November 26, 1948 - August 2, 2018

Woodson (Woody) Marion Hansell died August 2, 2018, after many years of battling cancer, with his wife Bobby at his side.

Hansell

Woody was born November 26, 1948, in Walla Walla, Washington, to parents Bill and Joyce Hansell. He was the third of five children, with two older brothers, Bill and Tyler, and two younger sisters, Kathi Hansell Hendrix and Alison Hansell Tasi. He was raised on the family farm north of Athena.

Woody graduated from McEwen High School in Athena in 1967. In high school he was in FFA, a member of the honor society, participated in sports, and played trombone in the band. Active in the Pendleton Presbyterian Church youth group, he was elected moderator of the Presbyterian Youth Synod his senior year.

He started 4-H in fourth grade and raised and showed livestock in 4-H and FFA, saving money to go to college. He loved animals and always had pets.

He chose to attend Washington State University, to follow in his family tradition. He was part of the third generation of Cougars. He was a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity.

Woody married Phyllis Leppke on September 5, 1975. A daughter Rebekah Lynn was born to this union. They later divorced.

He liked to know how things worked and could always help others understand their devices. Woody was a skilled electrician and had a lifelong passion for photography. He was a dedicated home school teacher. He will be remembered for his love of his extended family, twinkle in his eye, quick wit, and gentle manner.

Woody was proceeded in death by his parents, and brother Tyler. He leaves behind his wife, Bobby Hansell; daughter Rebekah Hansell; brother Bill Hansell; sisters Kathi Hendrix and Alison Hansell.

Those wishing to contribute in Woody's memory please consider giving to the Athena Civic Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 307, Athena, OR 97813, which supports students and projects in his hometown of Athena.

Won the Mega Millions jackpot. Now what?

By SCOTT MCFETRIDGE
Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — Despite the terrible odds — one in 302.5 million for those keeping score at home — someone will eventually match all six numbers and win the Mega Millions jackpot, now at $900 million. It could happen as soon as Friday night, when the next drawing is held, leaving most of us disappointed but some lucky winner beset by a host of questions.

Here are some answers for someone holding that prized lottery ticket.

I've won. Now what?

Lottery officials recommend winners take a deep breath, put their winning ticket in a safe spot and consult with a reputable financial planner before popping over to the lottery headquarters. Their first decision is whether to take the cash option, which would now be $513 million, or an annuity, with one initial payment and annual installments over 29 years. Nearly all winners opt for cash, but the annuity has advantages, as it reduces the tax bill a little and offers a stable flow of income that climbs by 5 percent annually.

How long do I have to claim the jackpot?

States have different rules, so depending where you purchased the ticket, you have from 180 days to a year.

Do I get my money instantly?

No, you can't just cash one of those oversized checks shown in all the winner photos. Payment speed also varies by state, but a week or two is common. Carole Gentry, a spokeswoman for the Maryland lottery, said the requirement is seven to 10 days in that state.

Can I keep my name secret?

Winners can remain anonymous in six states — Delaware, Kansas, Maryland, North Dakota, Ohio and South Carolina. In Arizona, people who win more than $600 can keep their names secret for 90 days after claiming prizes, but after that names are public record. In Michigan, winners are anonymous unless they win Mega Millions or Powerball prizes.

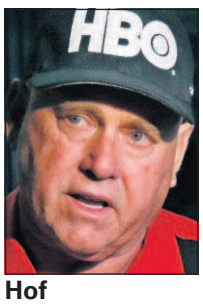
Nevada's famous pimp expected to win election despite death

By MICHELLE L. PRICE
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Nevada's most famous pimp tried to bring the state's legal brothel industry into the mainstream by mingling with celebrities, showcasing his business on HBO and staging outlandish publicity stunts.



Hof

Dennis Hof's fame made him an attention-grabbing figure in an otherwise quiet industry. And, despite being found dead on Tuesday, he's poised to win an election to the state Legislature in less than three weeks.

Hof, who starred in the HBO reality series "Cathouse," marketed himself as a Donald Trump-style Republican in his race for a heavily GOP Assembly district that includes wide stretches of desert where nuclear bombs were once tested.

His body was found at his Love Ranch brothel outside Las Vegas following a weekend of parties celebrating his 72nd birthday. Guests included porn actor Ron Jeremy, "Hollywood Madam" Heidi Fleiss, former Arizona sheriff Joe Arpaio and a mix of local politicians and friends.

No foul play is suspected, and it could be six weeks before a cause of death is determined, authorities said.

In the meantime, it's too late to change the ballots, which have been printed and mailed. Voting begins Saturday. Even though officials will post notices at the polls that Hof died, he seems likely to get elected.

"Just when I thought that there was nothing else in this race that could possibly shock me, here we are," Hof's campaign consultant, Chuck Muth, said Wednesday.

While waging a no-holds-barred campaign, Hof's incendiary style drew fans and well-known supporters, such as Trump adviser Roger Stone and Arpaio. But it also brought scrutiny to Hof's businesses and alienated him from the state's GOP establishment.

Nevada is the only state to allow legal prostitution, which occurs at about 20 licensed brothels in mostly rural areas.

Most brothel owners keep a low profile, offering few interviews and buying only subtle advertising. But Hof had a penchant for splashy billboards and stunts that included helping several women "auction" their virginity.
