How excellent is thy loving kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasure.—Psalm 36: 7, 8.

PROFITS OUT OF WAR

The Senate's investigation into the manufacture and traffic in arms and munitions touches on one of those subjects which float about near the surface for years without ever coming out into the light of day. The job of making weapons and gunpowder has been in private hands ever since such things were invented. War has always meant increased profits to the munitions makers.

Modern warfare, which uses munitions at an almost infinitely greater rate than was the case a generation ago, simply increases those profits to astronomical proportions. Everybody has known this all along. But so far no government has taken any very definite step to find out just how this relationship of public fighting to private profit may affect a nation's chances for keeping the peace.

An article in the current issue of Harper's Magazine by John Gunther touches up a few of the highlights of this situation. He points out, for instance, that when the Japanese fought the Chinese in Shanghai a couple of years ago, the Japanese soldiers "took a one-in-three chance that if they were killed or wounded, bullets made for profit by their own countrymen would do the job." He points out, also, that German munitions makers helped finance the rise of Hitler—because, obviously, Hitler in power meant more business for the munitions firms. As a matter of fact, munitions makers in France and Czechoslovakia are strongly suspected of having contributed to the Hitler campaign funds—for the same reason.

What all this comes down to, of course, is that there is a strong market interest in the world which derives real financial advantage from war and preparation for war. Continued peace means bad business for these people; real disarmament would almost ruin them. Mr. Gunther puts it bluntly as follows:

"Two hundred-odd firms in the world earning solid cash profits on unlimited orders of unlimited image make it clear that disarmament, fundamentally an industrial problem, is impossible to achieve under the present economic system."

Maybe that language is a little strong. In any case, the senate will do the nation a real service if it looks into the whole subject very thoroughly.

WILLIAM WOODIN DIES LAST NIGHT OF THROAT DISEASE

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP) — William H. Woodin, the frail little secretary of the treasury who helped plot the nation through the 1933 banking crisis, is dead.

He succumbed last night to complications which followed a throat infection. He would have been 66 years old May 27.

The throat trouble developed last summer and forced him to leave the treasury post in November.

When told of Mr. Woodin's death, President Roosevelt said at Washington:

"I am deeply shocked and distressed by the passing of my dear friend."

An industrialist at the expense of a boyhood ambition to be a doctor, Mr. Woodin turned to music after his 60th birthday and achieved note as a composer.

Funeral services will be held Sunday, May 6, at the Methodist church, South, at 2:30 p. m. with Rev. A. J. Stamper officiating, and interment will be in the family plot in the Island City cemetery.

Mrs. Johnson, who was born in Polk county, Mo., came to the Grande Ronde valley with her folks when about 12 years old, where she was married to Frank E. Johnson who preceded her in death in Dec. 1930.

Mrs. Johnson was a life long member of the Methodist church, South, being also a member of the Ladies Aid of that church and was an earnest and active worker in all church activities.

She is survived by three sons, Roy and Glen E. Johnson, of La Grande, and Leonard Johnson, of Portland; two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Conrad, of La Grande and Mrs. Gladys Keith, of Portland; one brother, John Crawford of La Grande; two sisters, Mrs. M. Fitzgerald, of Elgin, and Mrs. Maude E. Howell, of Pendleton, Ore., and by four grandchildren.

The body rests at Walker's Funeral Home, where friends may call.

Jesus who laid his hands in the days when He was on earth, but that in the present age it was the supposed friends of Jesus who were guilty of tying his hands and hindering the work which might otherwise prosper.

Over 100 delegates gathered at the meeting last night, and about half of this number were from out of the city. The sessions today included a conference this morning for ministers led by Rev. C. F. Swander, corresponding secretary of the Oregon missionary society of Portland. The survey of the Eastern Oregon field was given this morning by Rev. Paul De F. Mortimore followed by a discussion of the ways and means of improving these conditions and a general discussion of the facts given in this report. Dr. Childers gave his second address this morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Clifford Trout, of Walla Walla, conducted the devotional service which closed the morning's program.

The program this afternoon included reports from the various churches represented followed by a session conducted by Mr. Swander when state missions were discussed.

The program for this evening will open with the young people banquet at 6:30 in the basement of the church when a number of delegates of young people are expected to arrive for this particular session, in addition to those already in attendance. At this banquet the summer conference at Walla Walla Lake will be the topic with talks given by the various young people.

Dr. Childers will speak again this evening at 8:00 following the song service and anthem by the local church choir.

Business sessions will be the main feature of tomorrow's program and the convention will close at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Pendleton Team Big Favorite to Win Meet

the Pioneers' strength than they do the Tigers.

La Grande, since 1918, has won 13 Eastern Oregon meets, the longest string of unbroken victories being the five years from 1925 to 1929, inclusive. Pendleton has won eight times with the Bucks, longest string from 1921 to 1924—four years in a row. Baker won twice in 1912 and 1913, and Ontario won in 1911. No meets were held in 1917, 1918 and 1919 because of the World war.

Now for a look at that Pendleton team, which seems sure-bound for the championship.

Orval McCommach, Chad Gilchrist, and Dean Galloway, consistent point winners in the meets in which the Bucks have participated this season, are expected to carry the burden of the Buckaroo attack. McCommach will enter the high hurdles, his specialty, the pole vault and the quarter. Gilchrist, with better than creditable marks in his three events, will participate in the shot, discus and javelin events. Galloway, undefeated in the broad jump and low hurdles this season, will enter both in the meet at La Grande. In addition, both Galloway and McCommach run on the relay team.

In addition to those mentioned above other Buckaroos who are expected to participate in the meet are Roy Conde, pole vault, low hurdles; William Emery, 880; Gerald Gringhead, 100, broad jump, high jump; Billie Isaac, 100, 220, relay; William Largent, 440, mile; Phil Lasater, shot, discus, javelin; Francis Schmidt, javelin, high jump; Harold Searcy, 100, 220, relay; Reggie Snyder, 880, mile. Other possible contestants are Bob Bond, high jump, and James McLoughlin, 440.

The preliminary events will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, finishing about 12, and the finals in all 14 events will start at 2 p. m.

The track is in excellent condition.

Besides Wallace, another middle westerner who is believed to have considerable strength, the names some of those mentioned as possibilities included:

Alias Stevens, Theodore Roosevelt Jr., and Charles D. Hilles, of New York; Senator Dickinson, of Iowa; George H. Moses, former senator from New Hampshire; Ralph E. Williams, of Oregon, present vice chairman; Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, and Jasper E. Goodrich, former governor of Indiana.

MOTHERS

There's a love that passeth understanding,
A love that's brighter than a star;
It surrounds us every moment,
It will not tarnish will not mar.

It is love that's always present,
We feel it every day in life—
It is love that never ceases,
Lives through bourne with daily strife.

Of course, it is the love of mothers,
A love that never, never dies;
Encompassing us every moment
And fraught with many weary sighs.

And therefore let us sing to mothers
And to their very sacred love—
A love that lives through storm and trouble,
A love that cometh from above.

Aye, let us sing a song to mothers,
We could find no sweeter song
Than now to praise God's sweetest creatures
While their days are growing long.

Franklin Lee Stevenson

When our service becomes necessary we try to extend it with dignity and poise.
