SUIT SAVORS OF ROMANCE.

There is on trial at Montreal a suit in which the plaintiff makes allegations that savor of the romantic.

David Russell, the complainant, is suing the Pinkerton Detective Agency for $250,000, for alleged conspiracy to put him in an insane asylum in this country, and failing in that endeavoring to have him confined in a sanitarium in Canada.

Russell says the Pinkertons plotted to get him out of the way because he had threatened to sue them and expose alleged deceit on their part while in his employ.

The names of many well known Canadian railroad and financial men and American lawyers have been introduced by Russell in his attempt to prove his case.

Russell is also suing J. N. Greenshields, Canadian millionaire, for $1,250,000 as the result of a land deal in the Northwest. Russell swore it to be his belief that the conspiracy was conceived because of the land suit and that Greenshields was behind the Pinkertons in the conspiracy.

After careful reading of the war dispatches we are puzzled as to where the Turk ever got his reputation for being terrible.

A Georgia man says we are going to have no winter. There's a case of optimism gone foolish.

There are a million more men than women in England. There you have a possible solution of the suffragette movement.

The iconoclasts are now insisting that Mrs. O'Leary's cow did not kick over the lamp and cause the great Chicago fire. But Mrs. O'Leary and the cow don't care now.

Abe Martin observes: "Th' feller that rushes in generally crawls out."

Dont despise the humble turnip. Some day a corner in it will open your eyes to its value.

Champ Clark says he is afraid President Taft will kill himself politically in his Western trip. Champ's solicitude is touching.

What do you think of a District attorney who says the only card game he knows is whist. No wonder some say gambling exists in the county on our north.

By refusing a license to any saloon which will not handle a local beer, is a new way of stimulating home industry. All this happened in Yakima.

Some persons are slow. We haven't heard of any phonograph record giving a little lecture on the single tax idea.

Even if we don't have any "mixed race" marriage, that divorce sensation isn't so very "slow."

The young women back of the plan for a new Oregon City Hospital deserve the assistance of every business man in town. The present location is not only too small, but the building is really not fit for a hospital. The location is too far away fromthe heart of the city and is very inconvenient to reach. Only thirteen patients can be accommodated at one time, and time and time again, the place has been overcrowded and patients turned away. The ability of the nurses in charge of the institution is unquestioned, and the manner in which the hospital is maintained is a guarantee of continued success. The proposed location is an ideal one, the building and grounds being especially adapted for hospital work. A modern hospital is one of the needs of the city, and we trust that those "Chicago hustlers" are successful in "putting over" the proposition they are presenting to our business men.

The registration department of the postoffice needs a revision of methods and rates. Under the present system it costs eight cents to register a letter or package, and with it comes a lot of red tape that consumes eight cents worth of time to the average man. The amount of damages allowed for a letter or package becoming lost is exceedingly small, and the process of obtaining a refund takes twenty or more days. Several companies are getting rich issuing "insurance coupons" at five cents each, these coupons to be placed in letters and packages as they are mailed. In case the package becomes lost, the damage adjustment is quickly made, the amount allowed being much higher than the sum guaranteed by Uncle Sam.

How many of you thought the Court House was a stone building? The recent alterations disclose the fact that our imposing county building is constructed of brick with a cement coating.

Charles G. Gates and His Bride On Wedding Tour In Private Car

WHEN Charles G. Gates arranged to be married to Miss Florence Hopwood of Minneapolis at the home of his bride's uncle, Robert F. Hopwood, at Uniontown, Pa., he engaged the Rev. Dr. J. W. Legrone of Port Arthur, Tex., to perform the ceremony. There were nearly a hundred guests at the wedding, many of them having made long journeys to attend. Immediately after the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Gates left on their wedding journey in Mr. Gates' private car. They went first to Port Arthur, Tex., and will make a long tour of the United States before returning to New York. The above picture was made as the newly wedded couple stood behind the car only a few minutes before their wedding journey began. This was Mr. Gates' second marriage, his first wife having divorced him fifty-three days before his second marriage. His father, John W. Gates, died recently, leaving a fortune of perhaps $30,000,000, most of which will ultimately go to his son. The young millionaire's wedding gifts to his bride included two diamond rings, a rope of pearls, a pair of diamond earrings and a diamond pin.

Heart to Heart Talks.

STILWELL'S DREAM

There is a man in Kansas City whose name is Stilwell.

He dreamed a dream.

His dream was an air line of steel from the grainfields of the middle west direct to the gulf. People smiled. The moneycrats of Wall street laughed.

But—

When American financiers turned their backs on Stilwell's vision of shining rails from Kansas City to the sea the dreamer went to Holland and told his dream to the Dutch capitalists. They furnished the money, and the Kansas City and Southern railroad was built.

Stilwell's dream came true.

To be sure, the author and builder of the road in the extreme was rewarded out of his hard earned share, but the road is there doing business as the direct realization of Stilwell's dream.

Stilwell dreamed another dream.

And again the financiers pronounced his dream a baseless fabric, impractical and absurd. They would not pay a dollar in the enterprise.

But Stilwell went about to make his other dream come true.

This was the dream:

He would build a railroad from Kansas City through Mexico to the gulf. It was the old dream from a new viewpoint. Stilwell's vision was again the benign one of connecting the great granaries of the west with tidewater, thereby saving the farmers the long haul transportation.

He dared to cut the meridian of latitude.

He was like that czar of Russia who laid down his ruler between two great cities and, despite the remonstrance of engineers, said, "Build it on that line."

Somehow Stilwell is getting the money, and the Kansas City and Orient railroad is largely built.

Oftentimes your dreamer is the practical man. His vision makes things come to pass.

There must first be the dream.

Columbus dreamed of the other side of the world and found it. Napoleon dreamed of an empire and won it.

With their natural eyes men see only little things; they dream of big things.

It is the dreamer who hangs the impossible bridge over the spanless chasm, lays a path for thought on ocean's bottom, discovers the new land, sends the message through the viewless air.

"Where there is no vision the people perish." (Proverbs 29:18.)

Strict on the Proprieties.

"Now that I have given you something to eat," said the benevolent old lady, "will you not saw some wood for me?"

"I regret to say, madam," replied the weary wayfarer, "that I cannot saw wood without removing my coat, and I must I am too much of a gentleman to appear before a lady in my shirt sleeves."—Philadelphia Record.

CLUB SMOKER IS MOST ENJOYABLE

ing up for the metropolis of Clackamas county, due almost wholly to the work which has been carried on by the Commercial Club.

"If for nothing else the Commercial Club is a great success for this meeting alone," was the remark with which Clarence Eaton prefaced a well received talk, in which he urged more meetings of similar character.

Hon. Grant B. Dimick, in his opening remarks told of the amount of good for the community which has been accomplished by the commercial organization, and took occasion to pay a glowing tribute to Mortimer D. Latourette, the efficient secretary. It is largely due to Mr. Latourette, he declared, that the club is in such a prosperous condition. He also spoke of the many civic improvements, of the agitation for the building of a new canal and locks and the improvement of the Clackamas rapids, and of the other improvement campaigns started by the Commercial Club, and of the work the club would accomplish in the future. In the latter respect the speaker described the view the city afforded those passing through on the Southern Pacific, and strongly advocated the tearing down of the unsightly wooden shacks now standing, and their replacement by modern brick tenements. In addition to affording better homes for the wage earner, Judge Dimick pointed out the favorable comment such slightly looking structures would cause among travellers.

Hon. Thomas F. Ryan, of Salem, the first president of the Commercial Club, took occasion to congratulate the organization upon its work, and also urged the members to practice more the "get-together idea," especially in regard to the pending question regarding the east side locks. "Such action," he declared, "is a primary necessity in order to successfully battle the opposition which is being aroused in all parts of the state." Regarding the proposed commission form of government for the city, Mr. Ryan urged all to work slowly, and to carefully study the matter before taking a definite step.

Following the address of Mr. Ryan, refreshments were served, and a novel entertainment was given.

CHINESE REBELS GIVEN HARD BLOW

settled there and then. Only a few unimportant towns outside of Hankow, Wuchang and Han Yang have taken part in the rising. Nanking, Chang Sha, Canton and other cities of known revolutionary tendencies have not responded to the call of the insurgents, so far as can be learned. They are seemingly awaiting the result of the first encounter.

Had the rebels overwhelmingly won today's battle it was expected the provinces below the Yangtse-Kiang would be theirs. With other important cities in rebellion, the government would have been unable to concentrate its strength against the three in Hupeh province. The rebel leaders have shown characteristic weakness in not following up their early victories.

No news was received from Szechuen province. The American Legation failed to receive reports, except that from Consul-General Green at Hankow, announcing that the battle had been begun. Acceptance of the offices of Viceroy of Hupeh makes Yuan Shi Ki demanded permission to raise his own division of 10,000 troops and also to cash a personal grant of 1,000,000 taels ($500,000). To this humiliation the regent agreed.

Woman Is the Natural Aviator and Will Supersede Man

By Professor RUDOLPH HENSING MULLER of Vienna University

WOMEN WILL RULE THE AIR: THEY ARE THE NATURAL AVIATORS.

Why is the air woman's own domain? The answer is perfectly plain to both psychologists and physiologists.

The PERIPHERY, the outer rim of a woman's retina, is as sensitive to objects as is its center. A woman can look AWAY from you and STILL SEE YOU.

Here are of sight is almost TWICE that of man's, in whom, as a rule, the periphery of the retina is extremely BLUNTED to impressions.

DIFFUSED ATTENTION is the opposite of CONCENTRATION. Woman has the first, man has the second. By diffused attention we mean the quality of mind that can take in a number of details at once.

Throughout the ages man has steadily, single mindedly, concentrated upon a PARTICULAR POINT. Woman's attention has been directed to her babies, to the care of them, to her household duties, to the manifold task of pleasing her lord and master, and most of these things she has had to consider practically ALL AT ONCE.

The advantages of diffused attention in flying are obvious. Where the contour of the ground, the appearance of the sky, the sound of the motor, the "feeling" of the machine and a hundred other things must be taken into consideration and weighed all at once, only DIFFUSED ATTENTION of the most expert kind can make a perfect aviator.

BETTER EQUIPPED NATURALLY THAN MAN FOR THIS NEW SPHERE, SHE MUST EVENTUALLY, ACCORDING TO ALL LAWS OF EVOLUTION, DRIVE MAN OUT OF IT.

BEAVERS AND SEALS TIE; VERNON WINS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—(Special.)—The Beavers and Seals battled for thirteen innings today, but neither team could win. The score was six to six. Sixteen hits were made off the delivery of Henly and eleven off Koestner. Vernon's winning from the Angeles puts that team a little nearer the leaders. It wasn't a scientific game, and the least said about it the better. Portland made six errors and San Francisco four.

The results Wednesday follow:

The Origin of Carrier Pigeons.

The origin of the use of the carrier pigeon is lost in obscurity, but the first people of whom we have any record of employing it are the Greeks. By them it was used with great success, and the knowledge they had acquired they imparted to the Romans, who first used it as a message bearer about 120 years before the Christian era. About 500 years ago pigeons formed part of a telegraphic system adopted by the Turks, who erected high towers thirty or forty miles apart. They were provided with pigeons, and sentinels stood constantly ready to secure the messages as the birds arrived.—London Standard.

The Lap of Luxury.

"What is meant by the lap of luxury?" asked a teacher of a class of little girls.

"Please, ma'am, I know," exclaimed the smallest of the lot, holding up her hand.

"Well, what is it, dear?" inquired the teacher kindly.

"It's when the cat steals into the larder and licks the cream off the milk."—Sydney Bulletin.
