MEMORY OF CHRISTMAS GREENS FRESH IN GLEAM OF NEW JADE NECKLACE

BY MARGARET ROHE.
(Written for the United Press.)

Poor Percy thought "Sweets to the sweet"
A brilliant thing to say
And so to copy it he tried
When he sent Xmas day
A strand of green and lovely beads
To Sue, but I'm afraid
The friendship ne'er will be the same
He wrotes "Jades to a jade."

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Christmas greens have only just disappeared from our midst but their memory is still kept green in the gleam of jade for there was scarcely a smart Xmas stocking this year that did not divulge a gift of this Chinese stone among its offerings.

In fact a perfect jade craze is now on among fair frail followers of Fashion and lapidaries are reaping a golden harvest where they sow green stones. To be sure after the purchase of even the minutest charm in this precious stuff one's pocket book looks jaded but I doubt if even a boulder would make a bigger hit when cast at the feet of lady fair.

Ropes of graduated jade beads add just the right touch of color to a costume and more ornate necklaces of quaint uneven bits of the jade combined with pearls and Chinese carved yellow gold and finished with either tassels of pearls and gold or carved charms of jade are wonderfully effective. Often the jade beads are strung on silken cord of green in a darker shade knotted between the beads.

A carved jade charm dangling alone on a cord of silk hung 'round many an attractive throat and is something to hang on to not only for its beauty but for guarantee against evil spirits and evil eyes.

All sorts of members of the animal kingdom are done in jade—dogs, elephants, and monkeys climbing on a stick. The square carved anklets are really the most stunning and lucky indeed are the ears from which a pair of these carved squares dangle when converted into earrings. They are quite enough to make all who behold turn green as the jade itself with very envy.

The disk of jade with a hole in the middle like a salvation Army doughnut is another effective design for both earrings or charms and when mounted on a lengthy pin it serves to pierce a smart chapeau with such all around perfection its no wonder the wearer is attracted to it.

Bracelets of jade, plain or carved or combined with yellow gold circle wrists or arms above the elbow or else little jade charms and animals cling desperately to slender wrist of platinum or gold.

RED CROSS SERGEANTS STRIKE FOR MORE PAY
