Ask me a question and I'll give you a joke for an answer.

All right, what's your name?

* * *

Shock—What would your mother do if I were to kiss you?

Shirley—Lose a lot. She says you haven't got the nerve!

* * *

Old Lady—Tell me, dear, what is your little friend crying for?

Boy—He's not crying, madam—he's been playin' tennis with one of his mother's waiters.

* * *

Nancy—This morning while I was preparing my husband shrew a biscuit at me, a biscuit I had made for him myself.

Sally—The big brute. It might have killed you.

* * *

The man who never makes a mistake has been found, but he's contemplating a vacation in the cemetery.

* * *

Jean—Couldn't you get Charlie to propose to you?

Sadie—No, he's on the wagon now.

* * *

When a man goes with a pretty golddigger, he soon discovers that beauty skin deep.

* * *

LOVE MAY BE BLIND, BUT IT CAN'T HELP BUT SEE AN EXPENSIVE CAR.

* * *

A man was slowly recovering from a relapse which he had suffered after an operation. The doctor called early that morning and was frankly relieved to find his patient better.

Doctor—Honestly, Mr. Vanderbilt, last night I expected to see you Over on the spangle sky minute.

* * *

Newsboy, a couple marries and the first thing you know they have a little divorce.

* * *

Mom—Did you let him kiss you?

Mildred—Yes, he said he wanted it I didn't.

Anne Lindbergh Deserts The Air For the Quiet of Englewood Home

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP)—Within the last few weeks Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh has virtually deserted the sky highways for a quiet stay here at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow.

Reports have it that Mrs. Lindbergh is expected to become a mother—that "We" soon will be "We Three."

With one known exception, a short flight with her husband May 27, Anne Lindbergh has remained in comparative seclusion since that breath-taking, record-breaking transcontinental hop with Colonel Lindbergh April 29, Easter Sunday.

That was the climax to nearly a year of almost record-breaking aerial adventure and achievement for the Lone Eagle's wife.

High spots of Anne Lindbergh's aerial ventures since her marriage May 27 last year follow:

She learned to fly and navigate an airplane, and received her pilot's license.

She won her glider pilot's license.

She navigated the plane in which she and her husband set a speed record for transcontinental flight.

She photographed from the air ancient "ghost cities" of the Mayan jungle.

Mrs. Lindbergh's flights since her marriage total nearly 20,000 miles. They include:

Two transcontinental flights to Los Angeles and return.

A 7,000 mile trip over the Mayan jungles and through the Caribbean sea region.

A trip west to the Cleveland air races and return.

A trip to Maine and return.

A race westward as far as Wichita, Kas., to hunt for the lost T. A. T. transport, City of San Francisco.

Glider flights in California this spring.

Innumerable short plane hops, alone and with her husband.
