Medford is looming up as a metropolis. It will be the rival of Hood River and Los Angeles if it keeps on for a few years. Fruit trees will be set out tributary to that town extending over 20,000, and as the many new orchards bring business the corner lots of Medford will be fortunes in themselves.

An employers liability law is the next thing. It will be the real thing. No employers' lobby has had anything to do with it.

Laidlaw is to have some very cheap water power developed. It is [illegible] that 40,000 horsepower is there. This will make a manufacturing town. Cheap power will attract capital and labor; but if the power remains a monopoly and is not managed with wisdom it will retard development after awhile.

Marshfield has been fooled so often by rumors of the Southern Pacific building a branch to it that the latest one will not boost land values much. The real thing would.
