OUT OUR WAY By Williams

AT THE THEATERS

Alice White, Princess of Pep, Here at Arcade

Cheerio—here comes the Princess of Pep again!

Meaning none other than Alice White, First National Vitaphone star whose latest talking, singing and dancing offering, "Broadway Babies," is now playing at the Arcade theater.

Miss White is energy and effervescence personified. She has been termed the Apostle of It, the Tired Business Man's joy, and Exhibit A in the Exposition of Jazz.

It was Miss White who was so correctly labeled in "Show Girl," "the funniest little wench who ever shook a scanty at a tired business man."

In "Broadway Babies," another story of the Great White Way and life behind the scenes, Miss White has an ideal vehicle for her talents, it is declared. She plays one of a trio of frolicsome girls, the others being Sally Eilers and Marion Byron—who try to lick the Big Town. Their experiences make up a story that has much interest and will appeal to everyone.

Charles Delaney, who played opposite Miss White in "Show Girl," is again her leading man and the cast includes Rudolf Hosing, Louis Natheaux, Maurice Black, Tommy Dugan and others.

"Mawas", Animal Picture, Now Showing at Star

"Mawas" is in town at the Star after just completing a most successful run at the Columbia theater in San Francisco at $1.50 price.

"Mawas" is the wildest of the wild and the mightiest of the mighty. It is not very often a picture of the magnitude, entertainment value or true epic bigness as "Mawas" comes along. "Mawas" tells no ordinary tale. There is nothing stereotyped about "Mawas." It is just one thrill after another, a whole series of them; one gasp after another, more than a dozen of them. There are tigers, leopards, cobras, man-eating crocodiles and great herds of wild elephants. Each in their capture before the eye of the camera furnishes a hair raising episode in this picture. Here comes the greatest thrill of all: the capture alive of a perfect specimen of the great "Mawas." This feat alone necessitated great precautions and months of time, as the "Mawas" are shrewd and cunning and are not easily led into a trap. First a female and her baby is sighted. The baby is caught alive and secured, with four in the hearts of the hunters, knowing that it would not be long until the mother would try to recover it, hunting with her the greatest, crudest and most feared killer of the jungle, the male "Mawas," which stands seven feet in height, weighing in the neighborhood of three hundred and fifty pounds.

It was not long until they stood face to face with the great baby beast and while in the heat of his capture the "Mawas" catches one of the members of our party a native hunter, while off his guard, and before assistance can be given him, he is crushed in a hand to hand battle, which costs him his life.

"Mawas" in the native tongue means wild man of the jungle, or orang-outang, which can only be found in the deepest and farthest regions of the jungles of Sumatra and Borneo.

"Mawas" also gives a detailed description of native life in Sumatra. Sumatra is an enormous island lying directly west of Borneo in the Dutch East Indies. The natives are of a light yellow complexion, well developed physically.
