BABY ONE SOLID SORE

Tried Everything without Relief. No Rest Night or Day. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

My baby, when two months old, had a breaking out with what the doctor called eczema. Her head, arms, feet, and hands were each one solid sore. I tried everything, but neither the doctors nor anything else did her any good. We could get no rest day or night with her. In my extremity I tried the CUTICURA REMEDIES, but I confess I had no faith in them, for I had never seen them tried. To my great surprise, in one week's time after beginning to use the CUTICURA REMEDIES, the sores were well, but I continued to use the RESOLVENT for a little while, and now she is as fat a baby as you would like to see, and as sound as a dollar. I believe my baby would have died if I had not tried CUTICURA REMEDIES. I write this that every mother with a baby like mine can feel confident that there is a medicine that will cure the worst eczema, and that medicine is the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustackian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh.—Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Perry Co., O.

ODDITIES OF GREAT FOLKS.

Hesiod hated women and took no pains to conceal the fact.

Robespierre was fond of reading poetry aloud to his friends.

Confucius, it is said, was passionately fond of watermelon seeds.

Themistocles was excessively fond of dancing and flute playing.

Nero was fond of music and attained great proficiency in the art.

Queen Elizabeth was very profane, and when angry would kick and cuff her maids.

Matthew Arnold's dogs, cat and canary bird are mentioned dozens of times in his poems.

Pierex, after work hours, busied himself in arranging and caring for his coins and medals.

Arius, the great heretic, delighted in religious dances and would dance till exhausted.

Vaughelm, the Hanoverian, could hunt wild boars, but could not endure the sight of roast pork, even the smell making him deathly ill.

Seneca, when tired writing his treatises on morals, found amusement in going over his accounts and calculating how much interest was due him.

Burton, when out of spirits, would go to the Thames, sit on the steps leading to the water and find pleasure in listening to the stories of the bargemen.

Mozart always kept his notebook in his pocket, and while walking or playing billiards, his favorite amusement, would often stop to jot down a melody that occurred to him.

Coleridge found solace for his troubles in the forgetfulness induced by opium, and when under its influence would sit for hours threading the dreamy mazes of his own mind.

Macaulay took his Sunday dinner alone at a coffee house. After dinner he would build a pyramid of wine glasses, which usually toppled over. He would pay for the broken glass and go.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Completely Uprooted.

How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterling medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former, but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the effect, on the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of chills and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies in maladies of this type. By the Bitters, malarial complaint in every stage, and of the most malignant type, are completely conquered and lose their hold upon the system. They are rarely, if ever, dislodged by the ordinary resources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.

Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me; he got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. HOW DO WE PROTECT?

ONE OF THE DELUSIONS OF PROTECTION EXPOSED.

When the Manufacturer Is to Be Protected, a Tax Is Clapped on the Competing Article, and the "Protected" Laborer Pays the Extra Price.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I do not believe that a protective tariff could be maintained in this country for 24 hours if it were not for two delusions. The first of the delusions is that it makes things cheap, and the second is that it protects labor. I say that it does neither.

How do we protect anybody? That is the primary proposition of this whole controversy. How do we protect an American, and against whom do we protect him? We protect him against his rival, of course—against his foreign competitor. When you want to protect the American steel manufacturer, what do you do? You simply levy a tax upon the competing article, which is foreign steel. When you want to protect the American woolen manufacturer, you tax foreign woolens, and so you go on through the whole list.

Now, you will notice that no man can be protected unless he has a competitor, unless he has a rival—in other words, unless he has something to sell and is selling it in competition with like articles or commodities which are the property of his rival. If, then, by exercising the taxing power, this competition can be either lessened or strangled altogether, protection is accomplished. It can be brought about no other way. There can be no possible difference of opinion as to how this thing works. It is not only plain, but self evident.

To handicap his rival with a tax or expel him altogether is the orthodox way of protecting the American. But if we tax foreign hats to protect the American hat manufacturer, and if we tax foreign glass to protect the American glass manufacturer, if in each case when we wish to protect we never vary the rule, but uniformly pursue the same course—slap a tax on the competing commodity—can any one explain to me why we do not apply the same rule in the case of the American laborer?

Above all other men he is to be protected. This whole system is said to have been invented for his exclusive benefit. He is to be the sole beneficiary of this benevolent legislation. Then why vary the rule in this case which you apply in every other and which works so well? The American laborer can undoubtedly be protected, because he has a commodity upon the sale of which he depends for a living. He also has a rival, a competitor, who is selling a like commodity in the same market. May I ask what it is the American laborer sells? Unfortunately for him, he sells only his labor! He has absolutely nothing else, and labor is and always has been upon the free list.

Now, if you want to actually protect the American laborer, you must be consistent and tax that commodity which comes in competition with what he sells—viz., the labor of his foreign rival, the competing article. But you all know that no political party can stand for one day in this country that would advocate so preposterous a proposition. I have sometimes illustrated this question by citing my own case and will take the risk of doing so here.

Thirty-five years ago, when 14 years old, I left Germany, my native country, and landed upon your shores. When I arrived, I was a veritable pauper, not having money enough to procure a night's lodging. I immediately became a competitor with you in the labor market. I became a rival. No difference where I might have gone, whether upon a farm, in a mine or workshop, I sold my labor in competition with yours.

Now, it has often occurred to me when studying upon this question how easily you Americans could have protected yourselves against me. How? Why, by simply taxing my labor which came into competition with yours. You had two ways of protecting yourselves against me. You could have levied so high an immigration tax as to have excluded me altogether, or after permitting me to land you could have imposed upon me an annual tax of say $40 or $50 or $100. Then while I would have been compelled to earn this money, getting it ready to hand over to the tax collector, you Americans could in the meantime have earned the same amount and appropriated it to your own use. This would have been a protection for you against me. But you permitted me to land, and you have not taxed me, and you ought to know by this time that if you allow a Dutchman to come in among you he will not only make a living, but get rich where a white man would starve.—Hon. Frederick E. White's Speech in Congress.

Sweet Scented Sachets.

The woman with a fondness for being always wrapped in faint, delicious odors has a nightdress sachet among her belongings. It is an oblong affair made of satin, covered with sheer muslin and trimmed with a wide, full frill of muslin. If violet is the scent affected even for dreams, then the sachet is of violet satin, and the muslin has violets scattered over it and big bows of violet ribbon at the corners. Similarly rose, heliotrope and mignonette all have their respectively appropriate colors.

SOUTH AMERICAN ABORIGINES.

They Will Pose For the Populace at the World's Fair.

Almost every variety of every race of man will be represented at Chicago by living specimens, and the few exceptions will be shown in life size models. The Indians of South America will form a specially interesting group, and, most of all, those of Terra del Fuego. The Fueguans, notwithstanding the frigidity of the atmosphere, go almost naked, wearing no clothes save the skin of some animal hung over the windward side of the body. The men, though only averaging about 5 feet in height, are enormously powerful, and the women are as strong muscularly as their husbands. One accomplishment possessed by these remarkable people is an amazing skill in the throwing of stones. They fling them with both hands and with such force and accuracy as to render them most formidable antagonists in a fight. They are also the most skillful "bolas" slingers in the world, rivaling in the dexterous use of that instrument the old time Balearic islanders.

Space Allotment at the World's Fair.

Of the total 3,642,812 square feet available for all exhibits at the World's fair 1,419,517 has been assigned to foreign and 1,787,263 to domestic applicants. Concessions absorb 211,465 square feet, and only 214,476 square feet remain unassigned in all departments. No figures are given from the live stock department because space is not assigned by area in that exhibit.

Diamond Exhibit at the Fair.

Chief Skiff of the department of mines and mining at the Chicago World's fair has devised a unique display. Ten thousand carats' weight of South African diamonds will be washed out of South African dirt by Kaffirs, who will appear in the dress worn by them in their work at home. Sailing ships are to be loaded at the nearest port with the diamondiferous earth from the Kimberley mines, and of course the expense of transportation will be enormous, but the "boart" and other by-products will be valuable.

CHIEF SKIFF.

Nearly all of the diamonds taken out of this dirt will be cut right on the spot. A large jewelry firm will erect a diamond cutting plant, perfect in every respect, and their best workmen will be employed. Since diamonds were discovered in South Africa in 1867 nine tons of the precious stones, representing when cut a money value of $500,000,000, have been taken from these mines. The business is now practically monopolized by a large company, which regulates the output by the demand, thus maintaining the high prices which have prevailed for several years.

A Fine Fish Exhibit.

Chief Collins of the fish and fisheries department of the World's fair is in receipt of a very fine loan exhibit from the private personal effects of the late Reuben Wood of Syracuse. The original owner was an angler of national reputation. In 1853 he visited London as a member of the United States commission and participated in several contests with the famous anglers from different parts of Europe and succeeded in carrying off first honors.

Spanish Building at the Fair.

The Spanish building at the Columbian exposition will attract unusual attention because it is a reproduction of the famous La Lonja at Valencia, which structure is almost exactly contemporary with the discovery of America. In 1482 the silk merchants of Valencia negotiated with Don Pedro Compte, a famous architect of that day, for the erection of a building to serve as a central mart for their trade, and 10 years later it was completed. For three centuries the silk exchange was held in it. Don Enrique Dupuy du Lome, Spanish minister at Washington, is a native of Valencia, and by him La Lonja was selected as a model.
