For these two days we will have here for your choosing a complete factory line of the choicest of furs comprising about $10,000 worth of the season's newest ideas.

THE PRICES WILL BE VERY ATTRACTIVE.

The vogue for furs has reached the highest point in years! Perhaps it is because of an inexplicable turn of Fashion but we are convinced that it is because of the superb beauty of the models the designers have created. Whatever the cause, the fact remains that the 1920-1921 furs are developed to a nicety never before attained.

Here are large all-enveloping Coats and Capes, short Coats and Vestees, Muffs, Scarfs and sets in a variety of pelts large enough to suit anyone. Fox and Hudson Seal are by far the leaders, though some unusually rich effects are produced by others which have the advantage of being less costly. This display is a complete index of the choicest fashions brought out for Fall and Winter. Won't you accept our invitation to see it?

BROCADE FOR EVENING

Here is a model of white faille, brocaded with green gold. First, there is a foundation of white silk cut with a bandeau top. Over this is draped the brocade in princess style, cut diagonally from one shoulder to the hip where it is wired to stand out and disclose a facing of green chiffon.

Styles in hair-dressing for evening afford much liberty. With this type of gown a high coiffure is most suitable. The elongated side effect is suggested for simple gowns.

BROKE HIS PLEDGE

Speaker Seth M. Walker, Tennessee lower House, at the eleventh hour, broke his pledge to support suffrage.

Last year he spoke and voted for presidential and municipal suffrage in Tennessee. Five days before the legislature met he told members of the National Woman's party that he would support ratifying. After Walker's strong declarations to the women that they could depend upon him to support suffrage, he switched and did everything within his power against it
