WHAT MIGHT BE DONE.

The legislature will convene next Monday and the question is, what will it do. Its plain duty is to elect a United States Senator without delay and then proceed to the transaction of such business as demands attention. In this latter category is the question of assessment and taxation; the arid land question so far as the state is concerned is proposed legislation on this subject a more definite and comprehensive system of laws relating to irrigation and riparian rights; the conglomerate known as the game laws should be made definite and certain; the bounty question should be settled by repealing the present law or submitting it in such shape that the question as to its validity cannot be raised; district attorneys should be dispensed with; the bill substituted therefor and sheriffs should be compelled to accept smaller salaries; fees do not towards earning these emoluments should be provided; the state will receive more funds from poll and road taxes than is now received, and matters too numerous to mention might profitably engage the attention of legislators during a sixty days session, but will they do it?

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION

The idea of some person to whose name unknown has referred in regard to loans of the state school fund is valuable. The proposal in brief is this: To permit municipal corporations, including counties, to borrow from the school fund and pay off existing debts and whenever obligations are incurred or warrants issued to do the same thing. The scheme this, which presents several features among which the following are plausible: That the security be gilt edge; that there be no losses on mortgages; that municipalities be charged; by reason of their warrants always being at par and there would remain the added satisfaction of knowing that the interest paid would come back to the taxpayers through the school fund.

TIMBER LAND CHEAP.

Timber land can be purchased at a ridiculously low figures in Oregon, compared with prices paid in Minnesota, according to C. F. Comstock, a timber dealer of Minneapolis. "Timber can be bought in this state for just about what it costs to clear it in Minnesota timber lands," he said, but this will not always be so. Back there, an acre of timber whose profit is estimated at 30,000 feet is considered cheap if it can be bought for $6 per 1000 feet, or $180 an acre. Here Government lands are being 'scripped' and timber is selling as low as $4 an acre, while lands that will at $8 an acre are considered as bringing a good price. Within the next few years these timber lands will have advanced to Minnesota figures, as large mills will be erected here to cut out here by sawmill men who become rich in the business there, and who thus know the value of good timber. In the same time, the railroads will probably make rates that will permit Oregon lumber to reach the Eastern markets at a profit, to the manufacturer. A number of wealthy lumbermen of Minneapolis who have become owners of Oregon lands will bring their influence to bear on the transcontinental railroads in such a way as to make themselves and the purchasers get rich by going to cutting up the Oregon timber.

Mr. Comstock says Minnesota lumbermen choose Oregon in preference to Southern States when they decide to erect new sawmills, because conditions are more favorable here. In the South the timber grows in the uncleared swamps, where it costs a fortune to build logging railroads as these have to be constructed of piling or trestle work. Besides this labor is unsatisfactory in the South. Negroes will not work, Southerners don't have to, and Northerners can't stand the climate. There is a large amount of yellow pine, hemlock and spruce in Louisiana, Missippi and in the Carolinas, but it will not be called on until the forests of the Northwest show signs of depletion."

He predicts that Portland will become one of the great lumber manufacturing centers of the world when those wealthy lumbermen back there begin to put in their big mills with 500,000 and 600,000 capacity per day, and he thinks this prediction will materialize within a very few years.

WHAT THEY SAY.

A noteworthy and valuable production is the annual number of the Crook County Journal, published at Prineville by A. C. Palmer. The edition is issued in pamphlet form, 12x14 inches; contains 36 pages between the covers; is printed on good paper, and is profusely illustrated. It is the first edition of the kind ever issued in Crook County, and is a very creditable one. The resources of Eastern Oregon are rapidly being brought to the notice of the world, and the Journal has done good work for its section, one of the most resourceful in that part of the state. Stockraising, woolgrowing, farming, dairying, fruitraising and mining are especially covered in this annual number, and no small amount is devoted to the irrigation plans and natural scenery of the county. The names of 77 taxpayers are given who pay taxes on property ranging in value from $5000 to $306,866, and many of them pay taxes on more than $10,000 worth of property. A description of the public lands, timber belts and mining interests are special features of the edition. The Journal says that there is room in Crook County for all who may come and mean business; that there is not a hobo or tramp in the county, or failure of any kind; and that a welcome hand is extended to men of all trades, callings and professions. Truly, Eastern Oregon today offers superior inducements to the honest homeseeker, and Crook County is one of the best sections of that wide and rich empire.—Oregonian.

The annual number of the Crook County Journal is at hand and deserves the highest praise on the part of Mr Palmer the editor and proprietor. It is handsomely printed pamphlet of about 40 pages with 83 engravings, and contains a thorough description of the wealth and industries of Crook County together with some interesting sketches of the lives of prominent citizens.—Antelope Republican.

Corbett's weakness is his age. McBride's chances are not good, appearing to suffer from some unexplained, inherent weakness, a lack of enthusiasm and a general opinion that his ability has already been sufficiently rewarded. Between these two extremes, there stands a man whose ability none can deny, whose services to the state none have exceeded, who has been the recipient of more deep and heartfelt cursings, and today has more friends than any man in Oregon. That man is John H. Mitchell, and if he should be selected as senator, the usual growls of rage and disappointment following a senatorial contest will be but an echo of what they have heretofore been.

Corbett's acknowledged ability, determination and wealth, assisted by a powerful coterie of friends would make him senator were he ten years younger. He is a vigorous old man, but there are more vigorous and equally able younger men whose expectancy of life extends beyond the six year term of a senator, and with whom the people of Oregon can safely trust their interests in the U. S. senate.

State senator, F. P. Mays, of Portland will introduce a bill in the coming legislature to provide for the election of U. S. senators by direct vote of the people, so far as the same may be done without conflict with the Constitution of the United States. Should this or a similar law be enacted together with one providing for primary elections so that nominations will be uncontrolled by rings, the peoples' choice will more often grace a senator's seat.

So far, this has been the most severe winter that the country generally has experienced since 1888-9 and it is not half over. In this section it has not been severe and even though it should last for two months yet there would be little or no loss of stock as there is an abundant supply of hay and feed for all purposes.

From the appearance of snow birds and from other equally valuable indications, the JOURNAL predicts that C. W. Fulton, of Astoria will be President of the senate and that L. B. Reeder, of Umatilla will preside as Speaker of the house.

The Rochester N. Y. Orphan's Asylum was destroyed by fire Jan. 8; twentyfive persons perishing in the flames and as many more severely injured.

It is again reported that Aguinaldo is dead but like all others it lacks confirmation.

It it again reported that Aguinaldo is dead but like all others it lacks confirmation.

A Double Wedding.

Dr. M. B. Taylor, of Grass Valley, and Miss Mattie Bailey, and Mr. L. A. Heath and Miss Cassie Bailey formed the two couples of a double wedding which occurred at the residence of S. S. Johns in The Dalles, at 8:30 on on Jan. 2, 1901, Rev. W. B. Clifton officiating.

Only a few of the brides' friends were present, the affair being a quiet one. Both couples returned to Grass Valley next day where they will reside.

Messrs Taylor and Heath are very estimable gentlemen and their brides are well known young ladies who have formed many acquaintances and friends in this county who wish them the largest measure of success and happiness in their new homes.

The Dalles Oreg., Nov. 21, 1900.

I have been using since May of this year, "Ellis's history of the United States," now being introduced by Mr. E. A. Hackritt. I have found it quite satisfactory. The characteristic features of this work are clearness and directness of statement, making it everywhere attractive and interesting. The salient points of United States history are brought out in strong relief, while trivial details are omitted. It is not only narrative but philosophical. No one can read its pages thoroughly without a higher appreciation of the history of this country, and without a deeper thrill of patriotic fervor.—J. S. LANDERS, City Supt. of Schools.

Some Opinions.

I have examined with care "The Peoples' Standard History of the United States," by Mr. Edward S. Ellis and have no hesitation in recommending it. It is what its title purports, a "Peoples' History" full and complete in facts, interesting in arrangement, style and pictorial illustrations. It will be of the greatest service in any family library, especially for the young students.—C. K. Davis, late U. S. Senator, Minnesota.

A Remarkable Statement.

State of Oregon, County of Douglas;

Personally appeared before me a Notary Public for Oregon, J. S. Lane who being first duly sworn deposeth and saith: That he is the son of Gen. Joseph Lane, who was the first Governor of Oregon, and that he resides at Myrtle Creek, Oregon, and is 72 years old, and that he has been afflicted with eczema and kidney troubles for some years, with stomach complaint for a long time. He obtained some V. O. and V. O. Pills from P. T. Magee, of Myrtle Creek and that he has not used up $1.25 worth, and now he feels like a new man. The pain has entirely left his back and can eat anything that his appetite calls for, also that his eczema is much better. J. S. Lane.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this the first day of June, 1900. P. T. Magee, Notary for the State of Oregon.
