UNCOMMONLY COOL

UNEVEN DISTRIBUTION RAINFALL DURING WEEK.

Recent Rains Were Very Beneficial to All Late Crops—Oat Crop Better Than Wheat—Prune, Pear and Raspberry Crops Good, But Cherries Have Been Damaged.

The past week has been cloudy, with frequent showers, and it was unseasonably cool. The rainfall was light in the eastern part of the state, but good rains fell in the western and southern sections. They were very beneficial to all late sown crops, such as spring grain, potatoes and corn, and they also did great good to the ranges, which have heretofore been short for the season of the year.

Many meadows are now over-ripe, and bright, warm weather is needed for haying. Some clover hay has been cut, and the rains have damaged it, but the amount spoiled in this way is small, as the farmers generally have put off haying until the weather becomes more settled.

The condition of wheat continues to improve. Fall wheat is ripening nicely, and its harvest will become general in about two weeks. The heads of spring wheat are of good size and they are filling under favorable conditions. The oat crop is in even better condition than wheat. In Southern Oregon the rains came too late to help grain, and more than the usual amount will be cut for hay. Hops continue making good advancement.

Prunes and pears are unusually promising. Cherries have been badly injured by the rains. Raspberries are plentiful, and the outlook for apples is good.

Columbia River Valley.

Ridgeway, Wasco county, M. U'Ren—Weather cloudy, with high winds; cherries and raspberries ripening rapidly; fall sown rye and barley being cut for hay; crop rather light, but quality good.

Condon, Gilliam county, F. B. Stevens—Weather cool and partly cloudy; crops growing finely; wheat and barley promise extra good yields; gardens in excellent condition.

Echo, Umatilla county, John Dorn—Weather generally favorable for maturing grain; some harvesting being done, high wind Wednesday and Friday; first crop alfalfa harvested; gardens and orchards doing well.

Pendleton, Umatilla county, H. J. Taylor—Some rain early part of week; heavy winds of two days' duration were hard on wheat and barley, but did not do much damage as far as I can see; haying in progress; potatoes doing finely; gardens good; harvest will begin in two weeks; wheat promises a first-class grain, but the crop will be short.

Plateau Region.

Deschutes, Crook county, John Atkinson—Weather warm and pleasant; crops growing well and indications are for a good crop of wild hay and a fair crop of rye hay.

Prairie City, Grant county, John W. Hall—Week generally warm; crops are growing nicely, with prospects favorable for good yields; strawberries and cherries are ripe.

Burns, Harney county, Mel Fenwick—Weather cool, windy and cloudy; rain badly needed; in the irrigated districts grain and gardens are late, but growing rapidly; hay crop will be below the average, except alfalfa, which is heavier than usual; potatoes are in excellent condition.

Klamath Falls, Klamath county, Francis J. Bowen—Light rain the first of week and light frost the morning of the 2d; stock doing nicely, but the range in general is poor; alfalfa haying has just commenced.

THE MEADOWS A LAKE.

Unprecedented Rains in Blue Mountains—Water Ran Down Canyon Gullies in Torrents.

The incessant rains in the Blue mountains have made a lake of the government Meadows in Umatilla county, says the Walla Walla Union. Recent excursions of picnickers from Walla Walla to the grassy plateau in the mountain tops have been disappointments. Last week it rained there every day, and the rain Saturday afternoon and night simply made a lake of the country.

Rains have been general and unprecedented over all the Blue mountain ridges, extending from Columbia county south and west. W. H. B. Kent, agent of the bureau of forestry, spent several weeks in the Columbia county mountains, and reports that it rained most of the time.

At Russell Springs in Umatilla county, the rain came down in sheets during the afternoon of July 4, and began again about 9 o'clock and continued three or four hours. Every gully on the canyon side ran a torrent. Thunder and lightning accompanied the rain.

The mountain roads were badly washed in places by the rain, although the improved thoroughfares in the foothills stood the downpour without injury.
