Only two short weeks ago the Enterprise told of a party of three Missourians who had been taken out by D. C. Brichoux to be located on 320party admired the country, and notwithstanding the fact that they encountered hardships in getting out of the new land, due to the mishap of the automobile, as soon as they returned to civilization they sought out the office of the Braymer Bee, and following is what the Missouri paper tells about their experiences:

"Arriving at 9 p. m., at Ontario, Or., I was met by D. C. Brichoux, the land man, and was taken in his auto to Vale, 16 miles distant. The ground was covered with snow and the moonbeams made the scenery beautiful. In our way over we passed some alfalfa stacks, around which were gathered between 300 and 400 rabbits feeding on the alfalfa, of which they are fond. But this was not a rabbit ranch.

Journey Begins Well. "Early the next morning, we left by auto for Barren Valley. For several miles the road lies through fine, rich valley with fine homes. Large herds of horses and cattle were seen out on the ranges. About 12 miles out we came to the mountains. Now we would be climbing a mountainside, now plunging down into some canyon, rounding the point of some peaks towering above us; now glid countered considerable snow, which $9.70,' said the negro." gave us some trouble.
