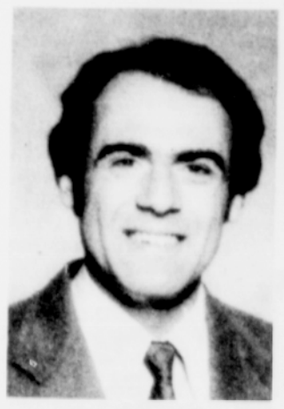
Democrat enters race for new senate seat

A warehouse employee for United Grocers filed Monday for the Democratic nomination for the Oregon State Senate from District 14.

Steve Starkovich, 27, of Canby is making his second bid for a Senate seat. In his first political endeavor four years ago, he was narrowly defeated in a Democratic primary contest by Sen. Richard Groener of Milwaukie.



Steve Starkovich

Starkovich thinks the Oregon economy, particularly as it relates to jobs, will be the issue in next year's political contests. He notes that his district is heavily reliant on the lumber and wood products industry where employment levels are down more than 20 percent from two years ago.

The 14th District includes the eastern and southern portions of Clackamas County, including Sandy, as well as the eastern portions of Marion, Linn and Lane counties.

Starkovich is a member of Teamsters Local 206. He has been active in local civic affairs and in local, state and national affairs.

He was Clackamas County Democratic Party chairman and a delegate to the county, state and national party conventions in 1980.

Recently he has served on the Clackamas County Library Board, Tri-City Chamber of Commerce and on the Community Leadership Task Force for Clackamas Community College.

Starkovich graduated from Oregon State University with a bachelor's degree in atmospheric sciences. He also attended University of Washington and Portland State University. He is also sole proprietor of Northwest Astroworks, a research and development enterprise in astronomy and astrophysics.

Publisher announces senate candidacy

A Silverton newspaper publisher announced last week that he will run as a Republican for the new State Senate District 14 seat.

Joe Davis

Joe Davis, 52, has been editor and publisher of the Silverton Appeal-Tribune and Mt. Angel News for more than 21 years.

He has been active civically, both at the local level and county-wide. He is a former chairman of the Silverton Elementary School Board, former president of the Silverton Area Chamber of Commerce and was named Silverton's Citizen of the Year in 1977.

Davis was also a member of the Marion County Juvenile Advisory Commission and the Marion County United Way Board of Directors. He is currently on the Board of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association.

Davis and his wife, Joan, have three children, two married daughters living in Oregon and a son who is in his final year of law school at Willamette University.

"I believe strongly in Oregon's tradition of citizen legislators," the Republican candidate said. "I believe the ever-longer Legislative session, and the thousands of bills they produce, are a direct result of political candidates who look upon the Legislature as a full-time job."

"I believe the majority of citizens in Senate District 14 want to be represented by people who will get the job done as quickly and efficiently as possible, and then return home. And that's the kind of senator I will be be," he said.

District stretches from Clackamas County in the north, down through Marion, Linn and Lane counties.

Sandy herd has international touch

"From the Swiss Alps to Sandy, Oregon—that's what it is."

That's how Sandy cattleman Ron Baldwin sums up the journey of the newest additions to the 30 head of Simmental cattle at his Wildcat Mountain Drive ranch.

Friday, he received five new head—the mother, bred in Kreienmoos, Switzerland, and her three daughters and a son, who were bred in Cardston, Alberta. That marks the first time, according to Baldwin, that full-blood Simmental cattle have been imported by a Clackamas County rancher.

The popular breed was introduced in the United States in 1968 and already ranks third in registration in the country. The breed is second in the world with some 43 million head. Only the Brahman cattle are more populous.

The first Simmental were developed in the Simme Valley in Switzerland. The first herd book was established in 1806.

Their popularity stemmed from their "dual-purpose" value on smaller European farms. The large, fast-growing cattle are also excellent milk producers. "A good Simmental over there will milk 14,000 pounds in a year," Baldwin said. "And it tests out to 4 percent so it's not weak in butterfat.

"In the United States, they're bred for beef, but they will still milk a lot," he said.

Their popularity is tied to the meat-producing industry. "You want a long, tall, big animal with lots of meat," Baldwin said, to serve the needs of a fast-food industry interested in a "hamburger steer."

The Simmental breed fills the bill. The ribeye on a Simmental runs 14 to 17 inches, while on an English breed like Angus or Hereford, it is about 11 inches. The 205-day adjusted weight of a Simmental is about 700 pounds, nearly 300 pounds heavier than the English cattle.

The Sandy man, who retired this summer from Carlson Chevrolet, operates the RB Simmental Ranch with his wife, Toni.

The Righteousness of Christ

Imputed & Imparted Righteousness of Jesus Christ

"SANCTIFICATION" (imparted righteousness of Christ)
What does it mean?

Sanctification means that Jesus Christ lives in the believer through the Holy Spirit and imparts to him His righteousness, His own life, nature and power, or is part of us. (Gal. 2:20)

The power of God is infinitely greater than the power of sin. (Rom. 5:20,21; Rom. 1:16,17; Rom. 8:1-4.) The Holy Spirit transforms the nature of believer into the likeness of Christ. (2 Cor. 3:18; Phi. 2:13.) The believer dies DAILY to sin. (1 Cor. 15:31.) The believer patakes of the life of Christ daily. (John 6:55,56,63.) The fact that the believer was justified and has faith in Christ does not give him an excuse to continue living in known sin. (Rom. 6:1,2; James 2:20,24) Can a justified and sanctified man fall again into sin? The answer is YES. It is due to the cunning temptations of Satan and the weakness of the flesh. There are willful, premeditated transgressions. (Heb. 10:26) There are also sins done in ignorance or carelessness. (1 John 1:8:1; Tim. 1:15.) Through carelessness he can fall away from Christ. The unconverted man loves sin and self, while the regenerated man hates his sinful nature and shuns evil. When the believer falls into sin, he confesses his sin to the Lord in deep repentance. (1John 1:9) The center of his life is JESUS CHRIST, not his ego. Sanctification is the work of a lifetime.
