Joseph Student Among Winners At Enterprise

By Mrs. Maude L. Newsom
(Observer Correspondent)

JOSEPH, Ore. (Special.)—The finals in the county spelling contest were held Saturday at Enterprise. Those who were successful were Mona Leslie Hamilton, eighth grade, Liberty school; James Leonard, seventh grade, Lostine school; Laurie Burton, sixth grade, Joseph school; Young Jow, fifth grade, Enterprise school.

Frank Freeman left Monday for Montana to show sheep. He plans to go on to Philadelphia to visit his parents.

Mrs. Thomas Wright was up from Enterprise Friday visiting her sisters, Mrs. John Hayes and Mrs. Ed Lettell.

Mrs. M. L. Fenning, of Tacoma, Wash., who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Saville for the last two months, left Friday for her home. Mrs. Fenning did not take her small daughter with her but will return in two weeks for her. The baby is with her grandparents.

Roy Duncan, formerly of Joseph but now living in Enterprise, left Saturday for Portland to consult a specialist about his health. His sister, Miss Lillian Duncan, went him to La Grande and from there to west by train.

Mr. and Mrs. William Marr, who have spent the last year in the Willamette valley with their children, came back to their home in Joseph last week. Mr. and Mrs. Marr are pioneers, having lived here for the last 35 years. They are glad to be home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Lige Dudley, who have been farming on Prairie creek for several years, moved Saturday to the Divide where Mr. Dudley has a stock ranch.

Jack Isom was in from his farm on the Divide and reports the snow gone and stock doing well.

Alex Gillespie left recently with a crew of men to do the regular repair work and cleaning of the Silver Lake ditch. Mr. Gillespie has had charge of this work for several years.

Bad Stomach Cause of Bad Skin

You can't expect to have a good clear fresh-looking complexion if your stomach is weak and disordered.

Undigested food sends poisons through your whole body, pimples appear in your face, skin grows sallow and muddy and loses its color. Your tongue becomes coated, breath most unpleasant. But these troubles will end quickly and skin clear up if you will start today taking that simple herbal compound known to druggists as Tonlac.

Tonlac contains nothing but herbs, barks and roots which have a cleansing, healing effect on a poor upset stomach. Just a tablespoonful before each meal stimulates the digestion naturally so that you can eat what you want without fear of distress. And when your stomach is in good shape again see how much keener your appetite is—watch how quickly skin begins to grow free of disfiguring eruptions. The cost of Tonlac is less than a cent a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

Refuse Money to Advertise State Summer Schools

SALEM, Apr. 15 (AP) — Summer school advertising for the University of Oregon and Oregon State college in teachers' journals and trade journals of national circulation, was rejected by the state board of control Monday when requisitions and contracts covering orders were presented. A half dozen items calling for page and quarter page advertisements in these publications met with disapproval of Governor Julius L. Meier. The other two members of the board concurred.

Some of this advertising had already been ordered and when asked what disposition should be made of these coming from the Oregon State college, the governor said: "I talk to them perhaps will charge it to some other fund." The governor was emphatic in his rejection of these items, the total of which approximated $200.

While the board in its regular session approved numerous items from the state institutions of higher learning, several of the larger ones were held over for approval at the state board of higher education, which meets here next Monday. Among the items approved was one for $50 in prizes of "the detection of horse thieves in attendance at sessions." The board also refused to purchase films for a sound play at the Oregon State college.

Two members of the board, Governor Meier and Earl E. Rose, secretary of state, voted against the purchase of trimmings for Sam Brown belts for penitentiary guards. The governor declared the guards looked proud enough now and did not need the extra equipment. Treasurer Tom Kay voted for the item. Rose declared the Sam Brown belts should be kept only for state police officers. The governor also protested sending for samples of the latest style shirts for prisoners sent discharges from the penitentiary.

This Game Of Golf

By O. B. Keeler

I see the boys are getting in another argument — or controversy, a more dignified description—over the dominant side in the golf swing.

It probably was started by the report that a certain bright young professional has come out flat-footed, if you can apply that term to a swing, with the principle that the right hand, and arm, should be the controlling factors in the golfing stroke of a right-handed man.

He is said to be teaching his pupils that way. And some of the orthodox are taking exceptions.

This is nothing new or especially alarming. The old idea of the swing which struggles with the mechanical and not-excellent game perhaps preferable, was that the swing was led and controlled by the left hand, arm and side. A good many of our veteran elders even insisted that the larger proportion of power in the stroke also was supplied by the left arm.

THE OLD SWINGER

If you do not remember having seen any of those fine old round-house swingers of a golfing mill — it hasn't been swiped in nearly 20 years, now — you will have to go to the photographic illustrations of the old articles for some idea of the extreme freedom of the old swing, and the length of the arm.

Swing—don't hit was the motto of the day, and while I shall always believe any really good golfing swing includes a thoroughly emphatic hit, the man did have certainly swung at the ball—and the left side did appear to be the dominant factor, at any rate in the matter of guidance and control.

Now it seems to me that, with the modified swing of today—shortened and straightened up a bit, but by no means as upright as the style of Harry Vardon 30 years ago—the left arm is changed, or at any rate might to be changed, with the mastery and guidance of the stroke. As to the power-supply, I think anybody is rather inclined to endeavor to assign any marked dominance to either arm or hand.

TWO-HANDED BEATERS

As Bobby Jones well says, the golfing stroke is essentially a two-handed business. His idea further is that the main thought to be applied to the right hand of a right-handed golfer lies of keeping their power out of the stroke as long as possible. The right hand of a right-handed golfer always is on the job by the moment of impact and a lot of very ugly and loose shots may be charged to the right arm and hand getting into the blow too soon.

Bobby, who, by the way, perhaps is the best modern exemplar of the straight left arm in all full strokes, derives from the straight left an apparently logical support for the contention that that arm and side control the proper swing.

The right arm, you see, is properly held all through the backward swing and the forward stroke until impact. The hand is not constant; it is more and then less, it varies continually through the progress of the stroke until after the ball is struck.

Thus the right arm, even though the more dextrous and useful of the two, in any single operation, is less trustworthy as a guide for the "groove" of the stroke than the left arm, which is constantly straight until after the ball has departed.

Farmer Witness In Liquor Trial In Federal Court

PORTLAND, Ore., Apr. 15 (AP)—Testimony in federal court here where 18 defendants in the Thompson-Brown liquor conspiracy case are on trial, was resumed today when E. L. Weiss, government witness, testified that he is a farmer, was interrupted while planting strawberries on his farm with a proposition to turn up back into a distillery.

He testified that Walter Brown, alleged ring-leader of the syndicate, and Walter L. Thorne, Jr., prominent attorney, are among those indicted, charged with operating one of the largest liquor rings in the Pacific Northwest.

Weiss, arrived in overalls and boots, drove the courtroom into laughter and order was demanded repeatedly.

He said he was approached by Frank Hodgson, under indictment, but a fugitive. He testified he told Hodgson he would "think it over." Later, he said, he "cleaned up the farm" and still was brought to his place after he and Roy Cameron, another government witness, had agreed to permit the plant to operate on the promises.

Questioned by an attorney as to who brought the still to the farm, Weiss answered "You put me delu— I don't know."

MORNING OPENS FISHING SEASON

only was go ahead but it would be to use as he had already asked without any fuss. Mr. Palmer went to anglers and within sight of the farmers house caught 20 nice Bailtow trout, averaging in size from seven to 14 inches. He gave the farmer part of the catch, bringing 15 to La Grande.

Many other anglers are reported fishing today but most of them didn't returned when the Observer went to press.

Dolan And Pelz Fight to a Draw

PORTLAND, Ore., Apr. 15 (AP) — Mickey Dolan and Benny Pelz, Portland lightweights, staged a three sensational battle here last night, going ten blazing rounds to a draw. Each dropped the other for a count of eight. In the fifth round Dolan floored Pelz with a terrific right to the jaw. In the sixth Benny retaliated, dropping Mickey to the canvas with a similar blow.

Pete Corbett, Pa Hill, Wash., heavyweight, made short work of Cyclone Thompson, Tacoma, dropping him for a count of nine in the first, the bell saving him. The referee stopped the battle in the second to save Thompson further punishment.

OPPOSITION ENCOUNTERED BY GOVERNOR

the governor's recommendation was rejected. Rose pointed out that the case had been fully investigated by the board previously, that all of the facts in the case including the claim of the parents for compensation had been laid before the ways and means committee of the legislature and the claim rejected, and that he did not feel that the board had any authority to pay such a claim when no money had been provided for it by the ways and means committee. Kay concurred in Rose's motion but told the governor that he would join with him in recommending to the next legislature that some compensation be provided.

Another Battle Renewed

The battle between Governor Meier on the hand and Rose, Kay and Henry Meyers, superintendent of the prison, on the other hand over the type of cell doors to be used in the construction of the new cell block of the penitentiary and whether or not the doors are to be assembled and installed by the prison management or by private contractors had been renewed before the board of control.

Questioned by Kay as to his reasons Meier said that he did not feel it was safe to permit convicts to manufacture and place the fronts of the cells in which they were to be locked for safe keeping.

In a lengthy prepared statement which he asked be made a part of the record the governor also said that he felt that the work should be done by contract by "private enterprise, especially in view of the unemployment situation." The governor said that by letting this work to private contractors work could be provided "sixty-five men for a period of three months or possibly four. Furthermore the nature of the work makes it necessary to avoid any possibility of collusion when it comes to the safeguarding of convicts. The work should be done by outside help and the responsibility placed with the contractor. The saving thus effected will approximate $8000 to say nothing of the fact that the work will be done in the state and the money retained here."

DIET IN TUBERCULOSIS—III

The tuberculous individual who is free from digestive disturbances should be an uncommon exception.

He should include in his diet a wide selection of the common food staples — meat, fish, cereals, vegetables, eggs, milk and milk foods.

But he should avoid an excess of any one food article. His meals should be balanced — that is, they should contain proteins, fats and sugars, as well as vitamins.

Fried foods, spices and foods known to be hard to digest, such as, for example, as pork, should be avoided. Tea and coffee are preferably excluded from the diet, or if taken at all should be drunk weak and in moderate quantities.

Alcohol in any form should not be included in the diet nor taken at any other time. Alcohol accelerates the pulse thus robbing the body of its much needed rest. It is a stimulant and stimulants have no place in the treatment of tuberculosis.

The tuberculous patient who suffers from digestive disturbances should have his diet prescribed for his physician. Depending upon the nature and cause of his complaint certain food items may be excluded from his diet and others given a prominent place.

It is unwise for such a patient to experiment upon himself. Situations and treatment are safer in the hands of the trained physician.

It is also important that the food habits of the tuberculous patient should be regular. Whatever number of meals he takes he should eat at regular hours and without haste. He should avoid eating between meals, except in the case of so-called regular supplemental meals.

The eating of sweets or candies, except at the end of meals tends to spoil appetite. Excess smoking and smoking just before eating time are liable to have the same effect.
