GRAIN MARKETS FIRMER IN WEEK

Influenced by Some Improvement in Foreign Demand for Wheat.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 24 (Special)—Grain markets developed a decidedly firmer tone for the week ending March 22, influenced by some improvement in foreign demand for North American wheat, occasioned by a sharp reduction in offerings from the southern hemisphere and diminishing supplies of native wheats in Europe, according to the weekly grain market review of the United States bureau of agricultural economics. Rye and feed grain prices were carried upward with wheat, while a more active inquiry for the moderate offerings of corn, oats and barley was also a strengthening factor. Flax advanced with other grains.

The firmness in foreign wheat markets as a result of the reduction in shipments from Argentina and Australia, was principally responsible for the advance in domestic markets. Southern hemisphere shipments for the week totaled only 2,725,000 bushels, and Black Sea shipments only about 256,000 bushels. These relatively small shipments, together with the diminishing supplies of native wheat in Europe, stimulated demand for the North American wheat. North American export sales however, during the week were largely of Canadian wheat, and prices at Winnipeg advanced around 5c per bushel, compared with an advance of only 5c per bushel in domestic markets. Prices of wheat for March delivery at Liverpool advanced about 11c per bushel. Quotations on foreign wheats in English markets also advanced sharply, but both Russian and Argentine were selling well below quotations on U. S. wheat and domestic exports continued negligible. On March 21 No. 1 Canadian Manitoba wheat afloat from Vancouver was quoted at London at $1.26½, No. 2 Manitoba at $1.24½; No. 3 Manitoba at $1.21½ per bushel. Australian wheat afloat was quoted at London at $1.19½, and 42 lb. Bombs from Argentina at $1.12½. A small cargo of Russian wheat was reported sold at $1.06½ per bushel. No quotations were available on United States wheat in English markets, but No. 2 hard winter for export was quoted f. o. b. New York at $1.12½. Native wheats were quoted generally firmer in European markets. Good milling wheat at Hamburg was quoted at $1.07½. The German import duty has again been increased and is now equivalent to about 77½c per bushel. Native wheat at Paris was quoted at $1.25½, and at Genoa at $1.29½ per bushel.

Wheat

Domestic cash wheat markets followed closely the advance in futures, and on March 21 closed 5c to 6c higher than a week ago. Domestic prices were mostly above an export basis and current offerings were taken almost entirely by mills and other domestic industrial buyers. Country offerings were not large, reflecting the relatively small farm stocks, but daily arrivals were generally equal to trade requirements. New winter wheat crop conditions are still reported generally favorable, although there has been some local damage in the soft winter wheat areas and more moisture is needed in the northwest and in the Pacific northwest.

Pacific coast wheat markets strengthened with eastern markets, but demand both from exporters and domestic buyers continued dull. Cash grain advanced around 14c per bushel at Portland, where No. 1 Big Bend bluestem hard white was quoted at $1.22, No. 1 soft and western white at $1.11½, and No. 1 hard winter, northern spring and western red at $1.09 per bushel. Big Bend bluestem was quoted at Seattle at $1.23, white wheats at $1.12½, red wheats at $1.12, 14 per cent protein No. 1 dark hard winter from Montana at $1.13, and No. 1 dark northern spring at $1.14 per bushel. Quotations on Montana wheat were for grain in bulk. Mills provided about the only outlet for the current arrivals which were of moderate volume. No export sales of wheat were reported from Columbia river points either to the Orient or Europe and export flour business was also quiet. A fairly large amount of export business was worked out of Vancouver to both Europe and the Orient, according to trade reports, at prices below current domestic quotations at Portland and Seattle. Considerable reseeding of winter wheat will be necessary in the Palouse and Big Bend sections, but the ground is now very dry and unfavorable for spring seeding, according to trade advices.
