice gravy, spinach peppermint and bananas with anchovies.
