EUROPEANS TRY TO RETAIN GOLD

U. S. Speculating Draws it, However; High Rates Check Outflow.

NEW YORK (AP)—The liquidable money demands of the New York stock market have set up a magnetic flow which is draining off the gold reserves of the world's leading nations with such facility that central banks abroad are endeavoring to nail down their yellow metal.

While in this day of paper money and checks, gold as the average man no longer is synonymous with wealth, save in a figurative sense, it still is the only common measure of value in international settlements.

Strong gold reserves, therefore, are essential to nations having accounts to settle with their neighbors.

High rates for call money, beginning last summer, apparently checked an outflow of gold from the United States by attracting funds from abroad. By last fall, reports show, a return flow of gold began to pour into the United States in considerable volume.

Most of the central European banks just had succeeded in building up their gold reserves to a comfortable basis, and renewed drawing of the yellow metal to New York was disquieting. The Bank of France purchased heavily of gold in New York and held it "earmarked" for its account at the New York federal reserve bank, presumably to be used to support French exchange.

These purchases of gold largely offset importations of the metal from England and Canada in the closing months of last year. Early this year the Bank of England was forced to raise its discount rate from 4½ to 5½ per cent to prevent serious loss of gold to New York.

More recently, the New York pulling power on funds began to affect Germany and German exchange suffered. The Reichsbank then began to acquire funds in New York, obtaining them through shipping gold to France and in return receiving credit in New York by release of French gold from earmark.

Largely because of these operations, gold held under earmark for foreign account decreased from $166,765,000 at the end of January to $82,974,000 in mid-April, New York gaining $41,237,000.

But, in addition, gold began to flow from Germany across the Atlantic, a shipment of more than $4,000,000 recently arriving. This drain on the Reichsbank, in addition to an outflow of capital induced by failure of the reparations conference, caused the Reichsbank to step up its discount rate from 6½ to 7½ per cent.

Meanwhile other European central banks, including the banks of Holland, Italy, Poland, Austria and Hungary have had to increase their rates.

ROTARIANS OF WORLD MEET IN TEXAS MAY 26

DALLAS, Tex., May 23 (AP)—Rotarians from nearly 50 nations, including delegations from principal capitals of Europe, South America and the orient, will gather in Dallas for their world wide conclave, May 26 to 31.

Dallas expects to entertain more than 15,000 guests during the six day fiesta.

Reminiscent episodes of the old south and pioneer west, presented in pageant, parade and song, will supplement business sessions.

Special events for Rotary Anns, wives of visiting delegates, will include an "old south" party, reviving memories of log cabin plantation days in Dixie.

Fair park's stadium will be transformed into an international court scene for a "parade of nations." A cast of several hundred persons is being trained to portray something of the life and history of each nation to be represented in the spectacle.

A massed choir of 500 negro voices, singing southern spirituals and modern songs, will appear in one of several concerts scheduled.

The president's ball, listed as a leading social event of the convention, also will be held in Fair park. Attractions typical of pioneer days in Texas will be featured in a carnival display.

Visiting Rotary ministers will occupy pulpits of Dallas churches, May 26.

HEALTH

MAN-KILLERS FOUND IN MOUTH

By Lenert Goldhorn, D. D. C.
Chicago, Illinois

A high percentage of diseases have their origins in infections about the teeth, and are attributable to a species of germs known as streptococci. These man-killers, as they have been justly called, are closely associated with man throughout life. They are found in the mouth at all times, and gain entrance to the deeper tissues through dental lesions that they infect. The slightest dental lesion, unless corrected in its early stages, ultimately becomes a hopelessly diseased affair and remains as a source of infection, a potential hazard and menace to the health of the individual.

Teeth were given man to enable him to chew coarse fibrous foods, thereby making them digestible. They were designed for hard usage, and were meant to last a lifetime. The foods of early man were unmashed and consisted of fruit, nuts, grain, other forms of vegetation, and meat. Since then, man has learned to use fire and has developed the art of cooking. Cooking breaks up the fibrous texture of the foods and renders them soft and mushy, thereby decreasing the normal functional activity of the teeth and their supporting structures. The coarseness of the natural foods served man the very important purpose of cleansing the teeth by the mechanical friction produced in the process of mastication. The primitive foods were of a high mineral and vitamin content; they furnished the body with proper ingredients to build sound teeth and bony tissues and to build a high reserve of elements to resist against tooth and tissue destruction.

As civilization has progressed, foods have become more highly prepared. Time has become more valuable, and in consequence man now chews his food very little. Some of the food made mushy and sticky by cooking or baking adheres to the tooth surfaces and lodges in the tooth crevices, remaining there unless removed by the action of coarser foods or brushing with the tooth-brush.

The mouth is at all times infested by millions of bacteria, several forms of disease-producing types and many forms of apparently harmless varieties. One of the harmless types is an acid forming bug that thrives on carbohydrate foods (starch and sugar) and changes them chemically into acid. This acid, liberated against the tooth surface under the film of mucin and food and in the crevices, dissolves decalcifies the lime or calcium tooth structure and produces dental decay. The destruction of the hard layers continues until the dental pulp (nerve) is exposed to the forces of infection. At this stage, toothaches are experienced and the nerve rapidly becomes infected and degenerates. Streptococci are invariably present in advanced dental lesions, and are carried from these foci by the blood-stream to the other tissues of the body where they produce infections and disease.

Teeth should be brushed after each meal.

A simple filling is the "finger in the dyke."

Bleeding gums or a toothache spell danger! Trouble ahead!

Never pick your teeth.

Use a scaler, a monkey-wrench, a nut cracker, or some other tool, but not your teeth.

Use a dentifrice (toothpaste or powder).

Eat coarse foods. Balance your diet.

Watch your children's teeth.

Don't let infected teeth impair your health and lessen your productive ability.

Income Taxes In Manhattan More Than 39 States

NEW YORK (AP)—Manhattan paid the federal government more income tax than the total for 39 states of the union.

During the first nine months of the current fiscal year, says a treasury department summary, the government collected $2,000,240,128.54 in taxes on incomes. The state of New York paid almost $524,000,000 and all but $194,000,000 of this came from Manhattan.

Pennsylvania and Illinois contested neck and neck for second honors with total payments of around $112,000,000 each.

Massachusetts, ninth in population, is fourth in the amount of her federal income tax bill, exceeding $100,000,000 for the nine-month period.

California, although eighth in population, is fifth in taxes, paying $92,000,000. Ohio, which is just below Illinois in population, ranks sixth among the "millionaire states" with payments of $87,000,000.

Compared with the same nine-month period of the previous fiscal year collections were approximately $72,000,000 higher, a fact due entirely to the rise in personal incomes. The total for corporations dropped $45,000,000, whereas payments for individuals increased almost $120,000,000.

North Dakota paid the smallest amount, totalling only $134,124.66, with South Dakota second from the bottom with $408,027.87. Other states which paid less than a million dollars were New Mexico, Nevada and Wyoming.

Bulgaria Land of Roses

The production of attar of roses ranks as the fourth leading product in the export trade of Bulgaria and in shipments to the United States it is the principal item. Roses were first cultivated around the valley of Tundja at Kazanlik, and then spread to the valley of Strjema, in the vicinity of Karlowo, on the south.

Two Dundee cordwainers who came over to find a typical American cordwain that their search in New York has been fruitless. Someone should have told them they're just as apt to find him in Denmark as in New York.

Ribbons for Typewriter

Typewriter ribbons are usually made of good quality unbleach cloth woven of fine even thread spun from the best long-fiber Sea Island cotton. They are inked by means of special machinery so that each fiber becomes thoroughly coated.

Land Hurt by Dam

The hinterland of Egypt is not as fertile as it was before Assuan dam was built. The mud that was carried down the Nile by natural flooding is stopped by the dam. It settles back of the dam, and the clear water which irrigates this land below lacks the fertilizing element.
