FIRST GUN OF CAMPAIGN

Opened by J. N. Williamson Candidate for Congress.

ADDRESS BY JUDGE CAPLES

Williamson Delivers Convincing Speech—Full of Good Sense and Sound Judgment.

J. N. Williamson, Republican nominee for congress and Hon. John F. Caples opened the campaign in Morrow county, Saturday evening, in this city. Mr. Williamson was right at home in Heppner and his many friends here had arranged for a reception and demonstration which was carried out in a satisfactory manner.

At a little before 8 o'clock the Heppner Symphony band appeared in front of the Palace hotel and opened the exercises with music. All of the torches that could be procured were in readiness and the band led the large procession to the opera house. Next to the band was the torchlight procession followed by the citizens.

At the opera house there was an immense audience. On the stage besides the speakers, there were the Morrow county Republican nominees.

Congressional Committeeman R. F. Rand presided over the meeting, and introduced the speakers.

Mr. Williamson said in part:

"Two years ago, we of Oregon, in common with the other states of the Union, rejected the doctrines of Democracy, and put the Republican party again in power, under the leadership of the great and good, but now lamented, William McKinley. Our reasons for doing so were simple and plain. We did so because we believed we would be better clothed, better fed, and come into possession of a greater amount of happiness and prosperity during the four years to come under the principles which Mr. McKinley stood for than we would under the policies Mr. Bryan was then advocating.

"The Democratic party at that time advocated the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and it also advocated the abandonment of the Philippine Islands. The Republican party advocated the retention of our newly acquired possessions and also the acceptance and enactment into law of the commercial fact that it takes 100 cents to make a dollar. The people of Oregon and the United states declared in favor of Republican principles, and we are now called upon to say whether we are pleased with the results accruing from that choice. If we think we would improve our condition and escape the ills we have by flying to those ills we know not of, we now have an opportunity to express that sentiment at the polls.

"The Republican and Democratic parties are again before the bar of public opinion, each with its candidates and its creeds, each with its platform and its record, the question being, which of the two is entitled to our favor and our votes.

"The Democratic party during the last two years has, through its exponents in Congress, not only acted consistently with its creed but it has been true to its history. It said in its platform two years ago that it was against the recognized dollar of the commercial world, that it was against the American protective policy, and that it was against the policy of American growth and expansion. The party has done all in its power to carry out its policies upon these subjects. When it comes to pure, downright, unadulterated consistency, the record of the Democratic party during the past two years has been all that could be desired.

"In looking over the positions of the two great parties as expressed by their leaders in Congress, as well as by their declared platforms in this state, no new distinguishing feature is to be found. The people of Oregon are called upon to reiterate their sentiments as expressed two years ago. The Republican party remains positive in its declaration to retain the Philippine Islands. The Democratic party still continues to advocate their abandonment with slight variations. And I will here and now venture the prediction that four years from today, when we are told that the Democratic party actually went before the people of this country at this time, demanding that we pull down the American flag in the Philippine Islands, where it had been put by the valor of American arms, it will then appear even more strange and weird than to repeat the Democratic doctrine of a 50 cent dollar of two years ago.

"As to the commercial interests and advantages to accrue from the retention of the Philippines, no section will be more benefited than the Pacific Coast. I maintain that America owes it to herself as well as to the Philippines to continue in possession of the islands, maintaining therein a stable government in the local affairs of which the nativies shall have as much control as their capacity will permit.

"The Republicans of Oregon, in convention assembled last month, adopted a plank in their state platform declaring against any system of leasing the public domain. It is only necessary for me to state that this time, when the public lands are being settled upon under the homestead laws, by the hundreds of thousands of acres each year, it seems to me that it is no proper time for us to begin parceling out those lands in large tracts to large corporations. Any lease is a step toward ownership, and any lease law is a step toward a large part of our public lands falling into the hands of a few people. Leasing the public lands militate against the homebuilder, retard the development of the West, and give the independent few a great advantage over the independent many. Likewise, in my opinion, is the proposed reclamation of the arid lands by irrigation in such a manner that large tracts of the public domain come practically into the hands of a few incorporated companies, instead of into the hands of the homebuilder.

"Some scheme must be devised along the line suggested by President Roosevelt in his last message to Congress, whereby the Federal Government shall put the water of certain streams in reach of the adjacent lands in such quantities and at such cost as will enable the homebuilder to remain permanently upon the land. In my opinion, those east and south regions had better remain undefinitely the undeveloped heritage of all the people, than fall into the hands of large corporations.

"A short time ago I had occasion to visit different sections of Eastern Oregon. Where I have resided in this section of the state for a quarter of a century, I am continually making discoveries as to the magnitude of its resources and its possibilities. While [illegible] in quest of the [illegible]—for I might [illegible] I made a discovery of [illegible] new to me. When [illegible] William [illegible] Mason, I saw immense stacks of grain [illegible] the same [illegible] very good [illegible] all winter [illegible] the same [illegible] state of affairs [illegible] days ride on [illegible] deep water [illegible] there made [illegible] information or no [illegible] Congress, I would [illegible] an opportunity [illegible] my and toward [illegible] the Columbia river to navigation. With the opening of this greatest river of the Pacific, not only would the value of every acre of land and every bushel of grain in the Columbia basin be enhanced, but the production of cereals in that region would be doubled. For the Government to delay longer this needed improvement would be to retard arbitrarily the growth and development of three of its greatest states—Oregon, Washington and Idaho."

Senator Williamson denounced the doctrine of "tariff for revenue only" as a meaningless statement of what purports to be a political principle. He said if the Democrats should be placed in power, they could enact discriminative tariffs without violating this plank in their platform.

"It is not to be wondered at that the party which has not been right upon any of the important political questions of the last 50 years should be wrong on expansion," he said; and then among the measures upon which the Democracy had been wrong, he named the Missouri Compromise, the Civil War, unlimited greenback currency, the tariff question, free coinage of silver, and, finally, expansion. Contrasted with that record, he reviewed the history of the Republican party, showing that it was right on the question of human slavery, protection of our manufactories, payment of the war debt, sound money, and expansion. He closed in an eloquent peroration in which he expressed confidence that the people of Oregon will continue to indorse the party that has always stood for progress and prosperity, and keep Oregon in the list of Republican states.

Judge Caples followed Mr. Williamson in a very able and forceful address. It was devoted to the main issue, expansion, and was a masterly effort.

Children's Fertilizer.
That's a good name for Scott's Emulsion. Children are like young plants. Some will grow in ordinary soil. Others need fertilizers.
The nature of some children prevents them from thriving on ordinary food. Such children grow right if treated right.
All they need is a little fertilizer—a little extra richness. Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment.
Fertilizers make things grow. That's just what Scott's Emulsion does. It makes children grow in flesh, grow in strength, grow rich blood, grow in mind, grow happy. That's what we make it for.
