'Twas the Night Before Christmas

—And breathless, the children expected St. Nick. How to garner more presents was their chiefest surmise. Until Tru-Bakes, they decided, would sure do the trick—and pleasantly please and surprise Old St. Nick.

Clubs Receive Certificates For The Last Year

County Agricultural Agent Wray Lawrence, who has been exceptionally successful with 4-H club work this year, has recently received from the state and federal departments, certificates for three of the livestock clubs of the county, which signifies that the individual members of the clubs carried through to successful completion all their club projects for the club year which has just closed. These certificates are quite attractive and bear the signature of state and national officials.

The three clubs which carried out their year successfully were, the Holstein Dairy Calf club of Cove of which John Comstock was the leader, the Cove Dairy Calf club, which had Allen Mills as leader and the Union County Beef club, lead by Lester Hokland. The individual members of these three clubs completed their projects, finished their record books, the club held six meetings during the year, and members exhibited at local or state fairs.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS HINTING EARLY

* * *

It takes a real diplomat to get over what you want for Christmas without saying it.

* * *

Just 11 days more to pay that account for last year's Christmas presents, that you solemnly promised to take care of by the first of the year.

* * *

Christmas bills came New Year edits.

* * *

Kids merely ask for what they want

And usually they get it;
But dad must always foot the bills
While Santa gets the credit.

* * *

It's a gift to successfully pretend you are surprised at the gifts you receive.

YOUR COMPETITORS

Don't worry about your competitors. They are the spice of life. They are the zest of business.

If it weren't for your competitors there would be more and try all over you and your business.

You are losing more money by neglect than you are by competition.

You are losing more by waste—by lack of team play—by jogging along in a rut.

If your competitors are ahead of you, be a good loser. Don't sulk and make excuses.

Then play the game harder. Get at it with all the brains you have and all the brains you hire.

Don't settle down to be a tail-ender with a grouch. Make up your mind to win.

Show your competitors that you are still in the running.

Then, when Christmas comes (again) you might send a present to every one of your competitors with a card saying, "Many thanks for having kept me alive during the past year."

Yes—Why not?

When a man becomes a crab, he starts going backward.

If a newspaper is crumpled and then rubbed over the gas stove top after each meal while the stove is still a bit warm all grease and dirt will wipe off with it and the stove will always look clean and polished.

When Brain Works Best

The best brain work is said to be done in the latitude of New York about the end of November or early part of December, or, in other words, a month or six weeks after one's physical strength is greatest.

Made in England

Parchment, which is now popular in America for university degrees and diplomas, is still made in Havant, a Hampshire town, by the same methods and on the same site as it has been for a thousand years.

RADIUM'S ATTACK ON CANCER

By Orville M. McIand, M. D., Los Angeles, California

Despite its increasing use in the treatment of cancer the average patient knows little about radium. Frequently he asks, "What is it and how does it work?" Radium is an element high in the chemical series, but it differs from most elements in that it is very unstable. That is, it disintegrates from explosions which are continually taking place within itself, giving rise to what is termed radioactivity. These explosions result in three different phenomena which are observed in their nature. First, a heavy particle, called the alpha particle, is shot out into space. It carries a positive charge of electricity and travels at a speed of nine thousand miles per second. Second, a small particle, called the beta particle, is ejected. This carries a negative charge of electricity and has a speed of from sixty to one hundred and twenty-five thousand miles per second. Third, as a result of the eruptions of alpha and beta particles, a disturbance in the surrounding atmosphere takes place which results in the gamma ray. These rays have such great penetrative powers that at least one and a quarter inches of lead is required to cut them off.

In order to get the quality of radiation needed, the radium preparation is placed in containers of glass, brass, silver, gold, platinum or lead. These are spoken of as filters and screens. The desired effect is obtained by placing a container on the growth. But where adequate dosage at the depth of a tumor cannot be assured by surface application, platinum or gold needles filled with radium, or small seeds of platinum and gold filled with radium, gas known as radon, are planted into the growth.

How does radium work? Many theories have been advanced but none have been proven. It does, however, set up an inflammation which accompanies the disappearance of the tumor. Observation has shown that some cells of the body are unstable and easily affected by outside forces. Most cancer cells fall into this group since they are immature. When the rays of radium pass through them, a commotion is set up in the nucleus which results in nutritional disorders and the cell dies.
