SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION IS OPENED TO PUBLIC TODAY

CELEBRATION WILL COMMEMORATE THE OPENING OF THE PANAMA CANAL.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 1.—San Diego's Panama-California exposition opened today.

Commemorating the opening of the Panama canal and the close alliance between the United States and Latin America, the big year-round fair opened promptly at midnight, when President Wilson, from his bed in the White House in Washington, touched the button that set the whole exposition grounds ablaze with light.

As the lights of the exposition grounds flashed out, aerial bombs were exploded, the guns of warships in the harbor and at Fort Rosecrans, across the bay, boomed out and a great cheer went up from thousands of throats. Packing the exposition grounds to overflowing, crowding through the city streets the great throng joined in the carnival of joy which lasted through the whole night, ending only with the dawn of New Year's day.

Thousands of visitors, flocking here from all over the country on special and regular trains, steamships and by automobiles, all but swamped the hotels and apartment house keepers. Probably never before has a city of 90,000 cared for so large a crowd of visitors.

In the eastern zone of operations war is still an affair of battles, but in the western zone it has resolved itself into a series of scientific assassinations.

You can't make both ends meet by stretching your imagination.
