Great Missionary Lecturer Coming.

Dr. Royal J. Dye of Bolenge, Africa, a famous medical missionary, will be at the tabernacle Sunday night and give an address on Africa and its needs. The Dark Continent is awakening and Mr. Dye can tell of some of its great needs. His lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views of the Congo country. A splendid set of views is to be shown during the lecture.

A word about Dr. Dye and his work. He has been at Bolenge, Africa, for about seven years and has built up a great church of over 500 members. This church is wonderful in many respects. Every member is a tither, and for every ten members a native worker is sent out into the nearby fields and is supported by the Bolenge church.

One of the great needs of that country is a steamboat to sail up and down the great Congo river. Another great need is Christian civilization and public schools. Dr. Dye will tell of the customs, habits, dress and appearances of the Congo people.

This is an opportunity that seldom comes to the people of Medford, the opportunity of hearing a man who has been in the heart of the dark continent for seven years. At the tabernacle Sunday night at 7:30. Come early and bring a friend.

WAR IN BALKANS IS DUE IN APRIL

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—A declaration of war by Austria upon Servia early in April is predicted by the Daily Tageblatt today. The Tageblatt declares it possesses official information that unless Servia ceases a campaign of insult and provocation Austria will take action. It is rumored Austria sought last Saturday to obtain the consent of the European powers to a temporary occupation of Servia. It is believed Austria's failure to obtain consent resulted from the opposition of Russia to the scheme.

The nagging of Servia has increased Austria's irritation since the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Bees and the Death's Head.

The bees have an enemy who cares little for their honey and who gorges himself with honey if he can manage to enter a hive. This is the death's head moth, an enormous and powerful moth, the markings of which look like a skull. He is covered with long, soft, hairy scales to correspond, which these moths are whether the bees are as hard to it as they were in the spring. He hides in or at the door of the hive and, though the infuriated insects pounce upon him, bite and try to kill him, he is so well protected that they do not long succeed in penetrating his fleece.

When these insects are about the bees seem to be rewarded to every one who can find out the whereabouts of the moth. Some bees, by the entrance of their hives, are seen with only a narrow opening just big enough for them to enter, but not big enough for the huge thief. Others build up before the entrance a series of parallel walls, leaving a single corridor, through which only the bees can pass. It works on the same principle as a turnstile in a dark. Once in, only a man can pass out for a time.

Intelligent Ducks.

A young duck by some accident had its leg broken, and, the wounded limb having been cut in splints, the duck was placed in a rolled cage, or crate, to prevent it for a time from running about. The prisoner asked very forlorn, and the pity of its brothers and sisters was excited in its behalf, and they tried to release their companion by forcing their necks under the crate and lifting it, but the effort was beyond their strength. Then they held a consultation and succeeded away.

Presently they reappeared with all the ducks in the community, amounting to about forty. After a great deal of quacking they succeeded the crate and every duck was used to a school girl to raise the crate, and it did take no body or two, but that was all.

Another consultation was held, and after another storm of quacking the whole array came to one side of the crate. As many as possibly could now thrust their necks beneath the rail the rest pushing the forward from behind. This time they succeeded. The crate was raised, and their imprisoned friend was liberated and jumped out to receive the noisy greetings of its rescuers.

The Liberty Cap.

Many persons think that the "liberty cap," which is one of our national emblems, is of American origin, but, as a matter of fact, it comes to us from ancient times, when the Phrygians conquered the eastern part of Asia Minor. These warlike people wore it to distinguish themselves from those whom they had conquered.

The ancient Romans borrowed the emblem from the Phrygians, though they made it distinctly a symbol of liberty. They used a red cap and were in the habit of putting one on the head of a slave when he was made a freedman. At the time of the assassination of Julius Caesar a cap on a spear was carried by the conspirators as a token of liberty to Rome, and a medal was struck bearing that device.

England and France both adopted the cap as an emblem of liberty, the former using a blue cap with a white border and the latter a red cap. The American cap is blue with a border of gilt stars on a white background.

Telephone Fireworks.

The application of the Citizens' Telephone company for a franchise was thoroughly aired, going over until next Thursday night for final action.

In the discussion which followed the referring of the franchise to the city electrician, Messrs. Vawter, Anderson, Olwell, Crowell, Phillips and Marsh took a leading part, aside from the councilmen. Oratory flowed like water. The matter was compromised finally to come up again on Thursday night.

Appointments Made.

Mayor Canon tendered his appointments for the ensuing year, all of whom were confirmed by the council:

City attorney—Porter J. Neff.
Chief of police—H. G. Shearer.
City engineer—Harry E. Foster.

Oakdale to Pave.

The residents along Oakdale avenue petitioned the council to order the paving of their street. The matter was referred to the street committee.

office representing the great body of consumers.

These hearings are rushed through with all possible speed, because the country's business necessarily waits until the new tariff law is passed. After these brief hearings, the committee is supposed to digest such facts as the bulky volumes of such testimony disclose. No equity court would dare enter a decree in a single cause where the testimony took up even half the space of a single volume of these committee hearings, without first referring such testimony to a master in chancery to have it digested and reported.

Having attempted to sift those voluminous masses of scattered testimony thus hastily taken, the committee next goes to the even harder work of fixing new rates of duty. Before finally fixing them, they are supposed to become thoroughly acquainted with all the other elements, foreign and domestic, already mentioned which should determine those duties. The result of all this is a new tariff.

But we who are demanding an American tariff commission are asking only a commission which shall find out and digest the facts and make scientific classifications and report both to congress, so that congress may have all this preparatory work done when congress goes to its legitimate work of fixing tariff duties and determining tariff policies.

TWO BALLOONS MAKE SUCCESSFUL FLIGHTS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17.—The balloon American, with Captain August E. Miller in command, is near Los Nietos, 12 miles southwest of here, after a four passenger flight made from here yesterday.

The balloon United States landed near Santa Ana, 30 miles southeast, after having carried Roy Knabenshue and two other passengers over the country in the vicinity of Los Angeles yesterday afternoon.

Neither pilot attempted to make a long flight, both the American and the United States being inflated with illuminating gas. Yet the ascensions were considered highly successful, from the standpoint of pleasure trips.

The Ladies' Guild of the Episcopal church will meet on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. E. Daniels. All members are urged to be present.

INTEREST MANIFESTED IN CONSERVATION CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Keen interest is manifest as to what will be the program of subjects of the North American conservation conference between representatives of Canada, Mexico and the United States in this city February 18. In his letter to President Diaz of Mexico and Lord Grey of Canada, President Roosevelt outlined as the purpose of the conference the consideration of the "mutual interests involved in the conservation of natural resources," and the preparation of "a general plan adapted to promote the welfare of the nations concerned." There is a pretty well defined feeling, however, that definite topics will have to be discussed. That the Canadians take this view is indicated by the fact that they have sent to the national conservation commission compilations of specific regulations governing the disposal of their mineral resources.

Both Sides Suffer.

Last summer's forest fires on both sides of the line between the United States are so recent in the minds of both countries that undoubtedly the possibility of some co-operative scheme of fire protection is likely to be touched on. There are other important international questions concerning natural resources which can hardly fail of consideration.

The Canadian and Mexican delegates to the conference are coming prepared to contribute suggestions as well as to receive them. Their representatives at the international meeting will be prominent specialists on the various phases of the subject to be discussed. Conservation has not been limited to the United States. Early last year, for instance, every acre of the public timber lands in British Columbia, except what lies in a belt, was placed in forest reserves. This action was taken to check waste by bringing the care and husbanding of timber resources more effectually under government control. The Action affected 150,000,000 acres—as much land as was put into all homestead forests of this country up to 1907. In the Yukon all water power rights are granted for only 20 years and at the expiration of that time their control reverts to the public. The water power question is now one of the most important and far-reaching before the United States today. President Diaz of Mexico has a comprehensive knowledge of forestry and understands fully the benefits to be gained by its application. He is also deeply interested in the improvement of agricultural methods and the farmers of the country are rapidly adopting scientific methods. Mexico has few large waterways, but the nation has provided for the expenditure of several million dollars for the improvement of internal navigation.

Recent discussion in the Canadian parliament of President Roosevelt's proposal for co-operation for the conservation of the natural resources of the whole continent indicates that the support of the conservation movement in the dominion will be as thoroughly non-partisan as it is in the United States. R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition, was as enthusiastic in his support as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier, who expressed his deepest approval of the movement.
