Emil Bottemiller went to Clarks Sunday to attend a dinner and returned the same day.

Sandy.

SANDY, Oct. 9.—Farmers all had a good threshing season in this locality and feel well contented for the coming winter with their granary full of grain, their cellars full of spuds and sourkraut, etc.

Considerable fall work has already been accomplished by farmers. The Wisconsin logging camp has started up again, to float logs down the river.

Cherryville.

CHERRYVILLE, Oct, 9.—After our few days of rainy weather we are having a heavy east wind, which is not very welcome to most people at any rate it is not wanted in this precinct.

Claude Baty is staying with Mr. Ware and family.

Mrs. Louise Kearney has left her many friends at Cherryville and gone to join her husband at Palmer, Oregon. Her friends will miss her smiling face.

Mrs. Tapp and children, were guests of Mrs. Baty a few days ago.

Mr. Tapp and Mr. Endersby and families are going east of the mountains to reside hereafter. Their many freinds wish them success, but their friends would be glad if they would continue to make their home at Cherryville as their going away makes less number of pupils going to school.

People are thinking of discontinuing Sunday school on account of bad weather and instead of having a Sunday school picnic as it was first thought there would be. There will be a Thanksgiving dinner instead. So fatten your chickens and "de possum fo de dinnah."

It is understood that the threshing machine is not going to visit Cherryville this year. It does'nt matter much what grain the people have they can thresh it in the old fashioned way with a frail.

Alex Lehman, who was formerly a teacher in this place was seen a few days ago at Cherryville.

Mrs. Stuchen was the guest of Mrs. Endersby a few days ago.

Canby.

CANBY, Oct. 10.—We have in our town a young lady who has seen more falls than summers—that's because she has a wheel.

The medal for expert marksmanship should be awarded our popular druggist, Henry Evans. He brought in the largest number of birds thus far reported for this season.

Canby has an industry which few other towns can boast of. It is the making of hoop-poles. Large quantities of these useful articles are shipped weekly.

The entertainment and social given by the A. O. U. W. Friday evening was of unparalleled excellence. The speakers were Senator Brownell, Judges Hayes, Ryan and Schuebel, C. H. Dye, E. C. Maddock and J. Stevens. They all spoke of the growing need of fraternalism and pointed out the superior qualities of the Workmen order. The supper spread in another building was fit to be partaken of by the gods and was served with a profusion excelling that shown on the coronation day of Czar Nicholas.

A lively protest made by Canby citizens and sent in by a live man to the Southern Pacific resulted in much good. The overland now stops for passengers and mail is delivered as before. The whole soul and conscience of the aforesaid company would not fill a two-grain capsule. Depending upon white people for ninety-nine per cent of its patronage, what moral right has this company to employ Asiatics? What moral right has this company to compel men working near their own homes to board at the company's boarding house? The unwritten motto of this company is the same as that of a once famous politician "The public be d—d"

Vanity Fair Tonight.

The successful burlesque "Vanity Fair," newly revised, has, it is said, received the enthusiastic commendation of large audiences in the various cities, which insures it a long and prosperous season. The fine company selected by Manager Hill is a very important factor in this very genuine success, among whom may be found Carlin and Brown, C. W. Williams, Wm and Kitty Harbeck, John B. Leonard and Jessie Fulton, Williams and Albion, Hilda Hawthorne and La Belle Parsons, Edna Melrose, Gussie Hill, Anna Bucklin, Maude Walker, John Armstrong, Frank Becker, John R. In the October number of the North American Review there are published, under the general title of "The Anglo-Saxon Rivals," four articles relating to the wonderful strides which the United States have made in recent years toward the commercial supremecy of the world, which they seem destined soon to wrest from Great Britain. The articles are by M. G. Mulhall, A. Maurice Low, Sir Charles Dilke and Ian Maclaren.

An excellent recapitulation of the Dreyfus case is contributed to the Review of Reviews by Mr. W. T. Stead, in the form of a "chronicle." Send names of all delegates to A. A. Morse, 334 Weidler street, Portland, Or. Will pastors and superintendents make special note of this and set apart Sunday, October, 22, as a day of special prayer that this convention may be blessed by the presence of the Holy Spirit?

A. A. MORSE, Secretary.
