The justice department in Washington released this photo and said it shows Helmut Leiner (below) assisting another man in hanging a portrait of Hitler in the New York headquarters of the German-American bund. Leiner, of Astoria, Long Island, NY, is one of 14 persons against whom criminal indictments, including treason, are to be asked as alleged accomplices of eight nazi saboteurs, six of whom have been executed. treatment of the modus operandi, he advanced the 'probable solution' that the birds fare to the moon and there spend the summer season.

"Sixty days are allowed for the journey, and as the moon is not a stationary body the author concludes that the birds cannot start directly toward it but rather offended by the steams of earth do tend directly from it and that straight line 'tis probable they pursue, till they come so near the moon, that she is their fairest object to draw their inclination; for if the moon hath a motion in a month about the earth, then, at the two months' end they find it in the same line of direction where it was when they began their journey."'
