DOOR BELL FOR THE DEAF.

Efforts of New York Couple to Arrange an Indicator to Notify Them of Callers at the Door.

A young deaf and dumb couple who were married recently, and began housekeeping in a flat, have found much difficulty in procuring a door bell, says a deaf-mute in the New York Tribune. The door bell at their flat is the kind they found, of course, to be entirely useless. They consulted all their married friends and acquaintances among deaf-mutes as to what to do, but it appeared that all of them had either married persons who could hear, so their experience was of no help. Obviously in the absence of the sense of hearing either sight, smell, taste or touch had to be relied on to show when a visitor was at the door.

The first idea that occurred to the couple was to remove the bell and hang in the clapper ribbons that would wave whenever any one pressed the button, but this would do no good unless some one were looking at the ribbons, and it scarcely seemed worth while to mount guard over it at all hours. Then some one suggested fastening a phial of oil of peppermint or attar of roses to the "buzzer" so that it would spill a few drops when it moved. The sense of taste, so far as any could desire, could not be made available in any way. Just at present, a carpenter is making for the flat a sort of sounding box, in which the clapper of the old bell will be so mounted as to be perceptible by the sense of feeling to the delicate nerves of the deaf. At least, they hope this will prove a solution.

IN SAFE BLOWING.

Skill of Burglars in Breaking Open Steel Chests.

Nitro-Glycerine Poured Into Crevices of the Door Tears It from Its Fastenings in a Very Thorough Manner.

It is a well known fact that some of the shrewdest professional burglars in this country were formerly makers of safes, so as to know every combination and trick of the trade, and are skilled in the use of the most modern tools and have a thorough knowledge of the weak points of every safe on the market. For many years safe breaking was carried on with great success. The time lock and the combination lock put a stop to a great deal of this activity, and then an arrangement was made whereby, even if the hinges were sawed off, the door still remained locked. It almost seemed as if the burglars had finally been foiled at every point, when nitro-glycerine made its appearance, says the New York Times.

Burglars were quick to see that this powerful liquid, which is still the active principle of guncotton and dynamite, put nearly all the safes on the market at their mercy. But it requires the highest mechanical skill and a great deal of experience and knowledge to use nitro-glycerine upon a safe successfully.

Very few people are aware, however, how simple are the instruments needed by the modern burglar in opening a safe with nitro-glycerine, and just how he proceeds to business. His outfit consists of a few pounds of putty, a sufficient quantity of nitro-glycerine, a hammer and perhaps a couple of thin wedges. With these, and a fuse and matches, he is ready to "negotiate" the so-called burglar-proof safe, and the degree of his success depends almost wholly upon himself.

A very short time is needed in which to "blow" a safe. The first thing done is to make a careful inspection of the upper door jamb of the safe. No matter how tight-fitting and carefully adjuster the door of a safe may be, it is claimed that it is impossible to make it so that a wedge hardly thicker than a razor edge will not find entrance. A few taps with a hammer drive in the thin edge of the wedge, making an opening which may not be any bigger than a thin sheet of paper. The wedge is driven further, a thick wedge is inserted, and this is followed, perhaps, by a still thicker one, each wedge only receiving a few dull blows, until finally the opening between the door and the wall of the safe is perhaps a sixteenth of an inch wide. Leaving the last wedge in place, the burglar now turns to his lump of putty and goes to work on the bottom of the safe door.

The minute crack here where the door and the safe meet is carefully puttied up along its whole length, and the line of putty is continued up for about a foot on each side along the sides of the door. The burglar with his putty next makes a "cup" at the top of the door directly facing the opening made by the wedge. When the cup is finished he fills it up with nitro-glycerine. This slowly percolates through the thin opening made by the wedge, and as soon as the cup has emptied itself it is filled again. Now, what happens?

The nitro-glycerine does not simply disappear in the safe among the books and drawers. It slides down the top of the door at an angle of 45 degrees and follows down the inside of the door. Instead of resting on the bottom of the safe, the nitro-glycerine follows the "steps" into which the door is fitted. Here the nitroglycerine collects, the putty on the outside of the door preventing its escape.

The burglar keeps pouring in nitro-glycerine by the aid of his "cup" until he believes that the interstices between the bottom of the door and the safe are full of liquid, making a layer under the door at an angle of about forty-five degrees. The safe is then ready to be "blown," which means simply a matter of setting off the explosive. So powerful is nitro-glycerine that it wrenches the door from its place and leaves the inside of the safe at the mercy of the burglar.

A Poor Princess's Only Solace.

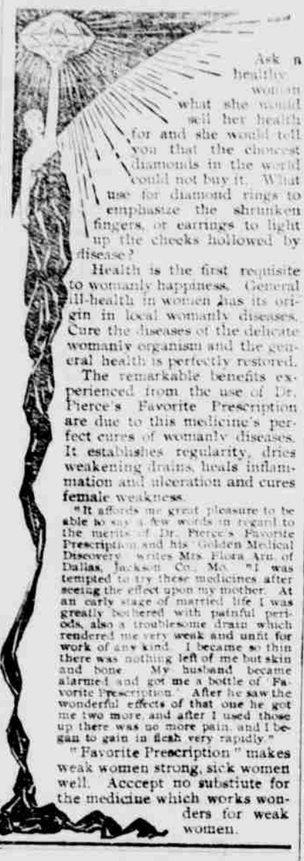
Two years have now elapsed since Princess Louise of Coburg was taken to the Lossow sanitarium near Dresden. No improvement appears to have taken place in her mental condition, the reports concerning her health being very unfavorable. The doctors declare her to be suffering from partial paralysis of the brain, and say that her case is hopeless. Extremely apathetic as regards all exterior things, the princess still displays a passionate love for flowers and flowering plants. Her rooms are filled with them, they stand in every niche and corner, and even upon the floor in vases and flower pots. The interest she first displayed in her toilette has quite subsided, flowers being her only pleasure. The unhappy princess spends most time among them, and is often heard confiding to them her sorrows. —London Telegraph.

Girls Element Side Saddle.

The first organized revolt against the side saddle is being made by a class of young society girls who meet every Friday night at the Central Park Riding academy, New York city. There are nine members of the class, which is superintended by Mrs. J. C. Mohlmann. The members are Miss E. E. Millard, Miss J. Mohlmann, Miss Julia Trowbridge, Miss E. Van Buren, Miss Raymond, Miss Arnold, Miss Stephenson, Miss Hyde and Miss Robinson. The class has adopted comfortable divided skirts and sweaters, and expects soon to practice vaulting and other feats of range riding.

The High Hand-Shake.

We learn from the Washington Post that "the rollicking elevated handshake" does not obtain in the capital. Yet, says the Chicago Tribune, there is nothing that comes so high that Washington society cannot afford it if it chooses.



Ask a healthy woman what she would sell her health for and she would tell you that the choicest diamonds in the world could not buy it. What use for diamond rings to emphasize the shrunken fingers, or earrings to light up the cheeks hollowed by disease?

Health is the first requisite to womanly happiness. General ill-health in women has its origin in local womanly diseases. Cure the diseases of the delicate womanly organism and the general health is perfectly restored.

The remarkable benefits experienced from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription are due to this medicine's perfect cures of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mrs. Flora Arn, of Dallas, Jackson Co., Mo. "I was tempted to try these medicines after seeing the effect upon my mother. At an early stage of married life I was greatly bedeviled with painful periods, also a troublesome drain which rendered me very weak and unfit for work of any kind. I became so thin there was nothing left of me but skin and bone. My husband became alarmed and got me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' After he saw the wonderful effects of that one he got me two more, and after I used those up there was no more pain, and I began to gain in flesh very rapidly."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 20, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in that ear entirely.

I underwent treatment for catarrh for three months, without any success, consulted a number of specialists, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only temporarily, that the head noises would disappear, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

Then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after two weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily, and beg to remain Very truly yours,
