MY VALENTINE

Who turns life's Winter into May,
Makes labor wear the guise of play—
And charms parterres from sterile clay?
My Valentine!

Who loves me for myself alone,
Seems gold and never yet has known
To want a dollar for her own?
My Valentine!

Who patiently hears me rehearse
My little ventures into verse,
And never says, "It might be worse?"
My Valentine!

Who makes me play the Caramouch
Who pulls me off my Sunday couch
And screams with joy when I cry, "Ouch!"
My Valentine!

Who twists my hair and plays my beard
Until I look both fierce and weird
Then chuckles when I'm mildly peered?
My Valentine?

Who robs me of all dignity,
And, though she's only just turned eight,
Like a Comanche riveth me?
My Valentine!
